

READY FOR MIAMI—Phil Blazer, Carolina's 228-pound starting right tackle appears ready for any kind of weather, whether it be a University of Miami Hurricane or a fall breeze. Blazer and teammates will deal with the Hurricanes tonight at 8 p.m. in Miami, Fla.

MIAMI NOTEBOOK:

Tar Heels Go Straight To Work After Their Arrival In Miami

By BILL KING
(Special to the Daily Tar Heel)

MIAMI, Fla.—"We'll practice immediately." Those were the words of Coach Jim Tatum after the Carolina Tar Heels had arrived here in beautiful Miami yesterday afternoon about 3:30. The Tar Heels went straight to the Orange Bowl where they will meet the Miami Hurricanes in a big inter-sectional game tonight at 8 o'clock.

When the team arrived at the double-decked elaborate stadium, it learned that there was to be a high school football game there last night, so Tatum moved the team to nearby Curtis Field for an afternoon workout.

The trip down, a little over three hours, was monotonously eventful. The Tar Heels had a full course lunch on the plane (steak and all) then reclined their seats and read or just shot the bull as the tremendous Pan-American airliner made its way over the Atlantic.

Takey Crist, who always has trouble with air-sickness on these trips started taking pills before leaving Chapel Hill to combat that miserable feeling.

Teammates Jack Cummings and Nelson Lowe figured it to be psychological so they started taking some of Takey's pills to make him feel better. It must have worked, because Takey survived the trip without a heave, pardon, hitch.

The Pan-American Airlines furnishes "passengers instructions" in both English and Spanish. When the Tar Heels discovered these folders, you would have thought they were on a Spanish convention. Everybody was trying to impress everybody else with his knowledge of the popular (B) language at UNC.

One of the luxuries of the trip was a progress report on the world series. Somebody had radio ear-phones on front and gave periodical reports on the game as the players voiced their approval or disapproval at the way things were going in New York.

It's tough for the boys to get away from quizzes even while they're cruising over the Atlantic. Such was the case yesterday when the coaching staff passed out assignment quizzes. The quizzes were drawn out in a standard lineup and each player had to draw in his specific assignment according to the number of the play.

When the Tar Heels boarded the busses which carried them to the Raleigh-Durham Airport, the wives of Ronnie Koes, Don Stallings and Paul Pulley were on hand to see their buddies off. The three boys got a round of sighs and good-natured remarks from the bachelors when the goodbye kisses were distributed.

The Chapel Hillians are staying at the fashionable Shore Club Hotel here in Miami and it's really a sight to see. It overlooks the ocean and is surrounded by those famous Florida palm trees.

It was raining slightly when the Tar Heels arrived at the tremendous Miami airport and the landing was delayed by what the copilot termed "Florida's wet sunshine." It cleared up later, however.

It looked like old home week inside the station, as many of the player's families and friends who live in this area were on hand to give Carolina a cordial welcome.

Duke, N.C. State Prep For Games On Saturday

RALEIGH, Oct. 10—(AP)—North Carolina State College went under the lights tonight to wind up preparations for its Saturday night football game with Florida State at Tallahassee, Fla.

Coach Earl Edwards sent his squad through a general review of all offensive and defensive assignments. Dick Hunter, Ken Trowbridge and Tony Guerrieri did most of the booting in a kicking drill.

Hunter, Jim Sciarretta and John Lawrence concentrated on extra point attempts and field goals, while Dick Christy, Lawrence and Sciarretta worked on kickoffs.

The squad learned end John Collar will not be able to make the Florida trip due to an ankle injury. The Wolfpack will leave for Tallahassee by plane at 1 p.m. tomorrow, and return at midnight Saturday.

DURHAM, Oct. 10—(AP)—A final rough session today prepared Duke for a jaunt to Texas and a football encounter with the Owls of Rice.

Trainer Bob Chambers counted out one player for the trip, and said another will be able to go. Left behind will be second string left guard Carol Jamison, who injured a knee in practice on Tuesday. Phil Scudieri will take Jamison's place.

Halfback Eddie Rushton, out of action since an injury in the Virginia game, reported in heavy equipment today and Chambers said he would be in shape for the trip. However, the trainer was reluctant to say how much action Rushton will be able to see in the Saturday night game.

The Blue Devils concentrated on defense patterns in today's workout. Bob Brodhead and Pryor Miller led the first and second units on offensive drills.

The Duke Squad, 45 strong, will leave by plane for Houston at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow. They are due back at Raleigh-Durham airport at 3:10 p.m. on Sunday.

Fencing Team Meeting Slated Monday Night

Fencing Coach Barrow announced today that the first meeting of the fencing team will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. in room 304, Woolen Gym.

At this time, plans for practice sessions, election of a team captain, and a proposed schedule for inter-team competition will be discussed.

All persons interested in trying out for the team and all returning team members were urged to attend by Coach Barrow.

Braves Win World Championship As Burdette Blanks Yankees 5-0

NEW YORK, Oct. 10—(AP)—The Milwaukee Braves won the World Series today by crushing the New York Yankees, 5-0, in the seventh and deciding game behind the brilliant pitching of Lew Burdette.

A four-run splurge, highlighted by Eddie Mathews, two-run double in the third inning gave Burdette all the batting help he needed. Del Crandall added a solo homer in the eighth.

The 30-year-old righthander stopped the Yanks cold with seven hits to become the seventh pitcher to win three games in a seven game world series. The last man to accomplish this feat was Harry The Cat Breechen of the St. Louis Cardinals in 1946.

Burdette beat the Yanks 4-2 in the second game, and 1-0 in the fifth game, each time yielding seven hits. He blanked the Yanks for 24 consecutive innings also. The Yanks scored on him last in the third inning of the second game.

An error by rookie third baseman Tony Kubek, a Milwaukee resident, proved costly to the Yankees and starter Don Larsen, in the Braves' big third inning.

After Burdette had fouled out to lead off the third, rookie Bob Hazle lit the blaze by singling between short and third. Johnny Logan hit a sharp grounder to Kubek whose throw to second pulled Jerry Coleman off the bag. Coleman's relay to first was too late to get Logan.

Mathews then brought a roar from the 61,207 fans by lashing a double to the right field corner, scoring Hazle and Logan. Larsen, who last year pitched the only perfect game in World Series history, was replaced by little Bobby Shantz.

Hank Aaron, the mighty Milwaukee slugger, drilled a single through the middle of the diamond to score Mathews. Wes Covington followed with another single to send Aaron to third. Hank came home with the chopper to Gil McDougald at short. Felix Mantilla fled deep to right to end the decisive spree.

Burdette, a fidgety, 6-2, 180-pounder, simply annihilated the Yankees with his breaking pitches except in the first, sixth and ninth innings. In between the first and fifth innings he retired 11 straight batters.

And he ended the brilliant performance on a dramatic note when the Yankees loaded the bases with two out in the ninth. Bill Skowron hit to Mathews who made a sensational back handed stop and stepped on third to force Jerry Coleman and end the game.

It was the first world championship for Milwaukee and the first for the Braves formerly of Boston; fourth run on Frank Torre's high since 1914 when George Stallings. "Miracle Braves" humbled the Philadelphia Athletics in four straight games.

It was the first time the world championship had gone to a Western club since Cleveland beat the Boston Braves in 1918.

The victory meant about $9,000 to each Brave receiving a full share. The Yankees' losing cut for each full shareholder amounted to about $5,710.

TAR BABY HALFBACK—Sonny Folkamer a 5-11, 180 pound high school All-American from York, Pa., will be starting right halfback for the Tar Babies Saturday night when they meet the State Wolflets in Raleigh. Folkamer was an outstanding ball carrier in the Tar Babies opener with Maryland last Friday night.

Tar Babies Face NCS Wolflets In Tough Test Saturday Night

ERWIN FULLER

Carolina's Tar Babies continued their preparations yesterday for Saturday night's Shriners' benefit battle with the N. C. State Wolflets. A crowd of more than 15,000 is expected to be on hand when the fireworks begin in Riddick Stadium with an 8 p. m. kickoff.

Coach Bud Carson sent his charges through a long scrimmage on Navy Field, with every phase of Tar Baby play getting a close look. Carson warned his players that State has a very strong squad and that their game will have to be much improved over the Maryland performance to drop the Baby Wolves.

The State yearlings, supposedly one of the stronger units in the ACC and reportedly one of the most talented frosh groups to assemble in West Raleigh in recent years, dumped a capable VPI freshman eleven 19-13 last weekend in their season's opener.

Coach Bill Smaltz's performers displayed a diversified attack in the VPI triumph, netting two TD's on the ground and striking for yet another six-pointer via the airways. A Pekin, Ill whiz, Bob Wolford, termed by UNC scouts who saw the game as a "very dangerous runner", provided most of the offensive fireworks. Twice the 6-0, 180-pound left halfback capped long NCS drives with scoring plunges through the VPI forward wall.

The Wolflets, who employ the same multiple offensive patterns used so successively by the NCS varsity, also possess a strong passing game which promises trouble for the Tar Baby secondary. The final State tally against the Goblers came as a result of successful pass completion.

Anchoring the NCS yearling line will be a pair of top-flight tacklers, Greensboro's Bert Wilder and "Tiny" Reynolds of College Park, Md.

Wilder received the Most Valuable Player award for his performance in the 1956 Shrine Bowl game in Charlotte last December, while Reynolds, who tips the scales at 270 pounds, is a veteran of service football. The Wolflets roster shows several other performers who were outstanding participants in the pigskin sport while meeting their military obligations. These service returnees plus the excellent recruits provide NCS with considerable depth at nearly every position, with little difference in the calibre of play.

Saturday night's skirmish marks the first meeting of the frosh teams from the two Consolidated University institutions for a period of more than five years. The Shriners in recent years have matched the Oxford and Methodist Orphanage elevens in their annual benefit contest.

Flu and injuries have severely hampered the Tar Baby game preparations. Ends Vern Hoyle, Bob Campbell, and Jim Hokinson, tackle Dick Benzo, and quarterback Russ Hollers all have had recent bouts with the flu virus, and all but Hollers are definitely out for the State game, as is guard Bill Schumate, who is sidelined with a knee injury sustained in the Maryland game. Holler's status has been termed as "doubtful".

On the brighter side of the Tar Baby ledger, two linemen who missed the Maryland game because of injuries, Danny Sofranko and Rip Jenkins, have returned to action. It is probable however, that both will see limited game action.

The loss of Hollers could prove to be a devastating blow to the Tar Baby offense. Carson has named Skip Clements as a starter at the signal-calling slot, with Dick Detana and Worth Hill slated to see considerable action. All three are promising prospects, but none is an experienced play caller.

Game tickets will be available at the gate for $2 each. Station WRAL in Raleigh will provide radio coverage of the contest.

Tar Heels

Diamond and Gary Greaves. Junior tackles, are the aces of the Miami line.

But Carolina is capable of countering in every department. The Tar Heels should be up for the contest after their two fine victories over Clemson and Navy. The Chapel Hillians are more confident and should not be hampered by "scared football" which they played against N. C. State.

The Tar Heels have proved their ability to run with the best, thus the air attack could be the difference here tonight. Tatum, however, has spent a lot of time during the week working on ground offense and the Tar Heels will give Miami a chance to prove its defensive agility.

Physically, the Tar Heels should be in good shape with the exception of halfback Daley Goff. Goff injured his shoulder in the Navy game and his status is undetermined at present. If Goff is not able to start, he will be replaced by Reids-

vill's Don Coker

Along with Reed and Coker (or Goff) in the Carolina backfield will be Jim Schuler at left half and either Bob Shupin or Ed Lipski at fullback. Lipski will be the starter if Carolina receives and Shupin, should the Tar Heels kickoff.

In the line, Tatum will probably go with his usual starters which consist of Buddy Payne and Mac Turlington at ends, Leo Russavage and Phil Blazer at tackles, Fred Swearingen and Jack Lineberger at guards and Ronnie Koes at center. The game will be broadcast over WRAL in Raleigh tonight.

The probable starting lineups:

UNC	POS.	MIAMI
Payne	LE	Corey
Russavage	LT	Diamond
Swearingen	LG	Wallace
Koes	C	Newcomb
Turlington	RE	Geatz
Blazer	RT	Greance
Lineberger	RG	Hayes
Reed	QB	Curci
Schuler	LH	Pievei
Coker	RH	Varone
Lipski	FB	Sandic
