The picnic for pledges is an annual event.

Labor Probe
WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—(AP)—Meryn Pitzele acknowledged today he collected $15,000 as a teamsters union adviser while serving on the New York state mediation board and as labor editor of the magazine Business Week.

He made the disclosure before the Senate rackets committee, telling the senators he went to work for teamsters president Dave Beck in 1953 because he thought Beck was going to clean up the union.

Pitzele was President Eisenhower's labor adviser in the 1952 campaign. He also advised Thomas E. Dewey when the former New York governor sought the presidency in 1944 and 1948.

ADDED ATTRACTION FOR FALL GERMANS—Shown above are members of the Washboard Band, Negro combo from Sea, Island, Ga., where they are regular performers at the Oasis Club and the Cloister Hotel. The group has also entertained students at several southeastern colleges while on tour. They will perform here at Germans, which will be held this coming Friday.

condemned" but which, under the Taft-Hartley labor law as it now stands, involve no criminal penalties.

Nixon's Neighbors

ATLANTA, Nov. 1—(AP)—The founder of the American Resettlement Foundation Inc. said today he understands Vice President Richard Nixon lives in a Washington neighborhood firmly restricted against Negroes and Jews.

President — Dr. Edward A. Brecht, dean of the School of Pharmacy at UNC, was elected president of the national Rho Chi Society in the recent mail ballot election. This announcement came from Dr. Edward J. Rowe, secretary-treasurer of the society. Dean Brecht will be installed at the close of the 1958 Rho Chi convention next spring to serve a term of two years.

Thus, added, State Rep. A. A. Fowler of Douglasville, Ga., the private subscription foundation doubtless would be unable to buy a home there for the resettlement of a "worthy and qualified" Negro family.

Another member of the foundation had suggested that it has an option on a $75,000 home in Nixon's neighborhood. Fowler said this is not true.

CAMPUS CLUES

By CAROLYN

See KEMP After Dark . . .

Here's big news . . . Kemp's will be open from now on until 9 p.m. every night. Why? The hot dope is that the L-P manufacturers are going to raise their prices. So KEMP'S is giving their customers a big break.

All L-Ps now in stock are going on sale now in a big Pre-Season special. They can be bought now at way under old list price. Go over now and stock up. When Kemp has to order again it will be at the new higher prices.

Take advantage of this last chance deal and stock up for Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years!

Tintable Evening Shoes . . .

The latest fashion word in evening shoes is the white tintable pump. Take one pair of white pumps and in a few hours the expert hand of Mrs. Addison at ALEXANDERS SHOE STORE will transform the shoes into the final touch of glamour-shoes to match your favorite formal. Pumps come in medium or high heels with conventional or newest pointed toes in brocade, satin or linen.

Why Struggle Longer—Go To LEDBETTERS . . .

Yes, end the agony of handwritten assignments. Treat yourself to the newest, niftiest Remington portable typewriter at LEDBETTER-PICKARD. NO money down, and only $1 a week.

Set The Mood For Friday Night . . .

Whatever the mood you plan to adopt for the big Friday night doings—let Helena Rubinstein perfume or cologne help create the atmosphere. SUTTON'S DRUG STORE has a full line of Rubinstein scents—Moonlight Mist for the romantics, White Magnolia for the innocents, and Command Performance and Fourth Dimension.

Accent your eyes with Helena Rubinstein's Eye shadow stick, everpoint eye pencil and water-proof mascara. Silk tone foundation used as a powder base or alone and dewy stay-long texture lipstick in Tender Pink, Italian Pink or Rebel Rose will guarantee you a sensational start on the big night.

Sobel Warns Hopefuls

Election Board Chairman Art Sobel has announced that all candidates not at the compulsory candidates' meeting Monday night and whose absences were not excused, are to contact him before 6 p.m. Wednesday.

Any candidate who neglects to do this will be disqualified. All candidates not present at the meeting and not excused must pay a $1 fine.

Any student unable to vote in Tuesday's election and desiring to vote by absentee ballot must have a valid reason. The following reasons will be considered acceptable: interment in the infirmary; absence from Chapel Hill; any other reason approved by the Election Board.

A written request for an absentee ballot must be made to the chairman, Art Sobel, by 5 p.m. Friday.

The ballot must be returned to the Election Board before the polls close at 6 p.m. Tuesday. Students in the infirmary will be able to vote on regular authorized ballots. This will be arranged by the Election Board.

Business School Gives Profit To Fund Drive

A check in excess of $400 is bolstering the 1957 Chapel Hill Community Chest fund, thanks to the investments class of the UNC School of Business Administration. The money comes from profits made through investments of the class.

In 1952 Charlie H. Babcock of Reynolds and Co. in Winston-Salem set up a $10,000 trust for use in a UNC investments class in order that students could learn about the practical side of American business by investing real money.

The class has made a profit and the income from their investments have topped the $6,000 mark. The class has been conservative, preferring "solid securities" rather than highly speculative stocks.

In the past the class has bought U. S. Government bonds and the largest present holding is American Telephone and Telegraph.

Dr. Joe S. Floyd teaches the investments class at UNC which makes a thorough study of the businesses chosen for investments. Economics charts, statistics, and graphs are carefully scrutinized along with dividend records and other factors.

Meet Planned By Art League

University Art League, new student art organization now being formed on the campus, will hold its charter meeting in the Caldwell Hall basement sculpture studio, tonight at 7 o'clock.

The name of the organization was chosen from among those submitted during a contest held last week. The winner, Miss Mary Louise Davis, will receive a $3 credit certificate from the Intimate Bookshop.

Any student is welcome and urged to join. By signing up as a member on Wednesday he can become a charter member. All prospective members are urged to attend the Wednesday night meeting, during which activities for the year will be discussed.

Students On Bridge

This deal illustrates the fact that a finesse is not always a good thing. In this case, South must avoid finessing for an outstanding king of trumps if he is to make his four heart contract.

Opening lead: King of diamonds.

North-South reach their game contract in hearts even though the opponents opened the bidding. West chooses the natural opening lead of the king of diamonds, and he takes a careful look at the cards which are played on the first trick. East plays the six of diamonds, South the four.

West can now conclude that East has played lowest diamond, since there are no outstanding diamonds lower than the six. The inference West draws from this is that East started with either one diamond or three diamonds, but not two. For if East had started with two diamonds his proper play would have been the high one first and then the low one.

West is now in a quandry. If his partner started with a singleton diamond, then the proper play would be the ace of diamonds followed by a third diamond, which East would ruff. The king of trumps would then serve as the setting trick.

On the other hand, if East started with three diamonds, this would mean South started with only one. In such a case laying down the ace of diamonds would be a bad play since South would trump it and the queen on the board would be good for a discard.

West considers this latter possibility to be more likely, since South is known to have a long heart suit and so could easily be short in diamonds. Hence, out of ignorance, West decides against leading the ace of diamonds. He must shift to one of the black suits, and he chooses to play a spade rather than lead away from his queen of clubs.

Declarer takes the trick on the board and breathes a sigh of relief that West did not continue with dia-

WITH SAD ENDING NOVEMBER TALE

Kids, whether good or bad you be surround this here paternal knee, and listen while I tell about a time — I missremember the year, but it was in November, that curious things befall.

About that time I knew a dame — or chap, it all works out the same — all dewy-eyed and pearly, who in her morning paper read an advertisement, "Do", it said, "Your Christmas shopping early."

Now this dear little bit of fluff was scarcely old or wise enough to spot this worn cliché, so offering thanks for honest tips she rubbed up her virgin lips and started on her way.

She searched for presents near and far — had luncheon in the Dairy Bar — and like a glowing tracer, she spread unmitigated joy. One fuzzy-chinned delivery boy attempted to embrace her. At last the sun was getting low and tootsie child knew she must go back to her dormitory. No sooner had the shiny door concealed that trim posterior — you won't believe this story — than on Olympus Zeus laid hold upon his sizzling thunder bolt, and with a dreadful cry, "In centuries I can't remember a Christmas shopper in November!", he let the darn thing fly.

THE MORAL — Must you go away? — is: Early Christmas shoppers may become celestial fuel. And yet, we'd say, the chance of pain is small compared with what you'd gain. We'll take a chance if you will.
