Tomorrow's Game Has Some Interesting Facets

Tomorrow's football battle between the Universities of North and South Carolina in Kenan Stadium should be an interesting one from several viewpoints.

First, will Jim Tatum be able to avenge a 14-0 defeat suffered at the hand of his protegee Warren Giese in Columbia one year ago? Giese played under Tatum at Maryland and later assisted him there. The Tar Heel mentor would like to even the score with Giese and there's no better time than tomorrow.

Secondly, this game could mark the turning point in the season for the two clubs. The Gamecocks will bring a 3-3 record into the contest with Virginia, N. C. State and Wake Forest remaining on the schedule. A victory over the Tar Heels would give the Gamecocks a good chance of at least a 5-5 mark on the season, and perhaps even better.

Likewise, the Tar Heels need a victory to enhance their chances of a "break even" or "winning" season. The Tar Heels have a 4-3 mark and games with Duke and Virginia remaining.

The Gamecocks will also offer an opportunity for Tatum to test his reserve power. Injuries to several key players have weakened the Tar Heels considerably. This should give the Carolina secondary manpower a test.

Another interesting sidelight will be the effect which television will have on attendance. With the game being aired from Baltimore to Miami, via television, chances are the crowd will be greatly reduced.

Physical Status Is Hard To Discern

The actual physical strength of the Tar Heels is as hard to predict as a grade on a multiple choice quiz. First it seemed that the Tar Heels would be without the services of halfbacks Jim Schuler, Emil DeCantis and Don Coker. Now it seems that the trio might be ready to go tomorrow.

Tatum, however, probably will not use anybody who is not in almost top physical condition. After the Gamecocks, the Tar Heels have a week layoff before going against Duke and it would be foolish to risk re-injuries against SC.

It is almost definite now that center Ron Koes will miss the South Carolina game since Tatum has moved senior end Jim Jones over to the pivot spot. Behind Jones will be Bill Hardison and Dick Need.

Students To Be Represented On Committee

The students will be represented on the Coaches Committee from now on.

At the monthly meeting of the Athletic Council Wednesday night, a proposal by Student Body Presy. Sonny Evans was approved to have student representation on the Coaches Committee whose function it is to interview, review, approve and recommend new coaching contracts and new coaches.

"We all feel very gratified and pleased with the decision of the Athletic Council to allow students to participate in the selection of our coaches," Evans said. "We feel that it is important to have all three groups (faculty, alumni and students) represented on the committees appointed by the Athletic Council."

Evans said that the student representative would be chosen from the student members of the Athletic Council which includes himself, Daley Goff (Monogram Club President) and Wayne Bishop, Carolina Athletic Assn. head.

Sports Calendar, Social Calendar Conflict

It's a shame that Germans weekend should fall on the busiest weekend of the season on the Carolina sports front, or vice versa.

This afternoon, the Carolina soccer team plays Maryland in a very important ACC match, the freshman football team makes its first appearance on home soil against Virginia and both the varsity and freshman track team will be in action at home.

Naturally, the crowd at all of these events will be sparse. The concert is scheduled for 3:30, and this makes it practically impossible to divide one's time.

Incidentally, all of the aforementioned teams are doing well this season. The Carolina minor sports program is always strong, although support is, more often than not, very poor.

How's This For An Average?

There's a good chance that South Carolina halfback Haywood King holds a sizable lead in the "kickoff returns" department in the nation. His average is 82.0—but there's one hitch, he's only made one return.

The Wake Forest Deacons should finally win themselves a ball game this weekend when they entertain Virginia Tech in Winston-Salem. This will be the seventh bid to crack the win column for the Deacs.

Buck Freeman, Frank McGuire's able basketball assistant, will be on hand at Fort Bragg Sunday for a service basketball clinic. McGuire was scheduled to appear but had to forego the clinic due to other commitments.

South Carolina backers are singing the praises of a Fayetteville native named Corky Gaines. Gaines is a defensive middle guard who SC Sports Publicist, Bob Isbell says "is most often seen in the presence of opposing backfieldmen on a Saturday afternoon."

Barnstorming Tour Set

New York Yankees will barnstorm home from spring training with the Philadelphia Phillies in April in a departure from usual Yankee policy.

Normally the Yanks play several minor league clubs in their home parks on the way back to New York from their St. Petersburg, Fla. base.

With the departure of the Dodgers for Los Angeles, the Phillies will take over the usual home-and-home weekend series before opening day. The Phils will play at Yankee Stadium Saturday, April 12 and the Yanks will visit Philadelphia Sunday, April 13. The Yanks will close their training camp April 4 and will start their tour with manager Mayo

Quigg Injured

Carolina basketball center Joe Quigg sustained a knee injury last night in an intra-squad scrimmage in Woolen Gym. Quigg was shouldered from the court. Trainer John Lacey said right after the incident that it was too early to determine the extent of the injury.

A crowd of about 500 saw last year's varsity defeat the current sophomores 83-82 in a thriller.

Booters In Big Battle Here Today

By JIM PURKS

The Carolina varsity soccer team will face its biggest test of the year here today when it encounters always-powerful Maryland at 3 p. m. on Fetzer Field.

When the Tar Heels take the field against the Terps they will be facing a team whose predecessors have set a torrid pace in the record books.

Maryland has won the soccer championship in the Atlantic Coast Conference ever since the conference was started. Even more impressive, a University of Maryland soccer team has never been beaten or tied by an ACC rival.

NOT DAZZLED

Coach Marvin Allen's Tar Heels, however, are up for today's game, and are not to be dazzled by the record books. Allen's squad has been waiting for this game since practice started on Monday, September 16.

The spirit of the team was exemplified by one member of the team who had printed and posted early in the year a painted sign in the team's locker section saying, "This is the year to beat Maryland!"

FULL STRENGTH

Currently holding a 2-1 record, the Tar Heels will be at full strength for today's clash with the Terps.

Defensively, the team has been boosted by the return of right fullback Dave Corkey, who has been out of the lineup for over three due to illness. Corkey was able to play in Tuesday's 2-0 win over Davidson College and was one big reason for the team's fine defensive showing.

Ted Youhana, who was injured in the left leg last week, also was back in the lineup Tuesday at left fullback.

SWITCH PAID OFF

A defensive switch paid off for Coach Allen in the Davidson game, and he'll try the same for the Maryland contest. Allen switched Bob Borden, who had been center fullback in the team's first two games, to the left halfback slot.

In the vacated center fullback position, Allen put his sturdy sophomore star, Hugh Goodman. Both Borden and Goodman excelled at their new positions.

The team's hustling captain, Bill Blair, will be at the right halfback position and work along with Borden. Backing the defense up will be goalie Jim Rattay, who has gained two shutouts in the three games played so far this year.

Sophomore whiz Mike Thompson, playing the center forward position, will lead the Tar Heels' forward line against Maryland. Thompson is the team's leading scorer, booting in six of the team's total of eight goals.

Along with Thompson will be inside Ted Smith and Tom Rand. Smith scored the other two goals for the Tar Heels in September's 3-0 victory over Roanoke College.

Duke - Navy Battle Billed A 'Humdinger'

BALTIMORE, Nov. 7 (AP) — You can take the rival coaches' words for it that the Navy-Duke football game Saturday in Memorial Stadium should be a humdinger.

Each coach tabs the other team as the best opponent so far this season.

"Duke is by far the best team to face us," says Coach Eddie Erdelatz, whose Navy team knocked off undefeated Notre Dame last Saturday, 20-6. "They're way ahead on talent."

"We thought before the season that Navy would be the best team in the country and think it's not far from that now," replies Coach Bill Murray of Duke, beaten for the first time by Georgia Tech last week.

There should be no slackening of pace throughout the game since the rival coaches harp on the other's depth in personnel. And that the other fellows "boys are the biggest."

Going by the listed weights, the two lines should be on an even keel with each averaging 207 pounds. Duke will have a decided edge in backfield weights, particularly if Navy halfback Ned Oldham's sore leg keeps him on the bench for the second straight week.

Ronnie Bernece will start instead and he weighs only 146 pounds. And if Dick Dagampat is able to start, the Navy fullback will weigh only 168 pounds.

TAR BABY QUARTERBACK — Ex-Durham High School star, Russ Hollers will be calling signals for the Carolina Tar Babies when they go against the Virginia freshmen this afternoon in Kenan Stadium. Hollers has been the number one QB all season.

Runners In Three-Team Meet This Afternoon

By DAVE WIBLE

Well on the road towards repeating as ACC champions Carolina's undefeated cross country team will go after victories number five and six this afternoon when it plays host to the harrier squads of South Carolina and Wake Forest at 4 p. m. on Fetzer Field.

The freshman squads of Carolina and Wake Forest will compete in a dual meet at the same time.

The Tar Heels have had victories over Clemson, Virginia, in dual meets; and Duke and Tennessee in a triangular meet, so far this season, while sickness forced meets with Maryland and Wake Forest to be canceled.

Probably the greatest competition for the Tar Heels will be from Bill Medlin, of the Deacs, and Billy Latham of the Gamecock. Medlin has been the pace setter for Wake Forest all season and Latham, who finished eighth in the ACC last year, has held the same honor for South Carolina.

The Carolina squad will field one of the top distance running quartets in the nation. Wayne Bishop, who set a new course record at Clemson this year, has led the pack followed by the team's captain Everett Whatley, middle-distance star Dave Scurlock, and up and coming sophomore Cowles Luptert. These four have seen few heels in ACC competition this year.

Rounding out that Carolina squad will be Alex Coffin, Jim Hunter, Doug Henderson, and Fick Arthur. Sophomore Joe Friedberg is still out of competition with a sprained ankle.

The squad has had its progress hampered for the past month by flu, but it looks like that is all over now and that they can resume work.

The freshmen will start about ten minutes before the varsity and running a shorter course will finish shortly after the varsity gets underway.

FIRST HOME GAME:

Freshman Gridders Play Host To Virginia Today

By ROSTY HAMMON

Today, for the first time this season, the Carolina freshman football team will play before the home crowd in Kenan Stadium against the Virginia frosh in a game scheduled for 2 p. m.

The Tar Babies will be out to improve on their 2-1 record and according to Coach Bud Carson, the team will go into the game better prepared than it has been all season. Probably the only doubtful position today will be fullback, where the top three men are hampered by injuries.

Alex Rice has an injured knee, Frank Riggs is bothered by a knee injury, and Carroll Carpenter sustained a shoulder injury in scrimmage this week. This will probably place the starting position on the shoulders of Jim Graham or Dick Detanna.

Otherwise, the team is generally sound after the flu epidemic nearly wrecked the squad two weeks ago.

LOST TO WOLFLETS

For the season, the Tar Babies have whipped Maryland 14-7 in the season opener, lost to State 33-19 in the midst of the flu epidemic, and bounced back to edge Wake Forest 14-13.

Defense won the Maryland game for the Tar Babies, as again and again they stopped the Terps inside their own 20, then broke the game open with long downfield drives. State's veteran-loaded team just walked over the flu weakened Tar Babies. An extra point decided the most thrilling game of the year, as the Tar Heel yearlings nudged the Baby Deacs 14-13.

DARK HORSE TEAM

Virginia's freshman are reportedly a darkhorse team and by the only comparison of scores, dropped a 20-6 verdict to N. C. State. Coach Carson thought the Cavalier frosh played an inspired game against the Wolflets and the Tar Baby coach looks for plenty of trouble.

The probable starting lineup for the Tar Babies includes Mike Green-day and Bob Campbell at the ends, Bill Crabtree and Jim Shumate at the tackles, Rip Hawkins and Jim Joy at the guards, and Tom Cabe at center. In the backfield, Russ

Hollers will start at quarterback, Sonny Folkemer and Lenny Beck at the halves and Jim Graham or Dick Detanna at fullback.
