

Booters Drop 2-1 Decision To N. C. State In Final Game

Assistant Coach Barclay Says He Likes Things That Way

By JAKE WADE

The Carolina-Duke football series has run its course during much of its history, with first one team and then the other holding the upper hand over lengthy periods.

For the past seven years it has been the glory road for Duke, the "loomy" one for Carolina. The Blue Devils have won seven in a row, immediately preceding was the Charlie Justice era for the Tar Heels. That exciting young man named Justice led his team to four straight over Duke. And this came on top of our four straight for the Blue Devils.

In the nineteen-thirties the series never became lopsided. Longest winning streak in the entire series, dating from way back yonder when Duke was Trinity and coming over into the days when Trinity first became Duke, the Tar Heels managed eight in succession.

WADE WON

Wallace Wade's 1932 team brought Duke its first win after another scoreless tie in 1931, his first year at the Blue Devil helm. Then followed years that ran with two Duke wins against one for the Tar Heels until war-time and Eddie Cameron took over. Cameron's first Duke team tied the Tar Heels at 13-13 but then won four in a row (including two in 1943) before Wade returned from the service.

Then it was Carolina for four straight years in the so-called "Justice Era" which was climaxed by the 21-20 Carolina win in 1949 when the game was stopped too early but then resumed for Duke to try a final field goal.

Wade retired after the 1950 win and then started Murray's long string of wins.

So, as this game comes up, Duke followers feel that they still need at least one more win to even up for that long Carolina string back in the '20's.

Jones At Old Spot

Jim Jones, senior from Greensboro, who was an All-ACC guard last year but has been playing end this season, has no gone back to his old high school position, center. Shift was necessary because of ailing Tar Heel pivotmen.

CAROLINA CARAVAN NOTES

would have to be blind not to see that they are a powerhouse, superbly blessed with talent and determination.

The Tar Heels, at the outset, were not regarded as a team even in the class of Duke. But their season, to change the complexion a bit, has been enlivened by fine victories over Clemson, Navy, Miami, Wake Forest and South Carolina. Four of those Carolina foes were favorites. Nobody else has beaten Navy.

And the Tar Heels have been an intriguing, exciting team, capable of surprises when least expected. Some of them happy surprises, some unhappy.

LOVES HIS WORK—If ever a man loved his work, it's George Barclay as an assistant coach on Jim Tatum's Carolina staff this season.

George works with the defensive forces and there is a light in his eyes and a spring in his leg every minute he's coaching on the field. Previously, as a head coach, George never showed such exuberance. His job then, with its higher responsibility, weighed heavily on his shoulders. Normally a pleasant and amiable person, there were times when he seemed gloomy and unhappy.

Now he has a prosperous business down town, and he doesn't have to worry about his future. Coaching is a relaxation. No man on Tatum's staff puts more into it. He coaches with a song in his heart, but he coaches to win, and he is as serious as the next one.

POPULAR CITIZEN—Barclay, certainly one of Chapel Hill's most popular citizens and with a great, abiding love for the community and the University, his alma mater, captained the 1934 Carolina team. A terrific guard, who played with the same zest and verve that is shown now in his coaching as an assistant, George was Carolina's first All American player. During his playing career, he learned of the rivalry with Duke.

His 1934 team won one of Carolina's most exciting victories over the Blue Devils, 7-0. That was the game in which Don Jackson rifled two dramatic passes to Dick Buck that netted the winning touchdown. The year before both Barclay and Tatum had participated in a smashing 21-0 triumph over the Blue Devils.

The two, happily, had departed in 1935 when Carolina had one of its blackest days against the Blue Devils, bowing by 25-0 in a startling upset that derailed Carolina's Rose Bowl bound train.

Goal In Fourth Period Gives UNC 2-3-2 Mark

By JIM PURKS

Raleigh, Nov. 20—An alert N. C. State soccer team scored a decisive goal early in the fourth period to defeat Carolina's Tar Heels 2-1 in an ACC meet held here today. The meet was the season's finale for both squads.

Center forward Green Alber provided the margin of victory for the Wolfpack booters when he ripped the net cords with a successful boot from about 18 yards out only moments after the final quarter had begun.

The goal was Alber's second point-producing effort of the day. Midway the second period, he had tallied his first marker from about the same distance out to knot the count at 1-1 after the Tar Heels had drawn first blood.

UNC's lone score came early in the second quarter when Coleman Barks, a stellar performer all year, took a perfect pass from Curt Champlain and powered a kick past the defending NCS goalie. After Bark's successful boot from close in, the Tar Heels found the State defense impenetrable and had few real scoring opportunities during the remainder of the contest.

The defeat left Coach Marvin Allen's charges with a 2-3-2 record for the season, yet Carolina was looking for its first win of the season in conference competition in the NCS battle. The boys in blue had

Devils Can Remember Some Lean Years, Too

By TED MANN

DURHAM—You hear a lot of talk as the annual Duke-Carolina football classic comes up about the Tar Heels' "seven long years of lean" but old-timers around Duke can remember when it was "eight long years of lean and two scoreless ties" before the Blue Devils could win.

That string of Tar Heel wins started when the two teams resumed relations back in 1922 after Trinity's 25-year football ban and the Duke people got to the place where they figured that any team wearing Carolina blue uniforms could take the field and beat the Blue Devils.

SOME EMBARRASSED

Some of those defeats were embarrassing, indeed. Carolina started off with a 20-0 win in 1922, by 14-6 in 1923 and by 6-0 in 1924 but then they took off the brakes in 1925 and won 41-0.

In 1926 it was 6-0 and in 1927 with Duke favored, the Tar Heels won going away 18-0. Duke again was favored in 1928 and again the Tar Heels won 14-7. In 1929, Carolina pulled out the stops again and rolled and rolled and rolled—48-7.

Raleigh Group Will Oppose Tourney Move

RALEIGH—Raleigh civic leaders today prepared to oppose a Charlotte bid to have the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament played in the ultra-modern Charlotte Coliseum, Everett Case, State basketball coach, warned yesterday that the capital city is in danger of losing the tournament.

He urged civic leaders to make their stand before the ACC committee stages an early December meeting in Greensboro.

Chamber of Commerce President G. Akers Moore Jr. promised the chamber will "help every way possible."

"I will contact Everett today to find out how we can help," he said. "perhaps we ought to have a delegation appear before the committee."
