Carolina And Duke Renew Rivalry In Big Clash At Durham This Afternoon

44,000 Will Watch Traditional Battle

By BILL KING

Rivalry renewal is the order of the day and this afternoon in Duke Stadium two of the nation's oldest and most exciting rivals will clash for the 15th time in a series which dates back to 1888.

It's the Carolina Tar Heels, rested and refreshed after a week's layoff versus the Duke Blue Devils, anxious to clear up any doubt about their right to the Orange Bowl representation. A crowd of about 44,000, largest at Duke since 1951, is expected to be on hand for the 2 o'clock kickoff.

This traditional contest will mean a great deal to both clubs aside from the usual exuberance when one or the other is able to conquer its rival of all rivals. For Duke, it means an almost positive bid to meet Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl. For Jim Tatum's club it not only will insure a winning season, but also it is believed in some quarters that a win today and a victory over Virginia might give Carolina the Orange or some other bowl bid.

But the fact remains that this is a must game for both clubs, as it always is regardless of the season record of the two clubs. This is the game that has to be won to make the season complete. The winner gets the symbolic victory bell, the most prized of all Carolina-Duke football souvenirs.

That victory bell, incidentally, has been in the hands of the Devils for seven straight years and the only time the Tar Heels have seen it is at the ball game and

'BEAT DOOK' PARADE—Typical of the many lovely and humorous floats seen in yesterday's "Beat Dook" parade is the Pika float at the top which features Queen Nan Schaeffer and her court of six, and the one below, which requests that the victory bell be freed "from Blue Devil Hell."

Pika 'Beat Dook' Parade Goes On Despite The Rainy Weather

By PARKER MADDREY

The drizzling rain did not dampen Carolina spirits as hundreds turned out to watch the annual "Beat Dook" Parade yesterday afternoon.

Coeds adorning the floats, dressed from evening gowns to beach attire, managed to keep smiling though perplexed that the drizzle was unraveling their hair.

Reasonable facsimiles of 'Dook' Blue Devils were put in a meat grinder, a clothes wringer, two guillotines and were hanged and buried.

Mangum Dorm's float took first place in the Dorm Men's division. The float was a funeral procession consisting of two robed priests, followed by pallbearers who carried a deceased Blue Devil in an open casket. Dressed in black, a choir sang mournfully "Aye Zigga Zoom-ba!"

ADPi won first place in the sorority division. Its float, entitled "Carolina Carrousel," featured over a dozen coeds clad in cheerleader skirts and sweaters of both Duke and Carolina. Duke girls were twirled in a merry-go-round and a barker sold "Tatum Tickets" for the ride. Phi Delta took first place in the fraternity division. Its float featured a man-size meat grinder with a Blue Devil inside shrieking in agony.

Judges of the floats were James H. Davis, proprietor of University

Cardboard Will Perform On Television

Cardboard stunts especially designed and colored for television, will be performed at today's regionally-televized football game with Duke.

Contrasting colors will be used so that the designs will show up well. The slate of the stunts will center around the "Beat Dook" and holiday themes.

One flip series will show a Carolina player defeat Duke player for a touchdown. To insure continued friendship between the two student bodies, a "Carolina gentleman" shakes the hand of a friend from Duke.

Thanksgiving will be saluted by a reminder of its date, Nov. 28, and the cardboard representation of a brightly-colored turkey.

Fans across the field will be urged to buy Christmas seals and will receive a "Jingle Bells" Christmas greeting.

Cardboard President Pete Evans urged the students to pay careful attention to their instruction cards and the stunt called to insure accurate pictures.

The Cardboard is very pleased, according to officials, with the cooperation of everyone in making this a successful season. Its long-range planning committee is now at work making plans for an even better organization and half-time show next year.

Florist: Dean of Women Katherine Carmichael; Sam McGill, assistant dean of student affairs; and A. E. Cameron, math professor.

ROTC drill teams and bands did not participate because of rain.

"Beat Dook" Queen Nan Schaeffer rode on the Pika float. She was protected from the rain by sitting under a replica of the Old Well.

Other floats were two guillotines by SAE and Pi Kaps, a whale that exhaled smoke from his spout ("Swallow Dook") by Sigma Nu, two Blue Devils with heads in stocks by Phi Deltas, Miami Beach setting by TEP, Blue Devil going through the wringer by KA, and a dozen coeds dressed as hornets by Pi Phi.

The Tri Delta's weather vane house ironically had a fair coed out in the drizzle and the Blue Devil inside.

What are the real implications of the recall election for editor of the Daily Tar Heel? How important is it to a free student publication? Is it just another election?

Do you feel, sir, that freedom is involved in the recall? "Certainly, but what is freedom? We hear a lot about Freedom of Worship, Freedom from Want, and so forth. One we don't hear about often is the Freedom from Harassment. Would it not seem the wiser course to employ the recall only after having exhausted all other means of dealing with the problem?"

Do you feel that an editor should be allowed to speak out on controversial issues even if the student body disagrees?

"If an editor is courageous, he is going to speak out on controversial issues about which he is sensitive."

"The students might do well to reflect upon why it is that the President of the United States is elected to serve for a term of four years."

CHESHIRE, England, Nov. 22 (AP)—British scientists manning the world's largest radio telescope reported late tonight that the rocket carrier for the first Soviet satellite is easing back into the earth's atmosphere. They said it may come down within hours.

Editorial Meeting Is Announced

Candidate for editor Doug Eisele announced yesterday that there will be an "Eisele for Editor" rally Monday night at 7:30 in Gerrard Hall. He said the purpose of this rally was to present to students "the true issues of the recall." Eisele will address the rally.

Meanwhile, candidate Paul Rule, who earlier expressed "disappointment" over Eisele's refusal to accept his challenge to a public debate Monday night, said that the time of the verbal duel would be postponed until 9:30 so that it would not conflict with the "Eisele for Editor" rally.

"Mr. Bass and I have both agreed to change the time for the discussion," Rule said.

Eisele was unavailable for comment on Rule's postponement of the debate and his campaign manager, Syd Shuford, said he could make no comment as to whether Eisele would accept Rule's challenge.

"This is a decision Eisele will have to make for himself," Shuford said.

Earlier Eisele said he had refused Rule's challenge because of the possibility of the rally Monday night. "At the time of his proposal," he said, "plans had not been completed and I could make no statement concerning my plans for that evening."

He added that there will be no debate at the "Eisele for Editor" rally but rather the meeting would be organized along pep rally lines.

The probable starting lineup:

UNC	Pos.	Duke
Payne	LE	Hurn
Pell	LT	Topping
Swearingen	LG	Hord
Jones	C	Byrd
Bleazer	RG	Guy
Steele	RT	Recinella
Turlington	RE	Padgett
Cummings	Q	Brodhead
DeCantis	LH	Carlton
Goff	RH	Dutrow
Gaca	F	McElhaney

occasionally when a group of students go over and "lift" it for a night.

So today Jim Tatum's warriors will be gunning to gain back the prestige which Tar Heel teams have lost since 1950 when the Blue Devils started their dominance over the Tar Heels. A win today would also close the gap in the all-time series to 22-18-3 in favor of the Durham contingents.

The always tough Blue Devils should find this Carolina club a much more formidable one than it has faced in the past seven years. The Tar Heels, 5-3 for the season, have been tough all year with victories over Navy, South Carolina, Clemson, Miami and

Miss Diana Johnson Winner Of Yack Beauty Contest Title

By BEN TAYLOR

If you've never witnessed the paraphernalia and splendor of a beauty pageant, then you missed the best chance you'll ever have Thursday night in Memorial when Yackety-Yack Queen Diana Johnson was crowned from a field of 108 lovelies.

There's nothing quite like sitting on the very edge of the middle seat of the front row and witnessing a parade of beautiful girls. Especially when they're all Tar Heels, true-blue or adopted.

Beautiful Miss Elaine Herndon, currently reigning as Miss North Carolina, Harvey Humphrey, Lt. U. S. Navy, and Lawrence Wolford, chief photographer of the Raleigh News and Observer served as the judges for the annual event. They were able to narrow down the field of 108 down to 15 in less than two hours.

Mellow music by Bill Byers and his quartet, and Pee Wee Patton and a combo intensified the excitement at intervals while the judges smilingly pondered their final decisions.

Diana, a vivacious junior from Asheboro, was sponsored by Lambda Chi Alpha. She is an English major and a transfer from East Carolina College. While there she was an Honorary Colonel of the AFROTC.

Ty Boyd, radio announcer of WCHL, served as master of ceremonies, announcing the young ladies. They appeared from behind the blue felt curtains, walked slowly down to the imitation grass carpet, turned around to give the audience and judges a full view, walked straight across in front of the stage, and returned behind the curtains, ushered out by a round of applause from the audience... and always the enchanting smile.

Bill Cheshire To Head Campaign For Neil Bass

Editor Neil Bass announced yesterday that Bill Cheshire, senior journalism student, will manage his campaign for re-election in the recall vote for editor of the Daily Tar Heel.

Cheshire, a Korean War veteran and member of the Zeta Psi Fraternity, will assume complete control over the entire campaign program and will operate apart from any connection with the Daily Tar Heel or its editor.

Commenting on Cheshire's acceptance, Editor Bass said: "His willingness to handle my campaign demonstrates a tremendously admirable ability to overcome fraternal and personal ties, and to stand up forthrightly for the issue involved—freedom of editorial expression." (Cheshire is a fraternity brother of candidate Doug Eisele.)

In accepting the appointment, Cheshire pointed out that he thought the issue involved in the recall transcended his personal regard for either of the opposing candidates.

He added that he had hoped at the start that the issues and personal qualifications involved in the recall would be kept clear of any "purely political" maneuvering.

"Now, however," he said, "I think it safe to say that the campaign has taken on such political overtones that an organized election campaign has become necessary in order to bring the obvious and unclouded issues before the public."

He made it clear, however, that he did not entertain any personal animosities toward either of the two candidates opposing Bass.

"I have only the greatest regard for both the young men seeking the editorship," he said. "It is a combination of the fundamental issue involved in the impeachment of the editor and the underhanded political intrigues involving those high in student government that give me pause."

Cheshire said that it was "inconceivable" to him that the students would "condone by implication the actions of these trusted but untrustworthy political schemers by their votes in Tuesday's election."

He added that "if the recall succeeds, student democracy will have proved itself incompetent on the campus of the South's greatest university."

Methodist Services

Bob Johnson, chaplain to Methodist students, will deliver the sermon at University Methodist Church at the 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. services. His topic will be "Ideas Have Consequences."

At the Wesley Foundation supper program, Dr. Arnold Nash of the Dept. of Religion, will participate in a question and answer session at 5:45 p.m.

Cavalcade Tickets

Tickets to the Carolina Cavalcade of Talent Tuesday are now on sale at the Y and at GM Information Desk.

Crucial Implications Of Recall Election Aired In Interview With P. K. Sinclair

Mr. Sinclair, do you feel that the editor should attempt to represent student opinion on these issues?

"If the students merely want a reflection of their own views, then there is really no need for a newspaper editor."

"This brings us to the question of what constitutes the editor's function. Is he merely a functionary? Must he take a statistical poll of student opinion before he can make statements on controversial issues about which there may exist student disagreement?"

"If this is so, then the editor could only express views on which at least 51 per cent of the student population agrees."

"I will repeat: if an editor is courageous, he is going to speak out on controversial issues about which he is sensitive."

You spoke of Freedom from Harassment. What exactly do you mean by that?

"I mean this: the freedom to be let alone; to be allowed to do a good job without being constantly harassed. This type of harassment is equally injurious to editors, professors and judges."

"I am shocked by the ease with which people signed the recall petition. People should be made much more aware of the seriousness of the recall principle; they should realize that it should only be used sparingly."

"Finally, I shall say this. If the present editor is defeated, at least he can hold his head up in the knowledge that he has made his stand. I would like to add, however, that I am completely non-partisan. I support no candidate."
