

Tar Heel Players Want This Game; Think They Can Get It With Hustle

By BILL KING

Carolina-Duke, a game that means so much to so many. This is the big one for both schools and it always has been since the inception of the Carolina-Trinity (later Duke) acquaintance way back in 1888.

How do the Tar Heels themselves feel about this ball game? What do they think of their chances against the powerful Blue Devils who many believe are destined for an Orange Bowl appointment against Oklahoma come New Year's Day?

In order to get an idea about the feelings of the players before the big game, we stopped several of them on the way to classes, in Y-Court and various other places on the campus yesterday. Here are a few of their comments.

Buddy Payne (captain and left end)—"We couldn't be readier for a ball game, technically or otherwise. If we're not up mentally for this one, then we haven't been up for a game this season. There's no reason for losing to Duke."

Ed Furjanic (guard)—"Everybody wants this one real bad. We've all been hustling and I believe we'll win it."

Daley Goff (halfback)—"Everybody really wants to win. We'll give it our very best."

Giles Gaca (fullback)—"We won't be ashamed of our efforts after the game. We'll play our very best, and if that's enough we'll win it."

Ralph Steele (guard)—"If we play heads up ball, we can win this game. We really want it."

Earl Ray (Moose) Butler (tackle)—"There has been great hustle all week. Everybody will be ready and I think we're gonna win it."

Jack Lineberger (guard who is out for the season due to a neck injury)—"I hope and believe we'll beat the heck out of Duke."

Irish Win Will Mean Great Year

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 22 (AP)—Notre Dame's Fighting Irish can tie a blue ribbon around a fine football comeback tomorrow by upsetting Iowa.

The game will be played before a sellout 57,000 and will be seen regionally on television, via NBC, beginning at 2 p. m. EST.

The Iowa Hawkeyes last Saturday had their Big Ten title defense caved in by Ohio State, 17-13. At the same time, Notre Dame's revived Irish fashioned a resounding upset of Oklahoma, 7-0, snapping the Sooners' 47-game winning streak.

and, by spelling the Hawkeyes, would be a distinct favorite in its final two games, against Southern California and Southern Methodist. Thus, it's possible the Irish can finish with 8-2, a complete turnaround from last year's 2-8 mark, the worst season in Notre Dame history.

Iowa, rated a seven-point choice over Notre Dame, will be closing a season that found the Hawkeyes finishing third in the Big Ten with a 4-1-1 record. Iowa's overall mark is 6-1-1.

Distracting Iowa's preparations for the Notre Dame finale this week were indications that Coach Forest

Evashevski may be on the verge of quitting the Hawkeye school. Evashevski, who in six seasons built the erstwhile lowly Hawkeyes into a Big Ten power, has seven years remaining on a 10-year contract.

DOUBLE TROUBLE FOR DOOK: Carolina's starting tackles, Phil Blazer (left) and Stu Pell could give the Duke Blue Devils a hard time this afternoon. Pell, a senior from Lyken, Pa., has been a first-stringer for several games and Blazer, the extra point specialist, is an almost sure bet for all-conference honors.

This Is Big Day For Carolina-Duke Fans

By 4:30 this afternoon there will be celebrating in one camp and remorse in the other. This is one of those games when nobody wants to settle for a tie. Victory is the only thing. This is Carolina-Duke Day.

It's very refreshing to watch the two schools in preparation for the game. There is that tense air of excitement and anxiety which is not present at any other time during the season. Everybody knows that "this is it." Regardless of what has or has not been done during the season, this is the game that counts most in the hearts of Carolina and Duke students and fans.

Little can be attributed to pressure because that is an element which is equitable on both sides. The players from both schools realize that this is the one game their fans want above all others. This is the type of thing which makes football the exciting game that it is.

Should Provide Plenty Of Excitement For Fans

Today, we look for a great ball game. It seems to us that the two teams involved will be trying harder than at any other time this season, and nobody can claim that one is far superior to the other.

The Tar Heels will probably do most of the passing and consequently should give the fans more color. Duke will, in all probability, play its usual style of possession ball, working the ball along the ground and trying to keep Tar Heel hands off.

Most of Carolina's big gains will probably come through the air, while the Blue Devils will play for the home run—when one of their fleet-footed backs breaks into the open. This is the thing which the Tar Heels will have to guard against meticulously because the Dooks are loaded with backfield talent.

Chances are that both coaches have contrived a little something special to spring on their opponent when the time is right. Both know the importance of this game and both will be all out to claim the Victory Bell.

Sportsmanship Should Be Kept In Mind

One of the sterling qualities about the Carolina-Duke rivalry is that it has always been noted for its sportsmanship. Not that there hasn't been some vandalism through the years, but, on the whole, it has not been half as flagrant as some other schools.

This is good. There is absolutely nothing wrong with so-called "bitterness" between two schools as long as it goes no further than desire for athletic superiority. But when this "bitterness" becomes unrestrained and develops into animosity, something should be done.

We can reasonably anticipate no "incidents" to occur in Duke Stadium this afternoon. The players of the two schools want this game badly, but they also want it to be as clean as possible. We the students should desire the same. Let's make this an afternoon of good, clean rivalry, regardless of the outcome.

We Predict: Tigers, Terps And N. C. State

Very quickly, here's the way we see the other ACC games.

Winless Wake Forest takes on powerful Clemson and this should prove an insuperable task for the Deacs. Clemson 28, Wake Forest 7. N. C. State moves in against a hot and cold South Carolina team and could have some trouble. Nevertheless, State 20, South Carolina 7.

Maryland will entertain Virginia at College Park. The Terps have been playing over their heads. This one should be easier. Maryland 26, Virginia 13.

Much At Stake In Big Battle In Duke Stadium

Navy. They've lost to N. C. State, Tennessee and Maryland.

Carolina's biggest headache today lies in stopping the Blue Devils' vaunted and powerful running attack featuring a tremendous collection of hard-running backs and a fine offensive line to lay the groundwork for the boys in the backfield.

The Blue Devils will probably show great respect for the Tar Heel's pass defense which is number one in the Atlantic Coast Conference and will probably concentrate its efforts in moving the ball along the ground.

But the Tar Heel's stout front wall has sparkled on occasions this season and should be at its best, incentive wise, against the Blue Devils. Duke could find the going tough if the Tar Heels are "right."

Offensively, the Tar Heels will probably "mix it up" with boys like Daley Goff, Jim Schuler, Giles Gaca, Emil DeCantis and perhaps Don Coker taking over the ground attack, and sophomore quarterback Jack Cummings doing most of the aerial duties.

Cummings, the passing wizard of the Tar Heels, can be counted upon to do a lot of passing if the weather allows. And he'll be backed by another sophomore signal-caller Nelson Lowe, playing his second varsity game today. Lowe was taken off the holdout list when junior quarterback Curt Hathaway suffered a broken arm against South Carolina.

Thus this should be a battle to the finish with both teams going all out to clinch the game which both schools want more than any other during the season. This could be the closest Carolina-Duke contest in many years as both clubs are in a banner season.

The Tar Heel starting lineup will probably have captain Buddy Payne and Mac Turlington at the ends, Stu Pell and Phil Blazer at tackles, Fred Swearingen and Ralph Steele at guards, and Jim Jones at center.

In the backfield, Tatum will probably start with Daley Goff and Emil DeCantis at the halfback posts, Giles Gaca at fullback and Cummings at quarterback.

McGuire Signs For Five More Years At UNC

UNC Athletic Director Chuck Erickson announced yesterday that Head Basketball Coach Frank McGuire has signed a five year contract with the University to become effective on June 30, the day the present three-year contract expires.

No salary was disclosed when the announcement was made but Erickson did say that the terms were completely agreeable to both McGuire and the University.

The University's Board of Trustees had approved the contract at their November 11th meeting, but it was not known whether or not McGuire would accept the contract until yesterday.

The signing of the contract is good news to basketball fans at Carolina and all over the State. McGuire coached the Tar Heels to be National Champions last season and his decision to stay in Chapel Hill will mean that there will be good basketball at Carolina for at least the next six years.
