Carolina Cavalcade Of Talent Slated Tonight In Memorial

By MARY MOORE MASON

Pee Wee flashed a gay and dazzling smile at me as Cecil's fingers moved idly and expertly over the keys of the old piano.

"Yes," she said, "we have a record coming out, one that Cecil wrote for 'Thieves' Holiday.' Sound and Fury's musical last year. The name of the record is 'Lonesome Train.'

I remembered Pee Wee Batten and Cecil Hartsoe in last year's 'Sound and Fury.' You could hear a pin drop in Memorial Hall as Pee Wee sang the haunting blues ballad with Cecil's piano accompaniment coming forth softly from the orchestra pit.

Pee Wee and Cecil, both now under contract with Colonial Record, will be featured stars of the Cavalcade of Talent which will take place tonight at 8 o'clock in Memorial Hall. Pee Wee, the star of numerous campus shows, was the winner of last year's talent show. Her fame spread abroad last year when she recorded a disc entitled 'My Big Brother's Friends.'

A 22-year-old special student from Mount Gilead, Pee Wee spent one summer on a tour of Cuba as one of several talent stars. She has also worked at the Plantation Club in Greensboro as a featured singer and comedy star.

Cecil, a 21-year-old former student of UNC, is now living out in town and writing music. He was not only the pianist for Sound and Fury last year, but wrote much of the music for the show.

Pee Wee, famous as a comedy actress as well as singer who can hold an audience in the palm of her small hand, will be joined in her Cavalcade of Talent act by Ken Callender, well-known student comedian from Greensboro.

However, this trio will be only one of the many variety acts which will be in the show tonight, sponsored by the 'Y Nite' committee and GMAA.

Also featured from last year's show will be Hoke Simpson of recording fame who is currently under contract to ABC-Paramount; Les Sutorius and his famous combo; Oliver Bloomer, student ventriloquist, and his dummy, Jimmy Rost.

Many Student Govt. Leaders Support Doug Eisele At Rally

By DAVIS YOUNG

On the eve of the recall election Douglas Eisele and his forces combined for an 'Eisele for Editor Rally' in Gerrard Hall last night.

Many of the prominent leaders from all phases of student government were on hand to speak for Eisele including: Sonny Evans, student body president; Don Furtado, student body vice president; George Ragsdale, senior class president and chairman of the Men's Honor Council and Al Lowenstein, former associate editor of the Daily Tar Heel.

First to speak for Eisele was Evans who stated: "If I could point to one issue its whether or not student government is valid. I like Neil Bass personally, but do not feel that he has been a good editor. 'The issue is not whether you disagree with his personal opinions. The issue is whether Neil has been competent.'

Barry Winston, former candidate for the editorship was the next speaker and said: "I ran for the position of editor for two reasons. I wanted a good DTH and a felt that I was the most competent person for the job of editor."

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP) — President Eisenhower was ordered to bed today after suffering what the white house termed "A chill." Tonight, however, he was reported to be resting well.

"A week ago a person appeared on the scene that I felt was more competent than me. I have withdrawn because I feel that Doug Eisele is more competent."

Anne Frye, former DTH staffer spoke to the group and stated: "As a member of the DTH staff, I have been in a position to witness the incompetency of the present editor."

"I have seen the superior journalistic ability of Doug. Until last week I could not honestly support anyone but Bass. However, since that time Doug has announced his candidacy and I feel that he is the man."

Furtado addressed the assemblage and said: "Before last Monday I too was unable to know how I was going to vote. I feel that although Neil is a good personal friend of mine, that he has demonstrated a terrible journalistic attitude."

"I joined the 'clique' because I feel that Doug Eisele is the only competent candidate. The paper is a terrible example today of what can happen when an editor is incompetent and uses his position to slander and abuse."

Dot Freshly, secretary of the student body stated: "If you are like me then you are sick of this entire recall. This is a tragic case. However, I do not feel that we have a paper that we can be proud of. I too am behind Doug Eisele."

Ragsdale said that he heard a person say yesterday that he is against Eisele because he is against the principle of recall. He stated: "This is not a valid reason for voting for Bass as he was recalled the moment the petition went in."

"There is nothing wrong with a recall as it is perfectly legitimate. Be sure and see all the people you can and explain the issues to them. Tomorrow will either be a personal disaster for Neil Bass or a disaster for the school."

Lowenstein was the next to assume the rostrum and said: "I hope tomorrow that students will turn out in sufficient number to assure the election of Doug Eisele. The issue is not the viewpoint of the editor, but rather our quarrel is with the incompetent management of the Daily Tar Heel."

Incumbent editor Neil Bass is a senior majoring in English and journalism. He began working on The Daily Tar Heel as a freshman three years ago, and worked as a reporter, a columnist and, after his election last spring, as editor until the present.

Dormitory polling places will include all dormitories except for Kenan and Conner. Town polling places are listed as follows: Town Men's I will vote in Carolina Inn; Town Men's II will vote in the Scuttlebutt; Town Men's III will vote in Graham Memorial; Town Men's IV will vote in Victory Village; and Town Women will vote in Gerrard Hall.

No advertising or soliciting for the advancement of any candidate is permitted within a radius of 50 feet from the ballot boxes.

Record Voting Is Expected In Recall

A record vote is expected today in the second recall election to occur in UNC's history of student government.

Paul Rule, Doug Eisele and incumbent editor, Neil Bass, are competing for the position of editor of The Daily Tar Heel.

Paul Rule is a junior and journalism major who has been editor and publisher of the weekly South Norfolk (Va.) News since the spring of this year. In addition, he is United Press correspondent for the South Norfolk area.

In the past Rule has held positions of city editor of the Virginia Beach, Va., Daily Star and editor of the Tidewater Shopper of Portsmouth, Va. In radio and television he has served as program director and chief announcer for WTOV-TV, Portsmouth, Va., as chief announcer for WFOS, South Norfolk, Va. and as commercial writer for WRAP, Norfolk, Va.

Doug Eisele is a sophomore and business major from Statesville. After his graduation from high school in 1954 he worked for two years as a reporter for the Statesville Record and Landmark. During that time he also represented the Charlotte Observer, the Greensboro Daily News and the Winston-Salem Journal in Statesville, and the United Press in the Statesville area.

Last year Eisele worked with the University News Bureau as a reporter and feature writer. This fall he was managing editor of the Daily Tar Heel until the time that he announced his candidacy for editor.

Incumbent editor Neil Bass is a senior majoring in English and journalism. He began working on The Daily Tar Heel as a freshman three years ago, and worked as a reporter, a columnist and, after his election last spring, as editor until the present.

Dormitory polling places will include all dormitories except for Kenan and Conner. Town polling places are listed as follows: Town Men's I will vote in Carolina Inn; Town Men's II will vote in the Scuttlebutt; Town Men's III will vote in Graham Memorial; Town Men's IV will vote in Victory Village; and Town Women will vote in Gerrard Hall.

No advertising or soliciting for the advancement of any candidate is permitted within a radius of 50 feet from the ballot boxes.

Iva Kitchell To Appear Here Dec. 3

World famous dance comedienne, Iva Kitchell, appear in Chapel Hill on Dec. 3 at 8 p. m. in Memorial Hall.

Miss Kitchell will be sponsored by the Student Entertainment Committee. The performance will be free to all students upon presentation of identification cards.

Iva Kitchell, known as "Impish Iva," has alone packed theatres in the United States, Canada and South America. She is known for her one-woman shows that sparkle with brilliant dancing and imitations of people who take themselves too seriously.

Her warmest admirers are the city dancers, she mimicks. They recognize her skill and know she can play their game as well as they can.

Federal Inspection Nears For AFROTC

Tension mounts in the UNC AFROTC Corps as the Federal Inspection, Dec. 5-6, draws near.

Y TV Series Will Present Play By Miller

Arthur Miller's play "A Memory of Two Mondays" will be presented in an adapted version on WUNC-TV tonight at 9:30. This is one of a series of TV programs presented by WUNC-TV in cooperation with the YMCA. The series is entitled "Faith and the Fine Arts."

Jim Studdiford of WUNC-TV is the producer-director of the series and Jim Carse, assistant director of the "Y" has been serving as advisor to the planning group as well as moderator of the programs.

Miss Eve McClatchey is chairman of the planning group which initiated the series and plans the various programs in the series.

Among programs to be presented following Miller's play are a TV adaptation of Camus' "The Stranger" next Tuesday night, Dec. 3; following that on successive Tuesday nights will be a show on Picasso with Minerva Pannell of the Art Dept.; and on Dec. 17 there will be a presentation on "The Nativity Theme in Art" with Dr. Sommer, also of the University Art Dept.

Featured in tonight's program "A Memory of Two Mondays" will be Pete O'Sullivan, Harvey Knox, Gene Parsons, Scott Lett and Jerry Elliott.

Phi To Meet

The abolishment of capital punishment will be tonight's bill for debate in the meeting of the Phi. Phi members will meet in Phi hall fourth floor New East, at 8 p. m.

Maintaining that "capital punishment does not fulfill its secondary purpose of being a deterrent to crime," the bill calls for the abolishment of such punishment in the United States.

During the federal visitation, the entire UNC cadet will present a parade-review ceremony for the liaison team from Headquarters AFROTC, Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama.

Lt. Col. DeAlbert S. Hoke Jr. and Lt. Col. Sidney F. Wogan will make up the Federal Inspection Team. During the visitation the inspecting officers will interview detachment and cadet personnel and monitor classes and inspect all other phases of the cadet program here.

According to Cadet 1st Lt. William Stewart, Cadet Group ISO, the purpose of the Federal Inspection is to develop and exchange ideas on ways to improve the AFROTC program and give the cadets the best possible instruction.

Maj. Jack Gabus and Capt. Thomas Humphrey sprang he promotions on the senior cadets in surprise award ceremony before the entire cadet corps.

Cadet Col. Farrel and Cadet Lt. Col. Hunt received the promotions for the outstanding work they have done with the cadet corps this semester as Cadet Group Commander and Cadet Executive Officer, respectively.

AFROTC Flight Training A flying training program for senior cadets in the UNC AFROTC program will be initiated at the opening of the spring semester in January.

Lt. Col. F. W. Swann, UNC professor of Air Science, announced that all senior cadets who have qualified as future pilot will receive instruction. They will fly from the Horace Williams Airport.

Instruction will be supplied by Wilson Air Service. The new Cessna "172," a 145 horsepower aircraft with tricycle landing gear, will be used for the training.

Editorship Candidates Make Statements

PAUL RULE

I wish to take this opportunity to pass along to you a few of the more important points in my current campaign for the position of editor of The Daily Tar Heel.

(1) Journalism is a profession, and a journalist is bound by ethics just as an attorney or a physician. The present editor has, in my opinion, violated these ethics through his conduct of the Tar Heel editorial page and should be "disbarred" by the recall election.

(2) The United States Supreme Court has set back race relations at least a generation. I believe that if the present cry of extreme integrationists is heeded the result will be disastrous. If elected, I plan to express the view in editorials of a moderate segregationist.

(3) Through economy measures and expanded coverage a much better Tar Heel can be produced. I believe that my six years of professional experience in this field will aid me in returning our paper to the position of the foremost college daily in the United States.

(4) Coach Tatum was hired to do a job. He is doing this job admirably well. If we believe in the principle "innocent until proven guilty," then the present editor has condemned an innocent man.

(5) A staff training program should be instituted at the Tar Heel.

(6) Before entering an editorial election each prospective candidate should be required to pass a general examination on all phases of newspaper production. This test, under the supervision of the Publications Board, would assure the presence of qualified candidates only.

(7) Editorial page columnists should voice a wide range of opinions and not merely "parrot" the editor's point of view.

(8) I am completely independent of political connection or control. Not one penny of campaign funds has been contributed by anyone but me. I seek this position not for political advantage but as a journalist who feels he can improve our newspaper.

It is upon these eight points that I respectfully solicit your vote in this recall election.

Statement from Grayson Mills campaign manager for Candidate Paul Rule:

It is extremely unfortunate that what began as well-founded student body sympathy cast to oust an incommensurate, heteroclitic editor, has turned into a pot of political clap-trap.

It has become evident to me that on one side of the ledger we have a group which took advantage of this sympathy to attempt to further their own interests rather than hold the goal of improving the Tar Heel as their sole motive.

DOUG EISELE

"Eisele For Editor" backers wound up their pre-election campaign Monday with submission of a letter signed by a cross-section of UNC students who favor the recall movement.

Following is a reprint of the letter, signed by the cross-section of UNC students, who urged the election of Eisele today:

"We are students who come from many phases of University life. Rarely would we all agree on any issue. We do agree, however, that this is one of the most important elections Carolina students have faced in many years, and we hope that you will read this letter before you vote today.

"What is at stake in this election is nothing less than a vindication of the idea that students are capable of responsible self-government. Under the Carolina student constitution, the only way to replace an irresponsible Editor is to recall him. If students are unwilling to assume this responsibility when circumstances clearly demand the replacement of an incompetent student official, it becomes hard to defend the principle that such decisions can be left in student hands. In this sense, 'freedom of the press' is involved in the election, for our press can remain free of outside censorship and control only so long as students are willing to assume the burden of keeping their paper fairly and responsibly edited. "Many of us opposed the recall two years ago, and none of us would support one now if it were based on disagreement with the Editor's opinions. The issue, however, is not opinion but competence."

"Although we have been concerned with the quality of editorial writing in the Daily Tar Heel this year, we are supporting the recall primarily because of the repeated instances in which The Daily Tar Heel has ignored facts, distorted news stories, and abused innocent individuals. It is typical that the Editor's reaction to the signing of petitions by over 1,000 students was to dream up stories about "cliques" and political intrigue, and then to write editorials denouncing the "cliques" he has just invented. During the past few days we have watched with a growing sense of outrage the manner in which the Editor has abused his office by inventing news and by suppressing points of view other than his own. We know the student body will not condone such tactics when the facts are presented.

"It is fortunate that a journalist as well qualified as Doug Eisele is running for Editor of The Daily Tar Heel in this important election. He worked two years as a re-body is awfully tired of this brand of political manipulation, this sense of negativism. And I feel confident that the student body will defeat it at the ballot boxes today.

"I can hardly over emphasize the importance of this election as far as my life is concerned. But I matter very little. It is for my successors that I urge the student body to defeat political negativism at the polls. No editor can function successfully and speak out unhesitatingly with the threat of 'recall for disagreement's sake' staring him in the face each time he sits at his typewriter.

"When the student body graciously elected me editor last spring, I realized the tremendous responsibilities involved; but I had worked on the paper for three years, wanted the job with all my heart, and accepted the responsibilities with all human devotion possible.

"If I sincerely felt there was another candidate in the race with better qualifications and experience, I would withdraw in deference to him. The paper is my life, and I respect it that much.

"If I am re-elected through the grace of the student body: (1) I will hold malice toward no one, but will pledge my cooperation toward forwarding the prevailing negativism.

"I am certain that the student
