Defection

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP)—Atty. Gen. Rogers today announced the defection to the West of Dr. Jerry Leon Nowinski, internationally known Polish scientist.

The Attorney General said in an address at a National Press Club luncheon that Dr. Nowinski, a specialist in thermoelectricity, was granted asylum in the United States yesterday.

Similar asylum will be granted to his wife, Maria Franciska, and their daughter, Kristina, 7, both of whom are now in England, Rogers said.

Rogers inserted into an extemporaneous speech a prepared text on the Nowinski case.

Breaks Off

ROME, Jan. 3 (AP)—An outraged Italian music world today showered criticism on fiery soprano Maria Meneghini Callas for abruptly breaking off her opening night performance at the Rome opera.

"Via la Callas da Roma" (Callas, get out of Rome) shouted opera lovers crowding the street in front of her hotel.

Inside, the American-born soprano kept to her bed with ailments diagnosed by her doctor as bronchitis and laryngitis.

Miss Callas said her illness forced her to quit after the first act of Bellini's opera "Norma" last night.

Italian newspaper critics took the view that she had lost her temper, not her voice.

Reaches Pole

AUCKLAND, Jan. 3 (AP)—Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Mt. Everest, reached the South Pole today with gasoline to spare for only 20 more miles. He camped near the polar station of 17 American.

The rangy 38-year-old New Zealander, knighted for climbing to the top of the world's tallest peak in 1953, announced he had reached the bottom of the earth in a radio message to Scott Base in Antarctica.

His 1,200-mile trek across glaciers and crevasse-riddled snow fields with tractors was the third in history and the first in 45 years to reach the pole by land. With him were four other New Zealanders.

Dr. Vivian Fuchs of Britain, heading a party from the opposite or South American, side of the pole, was believed still to be 200 miles away.

Kills Mother

BAYONNE, N. J., Jan. 3 (AP)—Police said today a 15-year-old schoolboy has confessed to slaying his mother's throat with a pocket knife and leaving her to die on a bulkhead during a family argument.

Robert Gaydos, 15, was charged with juvenile delinquency in the slaying of his mother, Mrs. Mary Gaydos, 36, of E. 19th St.

Det. Lawrence Farrell said police had talked to Robert and then questioned him further "because we didn't like his answers."

Farrell said that Mrs. Gaydos had driven with her son to the bulkhead at the foot of 25th St. along Newark Bay. They were arguing and the boy finally stabbed his mother, Farrell said.

UNC Botanist Greulach Attends NSF Conference

The University was represented at a recent National Science Foundation conference in Washington, D. C., by Dr. Victor A. Greulach, professor of botany and co-director of UNC's Summer Institute for High School Teachers of Science and Mathematics.

Dr. Greulach joined some 100 other directors in a planning session for the 1958 institutes, to be held throughout the United States during the summer.

The UNC Institute, set for June 9 through July 18, will include at least 55 high school teachers, each receiving stipends and allowances of $450 to $900 under a grant of $61,300 from the NSF.

Prof. E. A. Cameron of the UNC Department of Mathematics is serving as co-director with Professor Greulach. This is the second year UNC's NSF Summer Institute has been held on the UNC campus.

Oh, Good Grief! Almost Forgot: 'Peanuts' Has Come To UNC

By ANN FRYE

"Oh, good grief!" Good Ol' Charlie Brown, the lovable misfit, and the other "Peanuts" characters make their debut in today's Daily Tar Heel.

For those of you who aren't yet acquainted with Good Ol' Charlie Brown and the rest, here is some essential information about them.

The hero, of course, is Charlie Brown, who says, "I've never done anything right in my life, and I'm not going to start now!"

Poor Charlie Brown is disliked by every one, because, as he put it, "I'm not popular."

Lucy, who has won fustbudget trophies for years, is the girl who constantly antagonizes poor Charlie Brown. Schroeder and her brother Linus. Lucy is extremely proud of her accomplishments in the world of fustbudgeting. She once had an article published called, "I was a fustbudget for the FBI."

And she likes to quote the newspaperman who said, "That girl was born to fuss."

Little Linus with his security blanket carries said blanket throughout the comic strips. Readers suffered with Little Linus through the two agonizing weeks Lucy locked the blanket in a closet. Linus was a nervous wreck by the time he finally got his blanket back.

Snoopy, the dog, is the world's best imitator. His recent episode involved imitating a penguin, much to the usual disgust of Charlie Brown.

Snoopy probably likes to annoy Charlie Brown because of a recent conversation between Charlie Brown and Schroeder. Charlie Brown was commenting on the high prices paid for French poodles. When Schroeder asked him how much a dog like Snoopy would cost, Charlie Brown said, "Oh, his kind are a dime a dozen."

Schroeder, who attributes everything to Beethoven (even the Davy Crockett achievements), did the unforgivable recently: he forgot Beethoven's birthday. Lucy had her fun laughing about this because she recalled the many times Schroeder turned down her proposals for marriage just because of the German composer.

These are the main characters in Charles M. Schulz's "Peanuts." Some of the other common ones are Pig Pen, who has been called the "human soil bank," and the two gossips, Violet and Patty.

Men's Honor Council Continues Its Investigation Of 'Rubber Stamp' Case

Teenage Vandals & Havoc In Cobb

Local police continued an investigation today into a quiet New Year's Eve party by Chapel Hill teenagers that turned into a havoc-wrecking affair in the basement of Cobb Dormitory.

Chapel Hill police said Friday that investigation was drawing to a close in the destruction of a juke box, theft of records and other vandalism in Cobb Tuesday night.

Sam Magill, director of student activities, said the UNC dormitory had been loaned to the local "Y-Teens" Club for its New Year's Eve party, which was chaperoned by an adult couple.

As the party was over, and the last couple was leaving, "several boys" went into the dormitory basement "and started throwing bottles, sliding chairs—just generally wreaking havoc," Magill said.

He said that one boy fell into the juke box, destroying the machine, and that all the records were missing when officials surveyed the damage.

Magill said one Carolina student is believed to have been involved in the fracas, and that his participation probably will result in Student Council action.

No formal charges had been lodged Friday.

Coast Guard Plans Classes For Eligible College Students

The United States Coast Guard will convene two Reserve Officer Candidate classes for college men during the coming months. The first will begin in March, while the second class starts next July.

To be eligible, a non-veteran must be a graduate of an accredited four-year college. A veteran must have completed two years of college and two years' active duty in the Coast Guard or Navy. Persons with three years of college must have completed one year of active duty.

Age restrictions are 21 to 26 for non-veterans and 21 to 31 for veterans. Height restrictions are 5'6" to 6'4". Prior to acceptance into the Coast Guard as Officer Candidates, applicants must pass a physical examination and obtain a passing score on an Officer Qualification Test.

Selection is then based on the results of an interview and study of the Candidate's background. Selected candidates will receive 17 weeks of training at the Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn. At the Academy candidates have the rank of Seaman Apprentice (Officer Candidate) and study subjects like navigation, seamanship, gunnery, law enforcement and many others.

After graduation, candidates must serve three years active duty. Assignments will include such fields as Law Enforcement, Aids to Navigation, Engineering, Port Security, or Search and Rescue. After approximately 1½ years active duty, the graduates will be eligible for promotion to Lieutenant (junior grade).

Men who are interested in the program should write for particulars to the Coast Guard Reserve Office, U. S. Post Office Building, Room 3373, Norfolk, Va.

The second and third letters have never before been published.

Wolfe recalls to Cone their excursions around Paris in 1925 in the company of Frank Graham and Mark Noble. He also expressed his worry over the possible reception of his book.

Letters contributed by Cone will be added to the Thomas Wolfe Collection in the Louis R. Wilson Library here.

Five UNC Zoologists Receive Appointments

Five zoologists in Chapel Hill have been honored by being chosen to represent their respective societies to the national "Roster" of Scientific and Technical Personnel.

The Roster was recently moved from Washington, D. C., to Raleigh. Although the scientists designated by 11 professional societies came from various parts of North Carolina and beyond, five of the eleven came from the Department of Zoology on the Chapel Hill campus.

The zoologists chosen were Dr. C. E. Jenner, chairman of the Department, Dr. C. D. Beers, Dr. D. P. Costello, Dr. H. E. Lehman and Dr. M. Whittinghill. Still another representative from Chapel Hill was Dr. John Larsh of the Department of Parasitology.

Ex-Student Involved

Men's Honor Council Continues Its Investigation Of 'Rubber Stamp' Case

GEORGE RAGSDALE
Heading Investigation

Will Not Divulge Suspect's Identity

The Men's Honor Council today continued a sweeping investigation into fraudulent and forged excuses allegedly purchased by numerous Carolina students from an ex-student at the University.

George Ragsdale, Men's Honor Council chairman, said more students probably are involved in the investigation "than have ever been involved in any case of which student government was cognizant."

Meanwhile, officials here refused to identify the "ex-student" who allegedly produced and sold authentic-looking class excuses for two dollars each. It was learned, however, that he had dropped out of school before the Honor Council investigation began.

All Ragsdale would say about the "ex-student" was:

"An ex-student of the University, whose name is not and will not be disclosed by the Men's Council, has admitted that he manufactured and sold false excuses to members of the student body."

"He immediately told the truth when confronted and is cooperating with the Men's Council at the present time."

Ragsdale said the "ex-student" had secured hundreds of blank excuses similar to those used by the University, and employed a rubber stamp identical to that used in Hanes Hall to mark on the blanks the time for which a student was to be excused.

The system involved not only the fraudulent excuses themselves, he said, but also the forging of names in Hanes Hall and the infirmaries as sources by which the excuses allegedly were granted.

The investigation and disclosure of persons involved was expected to have broad effects at the University. Sam Magill, director of student activities, said some persons may lose credit in courses where the falsified excuses were used.

"I would think that such a person (a General College student already with three cuts before using one of the excuses) would be in danger of being dropped with an 'F,'" he said.

Magill said that action against students in the upper college by the faculty "would depend upon the school involved." Upper college schools have varying regulations about class attendance.

No Legal Action Yet
The director of student activities also said that no legal action against the "ex-student" (See CASE, page 3)

Choral Unit To Present 'King David'

The UNC Music Department will present the fall semester's final event in the Tuesday Evening Series on Jan. 14 when the University Chorus will appear in concert.

Honegger's symphonic psalm "King David" will be the work performed at the Tuesday night program, which is set for 8 o'clock in Hill Hall, and is open to the public without charge.

Dr. Wilton Mason, associate professor of music, will be musical director for the performance by the University Chorus, soloists and the University Symphony Orchestra.

The Honegger work, to be given for the first time in Chapel Hill, was first performed in 1921 in a small Swiss village, and brought immediate recognition to its then unknown composer. It has become a standard part of choral repertoire, one of the few 20th century works so honored.

The 27 musical numbers are connected by a narration of the background events from the life of the psalmist. This narration will be performed by Earl Wynn and Jo Jurgensen. Vocal soloists include Martha Fouse, soprano; Marilyn Zschau, contralto; and Gene Strassler, tenor. The musical portions of the work alternate between solos, choruses, and orchestral interludes, all combining to produce a rich and barbaric musical spectacle.

UNC Grant Will Boost Teaching

The University of North Carolina was among some 135 colleges and universities sharing a $1,150,000 grant made Thursday by the Du Pont Company, it was learned yesterday.

The University will receive a grant of $2,400 for education of a scientist or engineer plus an award of $300 to the University and payment of tuition and fees for a post-graduate teaching assistantship in chemistry.

Also, two fellowships of $3,000 for future teachers of science or mathematics in high school and a summer research grant of $1,500 for fundamental research in chemistry.

In addition to supporting the teaching of science and mathematics, officials said, the funds will continue to support fundamental research and fellowships.

Open Hearing On Tar Heel Slated Jan. 13

An open hearing for suggestions pertaining to the operation of The Daily Tar Heel will be held Tuesday afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock in Roland Parker II.

A second public hearing has been set for Monday, Jan. 13, beginning at 2 p.m. in Roland Parker II.

Both meetings were being sponsored by the Newspaper Research Committee, a special committee set up by the Student Legislature. The committee's purpose is to study the operations of various newspapers and make any recommendations to Student Legislature for the improvement of The Daily Tar Heel.

All interested persons are invited to participate in either of the two public hearings.

Wake Forest Tickets

The ticket office in Woollen Gym announced yesterday that there are some 1,000 student and faculty tickets still available for the Wake Forest game tonight at 8 o'clock. Anyone wishing to see the contest who doesn't already have a ticket is urged to bring his passbook to the ticket window before noon today. All seats are reserved.

IN THE INFIRMARY

The following students were reported in the University Infirmary yesterday.

Misses Hilda Holt and Lula Ballantine and Raymond Smith, William Savage, Gordon Street, Joe Eller, Walter Slater, Milburn Gibbs, William Brigman and Julian Smith.

'NO TIME FOR SERGEANTS'—Charles Hohman and Mary Dell Roberts portray a scene from the comedy stage hit, "No Time For Sergeants," which is coming to Memorial Hall Friday, Jan. 10 at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are available at 214 Abernethy Hall. All seats are reserved at $2.20, $3.30 and $4.40.
