CCUN To Try Organizing Other Groups

Members of the UNC chapter of the Collegiate Council for the United Nations decided to attempt organizing other CCUN chapters over the state after attending a UN Seminar in York in November, 1957.

During the seminar, UNC students became impressed that CCUN was important enough to warrant a special project on the part of the local CCUN to try establishing other chapters on North Carolina campuses.

The UNC chapter will launch its project by holding a conference here this weekend for representatives from North Carolina colleges.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Visit

The highlight of the conference will be the visit of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt on Sunday. Mrs. Roosevelt will talk informally to delegates attending the conference Sunday afternoon from 3 to 3:30 in Roland Parker 1 and II.

Mrs. Roosevelt will give a public address Sunday night at 8 o'clock in Memorial Hall. This speech will be covered by WUNC radio and television.

During the conference, a business meeting will be held to elect a Continuation Committee. This committee will coordinate CCUN activities in North Carolina chapters.

Bill Sugg, chairman of the local CCUN, said in letters inviting representatives of other colleges to the conference that an understanding of the United Nations, as promoted by CCUN, is vital to future leaders of the country, since the United Nations is the organization that can achieve world peace.

Flexibility

A major factor in favor of the establishment of CCUN chapters is the flexibility of the organization. A college may affiliate with CCUN in three ways: independently, as an affiliate CCUN committee or as an affiliate organization.

The independent CCUN group is organized as a separate campus body. It is a United Nations club which devotes its entire program to education on the United Nations and a development of international understanding.

The affiliate CCUN committee is established as a functioning committee of an already existing organization on a campus. The UNC CCUN is a chapter of this type, since it's affiliated with the Seminar Committee of the YMCA-YWCA.

The affiliated organization is an established campus group which has decided to devote a good part of its program to the United Nations.

GM SLATE

The following activities are scheduled for Graham Memorial today: Student Council, 7-11 p. m.; Graft Room; Rules Committee, 4-5 p. m.; Roland Parker 1; SP Caucus, 7:30 p. m.; Roland Parker 1 Traffic Council, 4-6 p. m.; Woodhouse Conference Room; UP Caucus, 6:30-7:30 p. m.; Woodhouse Conference Room; Women's Honor Council, 6:45-10 p. m.; Council Room.

Tar Heels Meet Virginia In Woollen Tonight

ACC's Top Three Scores To Tangle

By BILL KING

Virginia's Cavaliers come to town tonight as the second link in a chain of three games for the Carolina Tar Heels this week. Woollen Gym tipoff time is set for 8 o'clock following a preliminary game between the Carolina frosh and Davidson JV's.

The Tar Heels will put a 10-1 overall record and a 3-0 conference mark on the line against the Old Dominion five. The Cavaliers have 6-4 record on the season and sport a 3-1 slate in conference competition.

Maryland Saturday

This is the final game for the Tar Heels before they encounter the tough Maryland Terps in College Park, Md. this weekend in a 14,500 sellout, largest crowd ever to gather in the Terp's new indoor stadium.

Oddly enough, these two clubs go into the game holding ACC victories over the same opponents. Clemson, South Carolina and Wake Forest, Virginia, however, has lost to N. C. State, a team which the Tar Heels beat for the Dixie Classic championship. The Tar Heels also beat Duke in the Classic.

Carolina's last outing was a 79-63 victory over a scrappy William and Mary team in Woollen Gym Tuesday night. The Cavaliers lost, 73-69 to the Indians. Virginia has also beaten Washington and Lee, Pennsylvania and Va. Tech, while losing to Richmond and Lasalle in addition to State and W & M.

Top 3 Scorers

The contest will throw the three top scorers in the ACC together. Tar Heel Pete Brennan has a 20.7 average to lead the league. Virginia's Herb Busch is second with an even 18 point average and Carolina guard Tommy Kearns is third at 17. Virginia also has forward John Siewers (12.0) and guard Dick Stobbs (11.0) in the top 20 scorers. Carolina's Lee Shaffer is ninth in the conference at 13.3. The Tar Heel attack will be paced by Brennan and Kearns. Both hit the 20 point mark against William and Mary. Kearns with 23 and Brennan with 20. Senior forward Lee Shaffer, sophomore center Dick Kepley will probably round out the starting lineup for the Chapel Hillians.

Salz Should Play

Sophomore guard Harvey Salz is also expected to see a lot of action. The Brooklyn native hit 16 points against William and Mary and had been the number one replacement all season. For Virginia, it will probably be Busch, Stobbs, Siewers, Paul Adkins and Bill Nelligan. On hand for the contest will be the 1917 Carolina team which defeated Virginia. Eleven of the 14 members of that team have gathered in Chapel Hill for a two-day reunion.

LEADS CAVALIERS—Herb Busch, Virginia's hulking 6-7, 240-lb. center will lead his club against the Carolina Tar Heels in Woollen Gym tonight. Busch's 18 point average is second to Pete Brennan in the ACC.

Sorority Will Colonize Its 86th Chapter Here

Kappa Kappa Gamma, the national sorority which will begin organizing here in February, has 85 active chapters in the United States and Canada.

An announcement Tuesday from Miss Katherine Kennedy Carmichael, dean of women, reported that the national sorority had accepted a bid from the University to establish the seventh sorority here.

In a letter from Mrs. Frank H. Alexander, director of Kappa Kappa Gamma chapters in this area, yesterday, she said the sorority was looking forward to a chapter at UNC.

In commenting on the sorority, she said Kappa Kappa Gamma is interested in the advancement of education for women and the provision of educational opportunities for deserving women.

The sorority has contributed over a half million dollars in scholarships, she said. The national philanthropy of Kappa Kappa Gamma is the rehabilitation of the physically and mentally handicapped.

Mrs. Alexander said she would be in Chapel Hill soon in making arrangements for the colonization of the sorority.

Colonization is the preliminary step to the actual installation of the sorority on a college campus. The closest chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma to UNC is one at Duke University.

Many of the other chapters are concentrated in Southern colleges and universities.

Refugee Problem Holds Key In Relaxing Tensions Of Area

By CURTIS GANS

That the conflict between the major powers to the world "constitutes the major source of regional conflict" in the middle east was asserted by Israeli Ambassador to the U.S. and U.N., delegate Abba Eban, in the second Carolina Forum of the year in Hill Hall last night.

Eban said that the major cause of the present Arab-Israeli crisis was the refugee problem. He asserted that the Arabs are responsible for this dilemma and that the Arab nations could clear the situation up if they wanted to.

Eban added that he felt that the Arab nation did not want to resolve the conflict or else it would have been resolved long ago. Refusal to absorb the refugees, he felt, is a major facet of the conflict.

Israel and the other nations of the world would be glad to co-operate if integration was made along ethnic lines. He cited as evidence that the refugees of World War II had been integrated along these lines, but that it was Arab refusal to negotiate on these terms that was causing the current bottleneck.

Eban said that he could not conceive of any territorial problem from Israel's side, when Israel possessed only 8,000 square miles of territory as compared to 4,000,000 possessed by the Arab nations. Eban pointed with pride to the Israeli "accomplishment" in the first decade of its existence. He said that this was a spiritual and historical renaissance.

The fact that Israel was a democracy in an area currently noted for despotism, military dictatorships, and feudalism, was an especially noteworthy feature.

He said that certain clarification of non-aggression and anti-aggression treaties currently obtaining between the U. S. and the Middle East was necessary in order to avoid the miscalculations that were responsible for previous wars.

In answering a question posed by a member of the audience, Eban said that the unilateral state of war that existed between Egypt and Israel prior to the Israeli march across the Sinai Peninsula was responsible for that action.

He assailed Egyptian dictator Gamal Abdel Nasser for putting Israel in this position and denying to the countries of the west the free use of the seas in the nationalization of the Suez Canal.

In concluding his speech, he noted the paradox between the unequalled tension in the Middle East, and the limitless opportunities that still remain.

Art Sobel Resigns Post On Elections Board

By VIRGINIA SANDIDGE

Art Sobel, Elections Board chairman, has resigned his position effective immediately. Student Body President Sonny Evans disclosed today.

Sobel said that "other commitments" prohibited his continuing in the student government post during the next semester.

In making the announcement, Evans said interviews will be held daily between 2 and 5 p. m. until a replacement is found for Sobel to head the elections board.

A statement by Sobel read: "I won't have the time next semester that the job requires, because I have other commitments. I appreciate Sonny's letting me serve and would like to thank the members of my committee for the job they did."

Evans, citing Sobel's long experience with the board, said student government "is very sorry" about the chairman's decision to resign.

His four years' experience and the outstanding job that he did for the past year make him a very qualified individual," Evans said.

Sobel's resignation continued the fate of the University's past five elections board chairmen. All have resigned before termination of their prescribed tenures of office.

The elections board conducts all elections on the campus and sees that they are properly carried out. Its next responsibility lies in administration of spring elections.

IN THE INFIRMARY

Students in the infirmary yesterday included:

Misses Emily Stafford, Nancy Carter, Lucy Forsyth, Linda Watkins, Lelia Midgett and Jane Mulvey and Charles Moss, Roy Goodman, Paul Clark.

Daily Tar Heel Research Group Hears Views

Six students attended and gave their views at the first of two open hearings of the Newspaper Research Committee held Tuesday. Suggestions were given for selection of the editor, relationship between the paper and the journalism school, administration, and student government, the financial structure of the paper, responsibilities of the various newspaper department heads, and the question of salaries for any and all members of the staff.

The next open hearing will be held Monday, Jan. 13, in Roland Parker II, Committee Chairman Pat Adams invited all people who have views on these matters to come. The meeting will be open to reporters.

Appearing before the committee yesterday were: Barry Winston, Walt Schruttek, Charlie Sloan, Pebley Barrow, Joel Fleischman and Paul Rule.

'Sergeants' Star, Charles Hohman Helped Make Army Theatre History

By DAVE PETERSON

Charles Hohman, who plays the role of Will Stockdale in "No Time For Sergeants" in Memorial Hall, Friday at 8:30, helped make theatrical Army history with Maurice Evans during World War II.

Drafted in 1942, he shipped to Hawaii and while on a troopship was a quiz contest which singled him out to Evans, then a captain enroute to the Pacific island to form a G. I. Entertainment Section.

After basic and jungle training Hohman was transferred to the Evans unit and was cast in a leading role in "Boy Meet Girl." He subsequently appeared in "Richard II," "Maebeth" with Evans and Judith Anderson, "Brother Rat" and "Personal Appearance."

An active participant on the picture screen Goldenrod Showboat on the Mississippi, he appeared in a series of "old style" melodramas.

After the war he opened a summer theatre in St. Louis, and most recently was in the advertising business in his hometown until called upon by Evans to take over the role of Will in "Sergeants." He has played the role on Broadway for over a year.

A few choice seats are still available for the professional production. They may be obtained from the Carolina Playmakers, 214 Abernethy Hall. All seats are reserved at $2.20, $3.30 and $4.40.

Will Centrifugal Bumble-Puppy Team Be Organized At UNC?

By WHIT WHITFIELD

As CBPL President, Louis Shirkey, said: "Bumble-Puppy is the greatest thing since gold fish swallowing, and it tastes better." In a few words, this is the most apt description of the new game which is taking the nation by storm.

Centrifugal Bumble-Puppy is beginning to threaten baseball as the national pastime. It began a few months ago at the University of Connecticut as a rather whimsical game, but since that time has swept through 35 high schools and prep schools as well as some 65 colleges throughout the nation.

First Bumble-Puppy

Its originator, Louis Iritsky, and

Mark Hawthorne, Managing Editor of the Conn. Daily Campus recognized its potential, and immediately set up the National Centrifugal Bumble-Puppy League, with headquarters at Storrs, Conn.

Iritsky, of course, was elected the first president. University of Conn. President, Dr. A. N. Jorgenson was made an honorary left puppy on the Conn. first team.

Since that time, Sports Illustrated, NBC's Monitor (of the going places and doing things fame), The Herald Tribune radio station WOR (N. Y.), Mad, Humbug, and dozens of college humor mags and newspapers have spread its fame.

Among the schools which have organized teams are: Oregon, Illinois, Smith, Cornell, Syracuse, Penn. Dook, Michigan, Columbia, Dartmouth, Rutgers, Temple, at infinitum.

The rules of the game are, briefly as follows: The game is played by two teams, composed of a right bumble, left bumble, right puppy, left puppy, center centrifugal, alternate center centrifugal, stinger (whose function has not as yet been determined), doppler data digitizer (scorer), and one or more beer-bearers, depending upon the length of the game, the heat and humidity at game time, and the coach's disposition.

In high schools and blue nose institutions, this position is known as water carrier.

Mad! Mad! Mad!

The players of both teams stand around a cylindrical centrifugal bumble-puppy machine, which may be anywhere from nine to 457 feet high, powered by solar energy and heel-toe action. The doppler data digitizer of the home team throws an eight-inch ball into the top of the machine.

If it does not reappear, the game is forfeited. If it does reappear out of one of the nine holes on the side of the machine, the game is started. The ball must be caught by one of the players and run past one of the goal or feather-lines, which are placed on the perimeter of the playing field, 49 feet, three inches from the machine.

Passing is permitted with the game ball, girls, (in the guise of cheerleaders), or interested spectators. Passing out is tolerated for those who have low tolerance levels and alcoholics.

Obstacles such as barbed wire, water holes, and snake pits may be added to lead an aura of excitement and terror. The CBPL Obstacle Committee has ruled that this is optional however, so cowards may play also without fear.

A score is called a "feather." Only three feathers may be made per inning, unless the home team does not pass "Go" or collect $200.

Flip Flap Flap

The playing field is divided into five quadrants, center flap, left and right flap, and far flap. The fifth quadrant has not been named due to its location which has not as yet been determined.

The beer-cooler is located in the center flap, therefore making it the most popular point of reference.

Games are usually played until the beer runs out. It might be pointed out that beer need not be used. Gin, vodka, or champagne might be desired at the wealthier schools, whereas cokes or water substituted at state supported schools.

Before the same starts, it might be wise to check with local ABC officials. Members schools who persist in using non tax paid alcohol will be put on probation and will be denied the privilege of participating in post-seasonal bowl games and/or CBPL playoffs.

In addition to the regular squad, there may also be a team manager and one or more scooters. Usually there is a right and left scoffer who believe that the game cannot be played. Despite the negative attitude of the scoffer, he is a valuable member of the team.

Uniforms are left up to the discretion of the individual team, but are mandatory. Teams may be mixed or otherwise, but it is preferable that they be of one sex. (Mixed teams are more fun, but they have a tendency to slow down the game.)

Results of league games should be sent to Conference offices for final tabulation. As yet, these conference offices have not been staffed or setup. However, don't be dismayed by this trivial matter.

Set up your squad immediately so as to be eligible for the post season classics. Keep your eye on the sports section for further developments on the CBPL, the very latest in sports.
