Frosh Seek Revenge In Raleigh

By RUSTY HAMMOND

Tar Heels Will Have To Win Away From Home
If the homecourt makes any difference in basketball, and history indicates that it certainly does, Carolina's Tar Heels will be at a definite disadvantage the rest of the way in the race for top regular season honors in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Carolina has only two games remaining in Woollen Gym. The first is Saturday afternoon before the television cameras against Duke. The final home contest is Feb. 22 against Maryland. Otherwise, the Tar Heels have to meet Virginia in Charlottesville (Feb. 11), Wake Forest in Winston-Salem (Feb. 13), N. C. State in Raleigh (Feb. 18) and Duke in Durham (Feb. 28). Incidentally, the Tar Heels play Notre Dame in Chicago on Feb. 15 so the Chapel Hillians will be one of the busiest teams around from the middle to the end of February.

When State clipped the Tar Heels, 58-57 in an overtime here Jan. 15 it was the first time Carolina had been beaten in Woollen since 1955—and the Wolfpack did it then. Thus, if Carolina is able to finish in first place, it will have been done the hard way.

Team Scoring Totals Down This Season

The 115 points which the Tar Heels scored against South Carolina Saturday night marked the first time the McGuiremen had gone over the 100 mark since Lennie Rosenbluth and Co. beat Virginia, 102-90 here last season for their 14th consecutive victory.

McGuire, who doesn't like to run over the 100 mark against another team unless his club needs the points, said after the South Carolina game: "I hate to go over 100 like that but South Carolina was hitting well and we couldn't relax."

The downward trend in college scoring has hit Carolina this season. Only once this year have the Tar Heels hit the 90 points mark (excepting the SC game) and that was against Clemson on Jan. 18. So actually the two highest point totals for Carolina this season have come in their last two games—might be an indication of things to come. Still the Tar Heels have the top scoring team in the ACC.

Administration Did Good Deed

The administration is to be congratulated on its broad mindedness in extending the coed deadline one hour for the N. C. State game in Raleigh Feb. 18. This should alleviate any incident such as the one when the two schools met here. Many of the girls panicked as the game went into an overtime and rushed back to their dorms in fear of being late.

Of course, should this game be a repetition of the Carolina State game in Raleigh last year, further concessions would be necessary. That was the night that the road from Raleigh to Chapel Hill was frozen and traffic was lined up for miles. However, weather permitting, the girls should be safely back to their dorms by twelve with no real rush.

Basketball-Football Notes

Freshman coach Ken Rosemond thinks that Carolina will win the ACCC championship and will get into the big NCAA tournament in Louisville, Ky. this season. . . . Members of the Atlantic Coast Sportswriters Assn. have already started thinking about their all-conference team and the three men from the conference they'll recommend for All-American recognition. . . . Carolina has three men in the top ten scorers in the ACC. . . . Pete Brennan is first, Tommy Kearns third and Lee Shaffer tenth. . . . Several members of the football team have already begun trotting off a little weight before spring practice opens Feb. 10. . . . Curt Hathaway will have to miss spring training because his arm hasn't completely healed. . . . Buddy Payne and Fred Swearingen are staying in shape on the handball courts during the winter. . . . Buddy was recently drafted by the Washington Redskins.

Brennan Holds ACC Lead; Kearns Third

Carolina's sparkling senior forward Pete Brennan continues to hold the lead in the ACC scoring race over Virginia's second place Herb Busch according to the most recent ACC scoring statistics released yesterday.

Brennan has an 20.3 average in 16 games, and Busch has averaged 17.7 in 14 contests. Carolina's hard driving guard Tommy Kearns is pushing Busch hard for the second place honors with a 17.3 average.

The first statistics to be released for two weeks because of the few games played during exams, find Busch dropping slightly from his pre-team average while Brennan and Kearns have increased their marks. Brennan and Kearns each had a big night at South Carolina with 22 and 29 points respectively while Busch was held to 6 when Virginia played at Duke.

Another Tar Heel, Lee Shaffer has also made the top ten for ACC scoring honors. Shaffer has an average of 14.4 to tie with Ray Pericola of South Carolina for tenth place.

With two straight defeats dogging them Carolina's cage Tar Babies seek to hit the winning trail again tonight as they journey to Raleigh to face the State College Wolflets.

The frosh now sport an 8-3 overall season record. Their woes began before exams when this same State squad snapped a Carolina winning streak at seven, winning the game in overtime by 78-75. Last week, in the first post-exam game, Duke once again defeated the Tar Babies, this time by 80-55. Duke had beaten Carolina earlier in the season.

Losing Streak

This two-game losing streak will be only one of the problems facing Coach Ken Rosemond tonight, as the entire team now consists of only nine players. Doug Moe, who was averaging over 20 points per game, is off the team because of scholastic difficulties, although he is still in school. Lenny Beck and John Hickey have dropped from the squad to take up spring football practice, and Russ Hollers will probably do the same when drills start.

Fans who saw the last State-Carolina frosh encounter will recall the Wolflets as a fast, tall, and talented bunch of eagles. Outstanding for State so far have been Mark Reimer, the small guard who beat the Tar Babies with two free throws in the final seconds, and Bruce Hoadley, Raleigh's own representative to the contingent who is consistently scoring in double figures.

Starting Lineup

Statistics show the Tar Babies with an average 16-point spread over opponents. Carolina is averaging 82.5 points per game against the opposition's 66.3. The probable starting line-up for tonight will include Tam Shuford and Lou Brown at guards, Hugh Donahue at center, and Pete Longnecker and Billy Dunlap or Bob Deaton at forwards.

ACC Scoring Lead Held By Carolina

GREENSBORO, Feb. 4 (AP)—Carolina's Tar Heels, who returned to action last Saturday night with a 115-88 victory over South Carolina, regained the team basketball scoring lead in the Atlantic Coast Conference as a result of that school record-matching outburst.

According to ACC Service Bureau compilations, it upped the per-game average for the defending NCAA and ACC champs from 74.1 to 74.8 points a game. This edged the Tar Heels back in front over Virginia, which increased its average from 72.9 to 73.2 even in surrendering the lead.

North Carolina State has replaced Carolina as the primary challenger to perennial leader Maryland in team defense. While the Terps improved their average yield to 56.4 points a game, the Wolfpack advanced from 61.1 to 59.8. Carolina, which led this category early in the year, now has a third place defensive average of 62.7.

Blue Devils Next Foe For Tar Heels

It's Duke next for Carolina's basketball Tar Heels, who make their only appearance this week against the startling Blue Devils in a regionally televised game here Saturday at 2 p. m.

Duke last week made national news by downing preijotously undefeated West Virginia, the nation's number one team. N. C. State, Virginia and Wake Forest were other victims of the rampaging Blue Devils before they turned into another busy week, to be climaxed by the contest here.

Easy Victory

The Tar Heels, on the other hand, also ran into a streak of prosperity after getting bumped off on their home court by State's Wolfpack. They played handsome and fancy in turning back Clemson at Clemson and South Carolina at Columbia.

In their last outing, against the Gamecocks, the Tar Heels showed the class they had last year in running-up a 32-game winning skein and capturing the national championship. The score was 115 to 88 and was by far their greatest offensive performance. The 115 points tied a school record.

"I felt bad about that," said

Coach Frank McGuire after the game. "I have always felt it was bad for a team to score more than 100 points and we usually try to avoid it. Of course, South Carolina was scoring a lot, too, and you couldn't get too complacent."

Tommy Kearns (27), Lee Shaffer (23) and Pete Brennan (22) were the best marksmen against the Gamecocks. Harvey Skalz chipped in with 17 to round out a quarterin double figures.

Brennan remains the top man for the season long. Senior and tri-captain Brennan has scored 325 points in 16 games for a 20.2 average per game.

Tag Football Playoffs Begin Today

Playoffs to determine the campus tag football champions will be held today and tomorrow with the title game scheduled for Friday afternoon.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon Zeta Psi and Sigma Chi will meet to determine the winner of the fraternity blue division. Ruffin and Grimes dorms will also meet this afternoon for the dorm championship.

On Thursday afternoon the dorm champs will take on Peacocks who are the winners of the grad division. In another contest tomorrow, the winners of the fraternity Blue Division play the DKE'S.

On Friday the winners of the games on Thursday will meet for the campus championship.

The delay in the playoffs is a result of the recent bad weather and the Asian Flu epidemic last fall.
