Curtis Gans Endorsed By SP As Candidate For Tar Heel Editor

Editorship candidate Curtis Gans was endorsed by the Student Party last night. This action came after the party had heard from all five candidates and after a brief discussion on the question of whether or not to endorse. Gans comment to the Daily Tar Heel, immediately after having been endorsed was: "I am very gratified at the trust that the Student Party has placed in me. I feel that this a mandate for honest, courageous journalism on the U.N.C. campus." The party's Vice Presidential Candidate, John Brooks spoke briefly, outlining the reasons behind the question of his eligibility. He then recommended that the party set up machinery which would enable a new candidate to be chosen immediately in the event that the Student Council should declare him ineligible to run. On this recommendation, the party voted to empower the Advisory Board to choose a substitute candidate. All interested persons have been advised to contact the board before it convenes, should it convene tomorrow evening for this purpose.

Today Is Last Day For Juror Interviews

Today is the last day for interviews for prospective men and women Honor System jurors. Applications can be found in the Student Government office from 4:15-5:30 and 7:15-9 p.m.

The reason for establishing the new system is to make the Honor System more effective by getting more people in direct contact with the Honor Council, and by letting the students share more responsibility with the system.

In the new system the Attorney General Committee investigates the case and presents it in court. In the actual trial, the jury decides the innocence or guilt. Sentence will be decided by the Honor Council.

The jury is composed of: two permanent jurors from a group of four and seven chosen from the applicants for the rotating jury. The new system is used separately for both men and women.

Carter Expresses View On Vending Machines

Bob Carter, independent candidate for president of the student body, has initiated the idea of a training program for student government leaders. Carter also spoke for a continuance of the sharing of vending machine profits with the dorms.

In today's statement, Carter said: "At the present time each men and women's dormitory on campus is receiving $50 from the vending machine profits for dorm TV repairs during the year. This money was given only for the current year. These funds were asked for because the dormitories were spending a great deal of their social funds in order to pay for such repairs. I feel that this extra money has helped the dormitories financially this year and this practice should be continued next year. Any of the repair money that is not used during the year should be carried over and in time a surplus would be accumulated with which a new TV set could be purchased. As president of the student body I would work toward getting this repair money for all dormitories, men and women. "Another area of importance in student government is leadership training. Many of the people who are elected or appointed to positions are not adequately familiar with their positions to fulfill them properly. Although a system of leadership training could not be planned and carried out before the election, such a program could be held after the spring election and also one could be planned for next year. "I feel that such training would be beneficial to all concerned and would add greater continuity to all organizations. Student Government would not necessarily plan or sponsor any or all of these leadership programs, but it would be the job of the president of the student body to see that as many organizations as possible had them. As president I would try to see that this would be done."

Other candidates on the UP slate for senior class offices include: Hamp Laffer, vice-president; Betty Root, secretary; John Whitaker, treasurer and Sarah Arnold, social chairman.

Hare, who has served as clerk of the Men's Honor Council and chairman of the Summer School Council, has served as chairman of the Finance Committee of the Student Legislature.

The Finance Committee, under Hare's leadership, has made the change to let the senior class propose its own budget. In the past, the budget had been formed before the new officers took their positions.

Hare, who has also been an orientation counselor and a member of the Bi-Partisan Selections Board, has stated that he has "talked with George Ragsdale, this year's president and would like to work closely with him in the various senior projects for the remainder of the year."

National Body Recognizes Ping Pong Club

The Chapel Hill Table Tennis Club recently received notice of recognition by the United States Table Tennis Association, according to Bob Galloway, president of the club.

The club was formed shortly before Christmas by a group of University and high school students, who felt that there was a need for such a club in "his area."

From 15 members at its birth, the club has grown so that it now includes some 20 members and approximately 150 active participants. Chad Ross, Bob Brockman, and Galloway are currently copping the honors in the weekly ping-pong tournaments, held every Sunday night at 7 p.m. in the game room of Graham Memorial.

Galloway said that he was currently negotiating for use of Woolen Gymnasium on Sunday nights in order to have enough room to meet the demand of ping-pong enthusiasts.

Galloway invited all students who have any interest in table tennis to come and play any Sunday night.

THE SEASON CHANGES—In spring a young man's fancy supposedly turns to thoughts of love, but this pretty miss seems more concerned with the first cherry blooms than with which Carolina gentlemen may be lurking near.

Furtado Takes Swing At Room Rent Hikes

Don Furtado, Student Party candidate for student body president, gave his opinions Monday increasing room rent to pay for men's dormitories.

In a statement to The Daily Tar Heel Furtado said: "During the past year, the University has almost completed construction on three new men's dormitories. I am pleased to have these badly-needed facilities added to the University, but I am very concerned by the manner in which these new dormitories will be paid for on a self-liquidating basis. "In other words, the students themselves will pay for the dormitories through their room rents over a period of years.

Rents Will Rise "The use of this self-liquidating plan will cause an increase in all dormitory room rents next year. If the self-liquidating policy is continued, each addition to the University's facilities will be accompanied by a rise in dormitory room rent. "It is not the job of students at a state university to provide funds for the construction of dormitories. This is the duty of the state of North Carolina and they must accept that duty. "I know that the self-liquidating construction plan is as distasteful to the administration as it is to the students, but this fact, in itself, has not eliminated the use of the self-liquidating policy. "The president of the Student Body must next year take a leading part in an active student-administration campaign to end the unwarranted and unacceptable policy of paying for the construction of new dormitories by increasing dormitory room rents."

SP Chairman Calls Furtado Best Qualified Student Patry Chairman Pat Adams endorsed Student Party presidential candidate Don Furtado in a statement to The Daily Tar Heel Monday. Adams said, "Don has impressed all of us who have worked with him this year with his quiet, determined leadership. He is without a doubt the most experienced and qualified candidate."

Commenting on Furtado's varied activities in student government, Chairman Adams said, "As vice-president of the Student Party and speaker of the Legislature Don has shown that he can handle complex problems. "He has worked on the Honor Council changes, the Student Union plans, as a member of the GM Board of Directors, as well as with many other problems facing the Carolina Campus."

Adams added, "The Student Party has furnished able and dedicated leadership for the last two years beginning with Bob Young, and I am sure that Don Furtado will offer the same dynamic leadership."
