

Georgia Bulldogs Defeat Carolina 10-5; Gain Series Split

ATHENS, Ga. (AP)—The Georgia Bulldogs scored five runs with but one hit in the seventh inning Tuesday to whip North Carolina's Tar Heels 10-5 in an inter-sectional baseball game.

Carolina beat Georgia Monday. The Tar Heels had matched runs with the Bulldogs until the fatal seventh when the visitors fell apart at the seams, five runs pouring across the plate on three errors, three walks, a sacrifice fly and a single.

The visitors scored two runs in the first, matched in the bottom of the same inning by Georgia, on an error and singles by Johnny Pons and Vaughan Bryson. They got two more in the 6th on Lindsay Frost's triple with two men aboard. Carolina's Gerald Griffin hit a 375-foot homer in the 7th to end the scoring.

Georgia countered with two runs in the first, one in the fourth and two in the fifth, before wrapping it up in the big seventh.

The Bulldogs had three men to get two hits in three trips. No Carolina player got more than one hit.

Philly Gives Batting Views

By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK (AP)—Dave Philley, andyman of the Philadelphia Phillies, who is equally at home in the outfield at first and third base, has a unique distinction.

He is the only player—at least until it is proven otherwise—ever to enjoy a hot batting streak and suffer a wretched batting slump simultaneously.

Philley, it should be explained, is a switch hitter, a specie almost extinct in the major leagues. He is also a pinch hit specialist and a good one. His .414 average in that capacity was the highest in both leagues last year.

So where does that Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde stuff come in?

"It's no mystery," explained the 37-year-old Texan who is starting his 14th year in the big leagues. "I've been a switch hitter through-out my baseball career and it is not unusual for me to enjoy greater success batting from one side of the plate than from the other."

"There was a spell last year, though, when the pitchers couldn't get me out when I was hitting left handed. On the other hand, when switched over to the right side—against lefthanded pitching—I couldn't buy a base hit."

An American Leaguer throughout his entire big league career until he was sold by Detroit to the Phillies last December, Philley appeared in 30 games as a pinch hitter last year. He collected 12 hits in 29 official times at bat.

University Officials Mourn Death Of Trainer Doc White

Richard A. (Doc) White, 47, for 19 years in athletic trainer here at Carolina, died last Thursday of cancer. The much beloved man was active until several days ago when he entered a Durham hospital, where he died.

His associates in university athletics paid tribute to him as "one of the most able and popular members of the staff."

Athletic director Chuck Erickson said "his loss will be great . . . he had an unusual understanding of college athletes and a rare touch with them."

White was honored March 22 at halftime ceremonies of the annual Blue-White football game. He received a trophy awarded by the NCAA, District 3 chapter of the National Athletic Trainers Assn. for his "longtime and unselfish service" in his profession.

Carolina sports publicity director Jake Wade commented thus in his column, Carolina Caravan:

"Call the roll of all the members of the University of North Carolina athletic family, and every vote would say that Doc was one of the best liked members of our team. He just happened to be one of those occasional people in this orbit of too often strife and distrust whom everyone liked."

"It was for a good reason, too. The long time UNC athletic trainer simply was a grand fellow with no ill will to any of his fellow men."

"Richard Arnold White did not have an easy life. He was troubled much, with assorted cares, during the years that I knew him much of this centered around his own health."

"But he was such a good and unselfish fellow that he never burdened you with his troubles. He minded his own business and did his job, always well. He was shy, almost to the point of timidity, never coveted the limelight. He seemed too often occupied with the troubles of others, solicitous of their health and welfare, brushing aside his own and accepting the latter philosophically."

"During his last year on this earth, in the wonderful world of sports which he loved, he suffered much. There were times, during

Netters Face Wake Forest Here Today

Sporting a 3-0 season record, the varsity tennis team goes after its fourth win of the campaign this afternoon when it entertains Al DePorter's Wake Forest net squad at 3 o'clock on the home courts.

For the Tar Heels this match marks the opening of the regular ACC season play and begins their guests to dethrone Maryland as the conference champion. Thus far this season the Carolina netters have achieved victories over Williams, Harvard, and Illinois in non-conference competition.

Carolina coach Ham Strayhorn will probably send the same lineup against the Deacons that he used in the last two matches. Tar Heel captain Bobby Bortner, playing in the number one position, will be gunning for his second win of the year. Steve Bank will play in the second slot followed by Junior Geoff Black at three. Malcolm Clark, Ben Keys, and Dick Makepeace will play the four, five, and six singles.

In his freshman year as varsity tennis coach DePorter compiled a 3-7 season mark. This year, however, the Wake Forest coach will have four lettermen returning from last year's squad which lost to the Tar Heels. Today's match will also mark the beginning of the ACC flag chase for the Deacons who have only one match against M.I.T. under their belts to date.

TRIP TO EUROPE

UNC students who plan to go on the UNC trip to Europe this summer will meet today at 4:30 p.m. in the Library Assembly Room. John Caspary, a Swiss student from Churwalden, Switzerland, will speak informally about Switzerland.

Tar Heels Runner-Up In Dixie Classic Action

By RUSTY HAMMOND

Carolina's Tar Heels rolled over two straight foes in the Dixie Baseball Classic before bowing to N. C. State in the finals last Thursday night at Winston-Salem.

The Heels bounced all touring eastern teams they have met, obtained a tie with Virginia Tech and then met their downfall in their own Atlantic Coast Conference against State.

The Heels fans saw the Heels tame Princeton's Tigers here last week. Carolina then rolled over Connecticut 12-3 to reach the finals against the crack Wake Forest nine.

The Tar Heels ran into a pitcher who just wasn't to be hit Thursday night in Joe Jones of the Pack. Jones blazed a one-hit shut-out over Carolina in leading his State teammates to a 4-0 win and the Classic crown.

Carolina's only base hit came when Carson Oldham smacked a grass-cutter to left in the sixth inning. The Wolfpack got all of its runs off starter Charlie Aycock, one in the first and three in the third, before reliever Johnny Johnson came on to silence the State bats for the remainder of the contest. But the Chapel Hillians just couldn't find the range against Jones, who pitched a masterful game and won honors as the tournament's best hurler.

The Tar Heels came out of the tourney with not only the runner-up team, but the tournament's top outfielder, Gerald Griffin, sophomore from Williamston, N. C., who was voted the honor by coaches and reporters and awarded a trophy. Griffin was narrowly nosed out by State's Danny Casteen as the leading hitter in the series.

Cage Banquet This Saturday

The annual University of North Carolina basketball banquet, at which the Chapel Hill Athletic Club will be host, will be held Saturday at 6:45 p.m. at Lenoir Hall, Vic Huggins, club president, has announced.

Both varsity and freshman squads will be honored.

Coach Frank McGuire will be the chief speaker, with Roy Armstrong, University Dean of Admissions, master of ceremonies.

Monograms will be presented by Athletic Director Chuck Erickson and Chapel Hill Athletic Club plaques will be presented by Huggins to the seniors.

The seniors receiving 1957-58 monograms are All-America Pete Brennan, Tommy Kearns, Bob Cunningham and Roy Searcy.

The Tar Heels this past season failed to repeat as national and Atlantic Coast Conference champions, but won the Dixie Classic and had a fine conference record of 10-4 and overall of 19-7.

Members of the Chapel Hill Athletic Club have been invited to bring guests, including their wives, and Huggins expects a large attendance.

The Club now has a total membership of 141, an increase of 75 during the past year.

GRAHAM MEMORIAL POOL ROOM

THE CASE OF THE CURIOUS CAPER
By HACK HACKFIELD

It was 4:27 A.M. In the morning. It was dark outside. It was raining. The streets were wet. We were working the night watch out of the Game Warden's Office.

I'm Clyde Smith. My partner's name is Smith. Clyde Smith. Sometimes it's very confusing. But we manage. Somehow.

We were walking down a dark, deserted street this particular morning. As we walked along, we talked. "How's your wife, Clyde?"

"O.K., I guess, Clyde. How's yours?"

"O.K. Have a cigarette?"

"Naw. Tryin' to quit."

"Oh."

Suddenly, out of the darkness, we heard a noise.

"You hear that, Clyde?"

"Yeah. We better check it."

We checked it. Caught the guy, too. He got twenty years, for shooting pool out of season.

MORAL: Open season on pool all year 'round, at GM. No license required. Shoot all you want. Take some home to Mother.
