Women Leaders Comment On Rules

Five coed leaders expressed varying views on the Women's Residence Council rules for freshmen Monday.

Miss Connie Bernstein, past student legislature member; Miss Susanne Munstler, editor of the Coed Handbook; Miss Dot Pressly, secretary of the student body; Miss Martha Wilkinson, UP candidate for student body secretary, and Miss Libby McCord, Women's Residence Council Representative, were among the group commenting on the new rules.

Miss Pressly saw need for rules like these but thought they were out of place at Carolina. "I think the rules that have been suggested should be modified so that they are in keeping with the over-all philosophy at Carolina," she stated.

"If I were under such rules as have been passed by the council, I'm sure that it would build up a certain resentment in me toward upper classmen," stated Miss Bernstein.

She added that if the freshmen entering the University are supposed to be of a higher caliber, based on higher standards for entering, then they are mature enough to go by the same rules as others.

Nurses Like Rules
Forty out of fifty-five freshman nurses expressed their desire to see the rules put into effect. The results came after an informal poll was taken Tuesday afternoon.

In commenting on putting freshmen into one dorm Miss Bernstein said "This is discrimination against them."

Miss Mosteller pointed out that there was a need for some freshmen rules in order to adjust to college life. "Being turned loose could be confusing and also hurt the entering freshmen individually," she said.

Her main objection to the new rules closed study in particular, was that it would limit freshmen women's activities in campus activities.

Award Winner To Be Chosen By Committee

The annual Jane Craig Gray Memorial Award presentation will be held Sunday, April 20 at 4:30 p.m. in the Main Lounge of Graham Memorial.

This award is presented annually by Beta Chi chapter of Kappa Delta Sorority in memory of Jane Craig Gray, who was initiated as an alumna in 1950. The award recognizes that member of the Junior Class who has proven herself most outstanding in character, leadership and scholarship.

Each year this junior woman's name engraved on the award plaque to be kept in the Kappa Delta house and the official announcement will be in the commencement program.

There will be a selection committee composed of Dr. Katherine Carmichael, Dean of Women and Chairman of the Selections Committee; Assistant to the Dean of Students, Ray Jefferies; retiring president of the student body, Sonny Evans; retiring chairman of the Women's Honor Council, Kit Whitehurst; retiring chairman of Women's Orientation, Mary Jane Fischer substituting for Susan Mayhew; Dean of Awards, Dr. Ernest Mackie; Personnel Advisor to Women, Miss Luanna Thornton.

The former Miss Jane Boyden Craig of Winston-Salem, Mr. Gray attended the National Cathedral Academy in Washington and graduated from Vassar with honors. In Chapel Hill, she was active in the organization of the school Art Guild, Newcomers Club, Colonial Dames and was organizing president of the North Carolina Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

The chapter will hold a reception in honor of the award winner immediately after her selection. At this time she will be presented with a silver card tray with her name engraved on it.

Templeton's Ability Overcomes Darkness

By RUSSELL RICE
Take a beginning piano student, blindfold him, put him before a piano keyboard, and tell him to learn the instrument well enough to perform with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. When the piano student accomplished this feat, he can say that he has equaled Alec Templeton.

Templeton was blind at birth and has never seen a piano key or any other object. Today he is one of the foremost concert pianists, having played with the principal symphonies of the world.

He plays the piano with an ease and skill which equals the greatest artists in the profession. As one listens to him perform, it is difficult to comprehend that this man has never seen a single sheet of music.

Templeton's supreme musicianship is a triumph of genius over incredible handicaps. Alec Templeton is not only a classical pianist, but also one of the most tasteful improvisors in the American jazz field.

He is one of the very few who are associated with both the classics and jazz.

His inspired "jamming" in informal all-night sessions have really been out of this world. Born in England, he is one of the first of his nation to get into American jazz.

Millions of people have listened to Alec Templeton by way of radio and television. These two entertainment mediums have brought out his wonderful charm and wit. If Templeton should give up the piano, he could surely become a success as a comedian.

SPOTLIGHTS AND FOOTLIGHTS

Fleece, Valkyries Have Big Night

By DAVIS YOUNG
Cymbals clang, the crowd stirs and two hooded figures start down the aisles of Memorial Hall to the tune of Wagner's Siegfried from the opera "The Ring" on their way to tapping thirteen new members into the Order of the Golden Fleece.

Located in Monday night's audience were the tappers—all totally unaware of their extreme fortune. They were scattered through the audience and many were hard for the two hooded Fleece-men to reach.

However, true to Fleece tradition, the new initiates were all grabbed and pulled from their seats at precisely the moment the cymbals clanged and escorted from Memorial to the sound of tremendous ovations.

As they were pulled from their seats, their names and hometowns were read. It was then explained to the audience just what field each one had excelled in, which made him eligible for membership.

Tension mounts
The packed house seemed to love the "cloak and dagger" involved with the initiation and signaled their approval without hesitation as each new Fleece member was selected. And then they would settle back and watch the tension mount as the hooded figures would their way through the audience looking for some one else who filled the qualifications for the Golden Fleece.

Those tapped for membership on Monday night included Charles Ashford, Wayne Bishop, Jean Pierre Boissavit, John Brooks and Herman Godwin.

Also: Robin Hinson, Jesse Weimar Jones, Roland (Buddy) Payne, Harvey Peck, Clifton Hunter Tillman, John Whitaker, John Whitty and Jan Philip Schinhan.

Following the annual public appearance of the Golden Fleece was the annual Valkyrie Sing. It featured musical acts from dormitories, sororities and fraternities. Acting as Mistress of Ceremonies was Dot Pressly a member of the Valkyries, the highest honorary for women.

Biggest Laughs
The Sigma Nu fraternity gave the crowd many of its biggest laughs of the evening with a rock 'n' roll skit. Mangum Dorm did a takeoff on Lee's surrendering to Grant. They ended their act by having the crowd join them in a rousing chorus of "Dixie."

The Tri Deltas, all dressed in black with white gloves, gave two beautiful renditions of old Negro spirituals which enabled them to

Furtado Student Body Prexy; SP Candidate Wins 1268-1174

By BILL KINCAID

Don Furtado, Student Party candidate, won the student body presidency by a narrow margin of 84 votes in Tuesday's runoff election.

He defeated Al Goldsmith, University Party candidate, by receiving 1268 votes to Goldsmith's 1174.

Voting by districts was:
Dorm Men's I: Furtado—132, Goldsmith—98; Dorm Men's II: Furtado—218, Goldsmith—138; Dorm Men's III: Furtado—133, Goldsmith—82; Dorm Men's IV: Furtado—234, Goldsmith—144; Dorm Men's V: Furtado—133,

Goldsmith—98; Dorm Women—Furtado—245, Goldsmith—161; Town Women: Furtado—29, Goldsmith—70; Town Men I: Furtado—10, Goldsmith—94; Town Men II: Furtado—66, Goldsmith—210; Town Men III: Furtado—58, Goldsmith 68; Town Men IV: Furtado—7, Goldsmith—11; Infirmary: Furtado—12, Goldsmith—7.

Furtado, in a post election statement to The Daily Tar Heel, said: "Nothing that I can say could ever express my appreciation to the students of Carolina. I can only promise that in the coming year I will attempt to prove myself worthy of their confidence. "My sincere thanks go to all of those people who have so unselfishly devoted long hours of their time to helping me.

"This has been a long and hard-fought campaign. The great respect that the campus has for Al Goldsmith is evidenced by the support which he gained. This next year is going to be a difficult one for student government, and I know that I can depend on his able assistance."

Goldsmith, in a final statement said: "The students of Carolina have today chosen an outstanding person to lead them for the coming year. I have always thought most highly of Don, and although we differ on many political views I count him as one of my closest friends.

"I think the campus is now aware of the many problems which must be faced. I sincerely hope that Don will adapt some of the plans and ideas I pushed in my campaign as I feel they have much merit.

"I thank all the students who voted for me both on the first of April and today. I hope they will all rally around our new president and help him as he faces this most difficult job."

Men Term Coed Rules 'Unjust' DTH Poll Shows

Nearly 90% of the undergraduate male population seems to feel that the new coed rules are unjust. This was revealed by a Daily Tar Heel poll taken yesterday in seven dormitories and four fraternities.

94% of the male population felt that the rules needed changing, 4% did not know whether the rules were just or unjust.

482 people returned polls out of 683 that were sent out for a 71% average return. Most criticized were rules concerning closed study halls, lights out regulations, and earlier closing hours; however there was a good deal of opposition to weekend rules and segregation of dormitories.

Among the men, there seemed to be little sentiment for the new rules and some expressed the desire that the present rules be abolished.

Commentaries ranged from the profane to a statement like the following: "Such rules are typical of those instituted in Victorian days. If a person cannot live with his or her elders, how can one ever hope to become a more rounded person. Forcing one to study has never worked out, that I know of."

"I went to a strict prep school. A person of college age should be allowed to use his or her own discretion as to how to study at night."

Another commented: "Why must there be changes when freshman girls have behaved as well as any others? Also the rules tend to inhibit "reality testing" and social development. They tend to imply that the girls have to be looked after, constantly watched and that they are inherently evil."

A more full breakdown of the poll will be released this weekend, after which the poll will be turned over to the Women's Residence Council for consideration.

Local AED Chapter Hosting Convention

The local chapter of Alpha Epsilon Delta, national pre-medical and pre-dental honorary society, is sponsoring a state-wide pre-med and pre-dental convention in conjunction with the annual state Alpha Epsilon Delta convention this Saturday.

The sessions have been planned so as to be most beneficial to all pre-professional students in the state.

The program will consist of a morning session in the auditorium of Hill Hall, and an afternoon session in the clinical auditorium of the North Carolina Memorial Hospital.

Featured in a Saturday morning panel discussion on "Pre-professional Education as Training for Life" will be four educators: Dr. Robert Cordell, department of surgery at the Bowman School of Medicine; Dr. Nathan Womack, professor of surgery at the UNC Medical School; Dr. William DeMeritt, assistant dean of the UNC Dental School, and Dr. Kenneth Penrod, assistant dean of the Duke Medical School.

The afternoon session will be held in the Clinical Auditorium of the hospital, and will feature short talks by a medical and a dental student describing life in medical and dental schools.

Frank W. Farrell Jr., president of the local chapter, stresses that this convention is open to all interested students on this campus as well as any others who might wish to attend.

One Act Plays By Students Open Friday

Three new one act plays by students in the Department of Dramatic Art will be seen Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in The Playmakers Theatre.

"The Dangers of Great Literature," by Gabrielle Roepke, heads the bill. The play, directed by Page Williams, is a comedy on the Paris-Helen-Meneleus theme. Featured in the cast are John Sneden as Melvin, Lore Schuller as Helen, and Chuck Tomlinson as Perry. Special music for the show will be played by Taylor Williams. The setting is designed by Millard McDonald.

The second play is a folk fantasy entitled "Mossell and the Laurel Bush," by George H. Hill, directed by Lew Goldstein. In the cast are Barbara Dixon as Mossell, Dorothy Walters as Lenore, John Whitty as Mr. Sileno and Ronald Belk as Carly. Settings are by Chuck Tomlinson.

The final play is "The Freudian Years," by Ken Callendar, the story of an ultra-modern family, directed by Lucy Ann Dunlap. The players are Harvey Knox as Waldo, Pat Simmons as Sophia, Betty Rhodes as Margaret, David Peterson as Henry, Kay Rogers as Hannah, and Jim Potter as Gus. The set is designed by David Small.

Admission to the plays is free and the public is cordially invited.

Bridge Results

Jap Memory teamed with Dr. George Doak of Chapel Hill to win second place in Monday night's bridge game at Graham Memorial. The only other students to place in east-west competition were Al Alexander and Bill Greene, who placed third. Mrs. C. P. Richmond and Roy L. Smith took first place.

The April master point game is scheduled for next week. The director announced that renewals of memberships were due and urged student bridge players to renew their expired memberships. He invited those who are not members to join.
