By STAN BLACK Weaver addressed the Interdormitory Council Wednesday night about the proposed "counseling system." which "of" affects what is now known as the lower quad. The dormitories affected are Graham. Stacy, Everett, Lews, and Aycock.

The dormitory counselor system as outlined by Dean Weaver provides for fifteen graduate students who would serve as advisors on each floor of the five dormitories in the quad. Dean Weaver said that "any graduate student should, by his mere presence and example on the floor, encourage responsible self-government." The counselors and the stores committee, would function purely in an advis-ery capacity without disciplinary authority, for the purpose of "talking to freshmen about any sort of problems that might come up." They can assist in special cases, for instance psychiatric problems or boys who have serious unexpected finanical difficulties. There is a spec ial fund at the discretion of the Dean Of Student Affairs that could be used in just such cases."
