Lower Quad Advisers Plan Gets OK By IDC

The Interdormitory Council Wednesday night endorsed the dormitory adviser plan proposed by Dean of Student Affairs Fred Weaver. The plan provides for paid graduate advisers on each floor of the five dormitories in the lower quad. They will serve in an advisory capacity to freshman and sophomore students in these dorms if the plan is adopted.

Rudy Edwards, president of the IDC, said that "The IDC decided to endorse Dean Weaver's plan because we feel that it is a step in the right direction to provide adequate counseling that has not previously been offered."

"Since there is no discrimination about where students can live, we think that the plan will be fair to all students," he declared. Edwards emphasized that the fact that students, regardless of class, will be allowed to reside where they wish, strongly influence the IDC in its decision.

The appointment of several committee chairmen was announced.

Wednesday night. New chairmen are Phil Edwards, social; Doug Bayliff, rules; Paul Woodward, blazer sales; Wade Markman, vending machines; Mike Childs, publicity; Jerry Chichester, dorm improvements and Tom Cordell, intramurals.

Two new members of the IDC Court were elected. Tom Mehl of Everett Dorm and Phil Edwards of Winston will serve on the court.

Bob Smith of Winston Dorm was appointed to the Foreign Exchange Student Committee as the IDC representative on the committee.

Doug Bayliff was appointed chairman of a special elections committee to help integrate the new dormitories into student government next fall.

It was announced that there will be an open meeting of the IDC Court revisions committee in the Woodhouse Room at Graham Memorial on Tuesday, May 13. Otto Funderburk is chairman of the committee.

FIGHT FOR FACULTY — PART III

Research Plays Role In Instructor's Choice

By PRINGLE PIPKIN

Salary is not everything. Opportunities for research are often one of the biggest factors influencing a man in his choice of institutions.

Alumni Drive For Members Proceeds Here

Alumni Secretary J. Maryon (Spike) Saunders yesterday invited all 1958 degree candidates to join the General Alumni Association at the special on-campus rate of $1. Regular dues are $5.

On Wednesday it had been announced that all seniors would be solicited for membership in the Association at the reduced rate of $1 by a campuswide committee of seniors, appointed by Class President George Ragsdale.

In extending an invitation to membership in the University's alumni association Mr. Saunders added, "May I take this opportunity to welcome new strength to the roster of UNC alumni. The enrollment in the Association of new members who are now completing their campus careers is regarded with pleasant anticipation by 'old students'."

The General Alumni Association engages in a program of support for the University in various ways. It sponsors general meetings of alumni in many parts of the world and each year organizes class reunions at commencement.

An Association magazine, The Alumni Review, is mailed 20 times (10 as a football supplement) during the year to some 8,500 dues-paying members throughout the United States and overseas.

"Young people like to be in a university where research of national importance is underway," Dean H. A. Perry explained.

One staff member of the School of Business Administration was being offered by another university an increase of approximately $1,000.

"The thing which was really making him give the offer his serious consideration was not the difference in salary but the fact that they were promising him a half teaching load so that he might have time and freedom to engage in productive research," Dean Maurice Lee said at a luncheon.

The teaching load of a professor at UNC ranges from nine to twelve hours. This amount is regarded as being higher than that of some of the better universities.

The English Department recently lost a staff member because another university offered him more time for research.

Time is not the only factor reg-

MANGUM FOREST ECHOES TO CALL OF THE WILDEST

A room in Mangum dormitory recently sported some incongruous decorations, notably a small oak tree with Christmas lights and ornaments. The walls were festooned with ivy to add to the outdoor atmosphere, and a park bench for young lovers was placed appropriately underneath the oak.

Potted plants filled the corners of the room, while the walls were decorated with mementoes of the Old South. The gentle strains of Louis Prima's "Call of the Wildest" came over the hi-fi set in one corner of the "forest."

Editors Meet Features Haynie And Kilpatrick

The complete program for the 9th annual meeting of the North Carolina Conference of Editorial Writers was announced here today.

Speakers are Murray Kempton, N. Y. Post columnist; James Jackson Kilpatrick, editor of the Richmond News Leader; Hugh Haynie, editorial cartoonist for the Greensboro Daily News; Harry Golden, editor of the Carolina Israelite; General Capus M. Waynick, commander of the N. C. National Guard.

Editorial critiques will be executed by Robert H. Mason of the Norfolk Virginian Pilot and Prof. Kenneth Byerly of the UNC Department of Journalism.

Hal Tribble, associate editor of the Charlotte Observer, is chairman of the conference. Cecil Prince, editor of the Charlotte News, is program chairman.

The program opens Friday evening, May 16 at 8 p.m. at Carroll Hall small auditorium, with a debate entitled "Dixie's Destiny" between Editor Kilpatrick and Editor Golden.

Editorial critiques begin at 9:30 a. m. Saturday, May 17.

The luncheon at the Carolina Inn Ballroom is at 12:30. General Waynick and Haynie will be speakers.

A social hour will be held at 5 p. m. at the Ranch House, with dinner at 6 p. m., also at the Ranch House.

Form Letter, House Closing Top Business

The Panhellenic Council, meeting Wednesday afternoon, closed all sorority houses to activities during the week preceding exams except for Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

No activities which can be defined as sorority functions will be held during that time.

A form letter was presented to the Council to be mailed out to the parents of all girls entering school in the fall. The letter, which was prepared by a committee this week, explains to parents the conditions of sorority rush and the limited membership of sororities at UNC. This will be the first time that such a letter has been sent out, and it is hoped that it will serve to clarify rush conditions on campus.

It was announced that the Panhel Workshop for sorority officers will be held on May 12.

Phi Debating Society Picks John Brooks

John Brooks, junior from Greenville, was acclaimed president of the Philanthropic Literary Society at the next-to-last meeting of the semester Tuesday. Brooks was unopposed.

Outgoing President Jess Stribling was congratulated by Brooks, who was elected for a semester, and all the outgoing officers were applauded by the society.

Don Jacobs defeated David Matthews in the night's most hotly contested race, that for president pro tem. Jacobs ran on a platform of presenting bills for debate as topics arose instead of a set schedule.

In other voting William Fachert was elected parliamentarian; Don Gray, critic; Bill Jackson, treasurer; and Judy Huntress, clerk.

Legislature Puts Dorm Rent Issue Under Study

By DAVE JONES

An emergency committee to place rising dorm rents under study was created by the student legislature last night.

In speaking for this bill, the author, Representative Norman

Smith (SP) made the following statement:

"The room rent dilemma is a problem of such magnitude that we cannot overemphasize it in our consideration of this bill. Room rents are going up $20 beginning with the fall semester, approximately $15 of which is going into a self-liquidating plan for dormitory construction.

"This increase in itself is serious enough; it will impose hardship on students already in residence here, and it will encourage and perhaps deny an education to many young people throughout the state who have set their sights on the University of North Carolina. "The most distressing facet of this room rent situation is that more increases are yet to come. It may be compared to an iceberg—one eleventh of which is visible above the surface.

"Construction of B, C and D dormitories and an addition to Spencer Hall has been completed, but already approved are a married couples' housing development, two more new men dorms, an addition to the Nursing School Dorm, and Pharmacy School housing project. Completion of these will mean more room rent soon."

An amendment to the bill to put the legislature on record as being against the principle of "Self Liquidation," was introduced. There was a great deal of debate, after which it was defeated as an amendment unanimously.

Professor Masket, of the UNC Dept. of Physics and advisor to the UNC Amateur Radio Club, spoke on behalf of the proposed appropriation. He gave a list of equipment needed by the club to begin effective operation, and cited examples of the need for that operation. A move to table the bill until next fall was defeated, and the appropriation set at $2,000 and passed.

Yates And Raney Will Head ATO Next Year

Tucker Yates, a senior from Asheboro, has been elected president of Alpha Tau Omega Service fraternity for the coming year. Tom Kenan, a rising senior from Durham, will be vice president.

Bev Raney was elected secretary, and Malcolm McLean was elected treasurer.

UGLY MAN

Stan Leggett was proclaimed the Ugly Man of the UNC senior class at the Senior Picnic held yesterday.

Leggett won a race against nine other contestants, by a money vote held last week at the YMCA.

Dot Pressly and Sonny Evans were elected Miss Aluppa and Mr. Alumni respectively, in balloting held Tuesday in Memorial Hall.

The election climaxed a senior day postponed once due to rain.

War Centennial Group Invites James Patton

James W. Patton, professor of history and director of the Southern Historical Collection at UNC, has been invited to become a member of the Advisory Council of the Civil War Centennial Commission.

The invitation was extended to Dr. Patton and to other notable authorities on Southern history by General U. S. Grant, III, chairman of the Commission, which was established by a special Act of Congress on September 7, 1957.

The function of the Advisory Committee, which will be composed of outstanding historians and authors in the field of Southern history, will be to suggest and guide appropriate commemorative events and projects. Plans are already well under way for the nationwide commemoration of the great conflict between the North and South. The years 1961-1965 have been set aside by Congressional Legislation as a time during which many special events will take place throughout the country, celebrating the war which established the fact that the United States would remain permanently one nation.

Some of the projects which the Civil War Centennial Commission experts to undertake are the establishment and maintenance of national Civil War military and battle field parks; the microfilming of Civil War Records now in the National Archives in order to make these records easily available to libraries throughout the world; to encourage persons who have in their private possession family records and other Civil War items of historical value, to deposit such records, letters maps and pictures in historical depositories which will then make these materials available to teachers, authors, and all persons interested in the Civil War.

Other projects of the commission are the design of a mobile museum which will tour the country during the centennial years; and numerous other projects which will involve the work of local groups co-operating with the national Civil War Centennial Commission to make the memorial years of 1961-1965 an honorable commemoration of the supreme experience in our history as a nation.

Recital Here Will Feature Eddie Bass

Eddie Bass, UNC music major from Farmville, will present a trumpet recital in Hill Hall, today at 8 p.m.

Mr. Bass' Senior Recital will be accompanied by Hunter Tillman, a senior organ major at the University.

Bass is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the Order of the Grail, and the Golden Fleece. He has been president of the UNC Band and Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity. He plays solo cornet in the band and first trumpet with the UNC Symphony.

Among his compositions are a prelude for brass choir and a suite for brass and percussion. Bass is a student of Calvin Huber, graduate assistant in the Music Dept.

The recital will open with Haydn's "Concerto for Trumpet," van Hoboken Vile. No. 1. "A Pastorale" by Francis Baines will follow the Haydn Concerto. After intermission Mr. Bass will play Kent Kennan's "Sonata for Trumpet and Piano," a twentieth century composition in rather dissonant style.

The program will be concluded with two pieces by Purcell, "Voluntary in D Major" and "Voluntary in C Major," which will be accompanied on the organ.

The concert is Number 20 in the current series sponsored by the Dept. of Music and is open to the public at no charge.

Dorm Rent Draws Fire From Solon

By ED ROWLAND and DAVIS YOUNG

"We've traditionally had low rent here at Carolina. We have usually been equal or slightly below most Southern schools in that respect." These were the words of Norman Smith, a member of the Student Legislature, as he talked Tuesday about bill being voted upon tonight.

Legislature Smith proposes to have President of the Student Body Don Furtado set up an emergency committee to investigate the rapid rise in room rent proposed for next year.

When queried as to what the students could do to change the present self-liquidating plan. Smith stated, "The best way to work is to have responsible students personally appeal to their representatives in the State General Assembly."

"When they become aware of the unjustified position we are in, they will have to take notice. We must also work through the Consolidated University Council and with Student Government at Western Carolina College, Appalachian State Teachers College and East Carolina College."

Smith went on to explain that the reason that he had not included State College in Raleigh and Women's College in Greensboro on his list was because as far as he knew, they were not facing the same situation. W. C., for example, has two vacant dorms this year according to Smith and is not faced with the problem of having to finance new dorms through a self-liquidation program.

Comment was also heard from the administration in South Building. Dean Fred Weaver had this to say: "It is the policy of the state of North Carolina and many other states to require that all residence halls be built on a self-liquidation basis."

"It costs approximately $15 per dorm resident to finance a loan of 1 will be used for future generations million dollars over a 40 year period. Some of this will have to go through, to pay for maintenance and increased staff."

In a letter from Weaver to Chancellor William B. Aycock, it was made public that there is some possibility that 14,759 students will be enrolled at Carolina by 1970. This is in comparison with the almost 7,500 currently studying here.

Weaver went on to comment, "We do not consider that a self-liquidating plan for financing residence halls is satisfactory because it makes it necessary for the students to pay for the buildings which will be used for future generations and it works against keeping the cost of education as low as possible, which should be the objective of a state university."

"We should be relieved of this burden by the State paying for the buildings or by the State taking over the cost of maintenance and operation in residence halls. The latter is preferable."

It is understood that the new dorms—Teague, C and D—have been paid for by previous hikes in rent. The new raise will cover the cost of two dorms for men, a division for Health Affairs and one half of a new wing in the Nurses' Dorms.

Pine Room Dance

The Three Deuces, a Raleigh combo, will play for a dance at the Pine Room Saturday from 8-12 p.m.

Graham Memorial Activities Board will sponsor the dance.
