

2100 START ORIENTATION WEEK THURSDAY

Four Head Executive Activities

Four students are elected each spring in campus-wide elections to head the executive branch of student government.

Serving as student body president this year is Don Furtado, senior from Garner.

Others officers are: Ralph Cummings, vice president, Raleigh; Miss Paddy Sue Wall, secretary, Winston-Salem; and Charles D. Gray III, treasurer, Gastonia.

One of the president's most important duties is to represent the student body in all dealings with students of other schools, and with the faculty and trustees.

The president also is authorized to appoint committees and his cabinet, carry out laws passed by the student legislature, and veto legislature acts. Legislation can be passed over his veto, however.

HIGHLIGHT

A highlight of the presidential year is the State of the Campus address, given annually to the legislature.

The vice president serves as speaker of the legislature and as its presiding officer. He becomes president in the event that office is vacated.

Maintaining the records and files of the student body is the secretary. She also records the minutes of all student body meetings and handles correspondence for the executive branch.

The treasurer disburses the money appropriated by the legislature.

No Freshmen Allowed Cars On Campus

With the parking meter fight ended with at least a partial victory for the students in that there will be no meters in fraternity areas, there is still the sobering note of old and new car regulations for students.

In order to relieve congestion on campus, two years ago Bob Young, then president of the student body, agreed to the following limitations on car privileges so that most students would be allowed cars:

1) No freshmen may have cars on the campus.

2) Only sophomores who have attained a "C" average may have cars on campus.

3) All cars must be registered with the assistant to the dean of student affairs. (Registration costs $1 and will be conducted during academic registration, the procedures to be announced at that time.)

4) No car may park between the hours of 7 a.m. and 3 p.m. in areas of the campus designated for staff use.

5) Student cars should show their registration stickers at all times.

Violation of the parking rules may mean that a student loses car privileges at Chapel Hill.

During the past year the University built a parking lot near the Bell Tower to ease the growing car problem, due to growing enrollment. NOT USED

However, students did not use the lot, and consequently through agreement between student government and administration a plan was set up to make use of this lot.

The new regulations state that all General College cars with the exception of those who have a place to park off the street in fraternity areas must park their cars during the hours of 7 a.m.-3 p.m. in the Bell Tower Lot or away from both campus and the downtown section of Chapel Hill.

These cars will be given a special Bell Tower Lot sticker which will assure their finding a space in the lot.

Pausing for a moment's rest in front of Graham Memorial are the leaders of UNC's student government executive branch. From left to right are Don Furtado, president; Ralph Cummings, vice president; Miss Paddy Sue Wall, secretary; and Charlie Gray, treasurer.

3 General Meetings Get Week Underway; Program Is Varied

Orientation begins Thursday for approximately 2100 new students at Carolina.

The real beginning will be at 7 p.m. Thursday when meetings for all new students will be held.

Freshmen men will meet in Memorial Hall, freshmen women in Hill, and transfer men in Hill Hall. Math and English placement tests will be held earlier in the day, at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., respectively, in Carroll Hall.

Entering UNC for the first time will be approximately 1200 General College students (including transfers), 400 coeds, 250-300 graduate students, 150 transfers, 65 Pharmacy, 65 Nursing, and 18 Dental Hygiene students.

All figures are approximate. Directing the orientation program this year are Herman Godwin of Dunn, and Miss Katie Stewart of Norfolk, Va., respective chairmen for men and women.

New students will take physicals, placement tests, and several campus tours.

Friday night Chancellor Aycock will speak and a film entitled, "In the Name of Freedom" will be shown. The chancellor's reception will be held Sunday afternoon from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m.

A discussion of academic life will take place Monday night at 7:30 p.m. in Memorial Hall. Speaking will Dr. James Godfrey, dean of the faculty, and Dr. George Taylor, associate history professor and head of the superior freshman program.

For the complete orientation schedule see page 6.

Free movies, a picnic, and a special welcome by local merchants are other highlights of the week-long program.

Men's Orientation Chairman Godwin said the program will be "a most interesting and enjoyable experience" for all the new students.

"In addition to becoming acquainted with the many aspects of life here at Carolina... the newcomer will also have opportunities to meet such important campus personalities as President Friday, Chancellor Aycock, and Student Body President Don Furtado," Godwin said.

The Orientation Committee has tried, he said, "to keep the welfare of the student in mind. It is the committee's hope that all the activities will be fully participated in by all."

160 Freshmen Get Early Start At New Hope

A total of 160 freshmen Monday got the jump on the remaining 950 (approximate) first year men enrolling here.

The group came early for the annual Freshman Camp—sponsored by the YMCA and YWCA—at Camp New Hope.

The program was drawn up by Jim Carse and Claude Shotts of the YMCA staff and Jim Jordan, UNC senior from Greensboro. Around 30 upperclassmen signed up to serve as camp counselors.

Monday the freshmen took part in sports and get-acquainted sessions. Morehead Foundation Executive Secretary Roy Armstrong and Dean of Student Affairs Fred Weaver were guest speakers that evening.

SUCCESS TIPS

Tips on how to be a college success were given the new students on Tuesday by former UNC Chancellor Robert B. House Tuesday morning. Tuesday afternoon the group heard the YM and YW presidents, Bill Sugg of Winston-Salem and Miss DiDana De Vere of Morganton, describe their organizations.

David Gover, graduate sociology student, talked to the group Tuesday night on "Dating, Courtship and Marriage."

PANEL TALKS

The pros and cons of fraternities were discussed by a panel including Jim Carse; Tucker Yates, president of the Interfraternity Council; Bob Carter, past president of the Interdormitory Council; and Ray Jefferies, assistant to the dean of student affairs.

A panel consisting entirely of UNC students then discussed extracurricular activities.

This group was made up of Don Furtado, student body president; Harold Johnson, representing the debating societies; and Seamon Gottlieb, speaking for the cultural group.

The Rev. Charles Jones, Community Church minister, talked about "The Religious Challenges and Opportunities of College."

The freshmen were introduced to all the campus denominational chaplains.

WINDUP

Consolidated University President William C. Friday is scheduled to speak informally to the group on Wednesday, the program's final day.

Also visiting the camp then will be Chancellor William B. Aycock and several other University officials.

UNC's cheerleaders will participate in a program then that will end the affair. The campers will then return to the campus to join other newcomers for orientation week, beginning Thursday.

Warm Greeting To Be Staged For Foreigners

Plans are underway to insure a warm welcome for the estimated 75 new foreign students who will be enrolled for the fall semester in the University.

F. Carlyle Shepard, associate dean of the General College and assistant adviser for foreign students, estimates that between 75 and 80 new foreign students will join the 30 returning foreign students on the UNC campus this week.

A committee headed by Miss Sipra Bose, a University student, has mapped out a program to orient the students from the various points of the globe to the "Carolina way of life."

Upon their arrival in Chapel Hill, the foreign students will be met by members of the orientation committee. Undergraduates will arrive Wednesday and will follow the regular orientation schedule set up by the University for all new entering students.

The special orientation program for foreign students, except those in the School of Public Health, will begin Saturday with a picnic to be held in cooperation with the Community Church in Chapel Hill. A separate orientation program has been set up for students in public health.

On Sunday, Sept. 14, the foreign students will gather at the United Congregational Church for a group breakfast. At that time they will meet the adviser for foreign students, Dr. A. C. Howell of the University campus faculty; the president of the Cosmopolitan Club, Nola Hatten; along with counselors and student advisers.

Sunday afternoon the group will meet in the Library Assembly Room where they will be briefed on banking, post office regulations, eating and shopping facilities, and the academic life at UNC.

At 2:30, the foreign students will join UNC freshmen and others for a reception being given by UNC Chancellor William B. Aycock and his wife.

A Dutch dinner at Lenoir Hall with a discussion on extra-curricular activities will conclude Sunday's plans.

Monday morning will begin with a coffee hour followed by a special session of orientation for graduate students with tours and lectures. The final event in the foreign students' orientation will be (See GREETINGS, Page 7)

UNC Housing Situation? It's 'Thirty Below Zero'

By CLARKE JONES

What's the housing situation here? Serious, says University Housing Officer James Wadsworth. "It's thirty below zero."

Wadsworth said there are thirty men here who do not have rooms at the present time. These men will be put in Cobb dormitory's basement until rooms can be found for them.

PROBLEMS

Wadsworth listed several problems he's facing in his job to get students placed.

"Some of the third year medical students are here and are temporarily living in Connor dorm. They have to shift around in Connor as the regular occupants arrive."

The football players are living in Winston, he said. They will have to move around as the regular students come back.

"But the problems make it routine," he said. Three new dormitories behind Woolen Gym will open this fall and will house 652 students. But even these three—Avery, Parker, and Teague—are not enough to get everyone settled at first.

THREE MAN ROOMS

Three-man rooms will be the situation again in four men's dorms—Mangum, Manley, Ruffin, and Alexander.

"Thirty don't have rooms so we're putting them in Cobb basement as we have done the past several years," he said.

Can't students find enough private rooms in town?

"Private rooms are getting very low," Wadsworth said.

Available At Registration Student Wives' Tickets

The athletic department has announced that tickets for student wives are available during registration.

These tickets will enable a student's wife to sit with the student in the student section.

The tickets cost $10 and will be available to any student who has registered at Woolen Gym.

Season tickets are still on sale at $20 for five games, a reduction of $2.50 from the individual ticket price.

"I am encouraging landlords to rent rooms to women. We can put the men in Cobb basement but the girls have no similar accommodations. And more people in town have started renting rooms to women."

While Wadsworth talked a third year medical student called, wanting to know when the undergraduate students in Connor were coming back.

"I don't know when they're coming back," he had to say. "School starts Sept. 18 but they may come back anytime. Some of them are here now."

Married student housing is still a big headache for the Housing Office.

"Married students are scrambling around and finding trailers and rooms. But there practically aren't any more two-bedroom places in Chapel Hill in the price range of the ordinary couple."

In fact, he said, there are "almost none of any kind."

He said "almost nothing is furnished."

A total of 350 married students are living in Victory Village, located in the Memorial Hospital and Medical School area.

"But there are that many if not more married students on the waiting list. Those on the list usually have to wait about a year before finding anything."

For all his problems Wadsworth is not unhappy or angry that he can't find enough housing. He is, on the contrary, very grateful.

"I am very happy that people are so understanding about the problems, which are nobody's fault, really."

He was particularly pleased with the way the local radio station was helping the Housing Office.

"I am very grateful to the radio station for their announcements about referring to us for rooms. The station has been very helpful."

GRAHAM MEMORIAL:

'A Home Away From Home'

Graham Memorial, the student union building, is the place to go if you want to:

1. work on a major publication,

2. join one of Carolina's two political parties,

3. play pool in the basement,

4. listen to good music while concentrating on a game of chess.

In short, Graham Memorial is the center of extracurricular activity here. It has often been called "a home away from home."

FIRST FLOOR

The chief attraction on the first floor is the large main lounge where you can go to read, talk, or just relax and watch other students relax.

Adjoining the main lounge on the north end is the TV room. A color set was installed here last year. During commercials you can trot back to the coffee room for a quick break.

At the other end of the hall is the information office. Around the corner is the director's office. The building is directed by Howard Henry, who arrived on campus last summer from the University of Wisconsin.

The two mezzanine landings on the stairways include the Carolina Quarterly office (north end) and the assistant director's office (south end). At present there is no assistant director.

SECOND FLOOR

The second floor includes offices of:

The Student Activities Fund. This office handles the accounting for all campus activities.

The Daily Tar Heel, student newspaper.

Student government where the student body officers work.

The Publications Board and the Carolina Forum.

The Graham Memorial Activities Board—sponsors of activities such as bridge and dancing instructions, free movies, and band concerts.

Also on this floor are:

Roland Parker lounges 1, 2, and 3. Meetings of the Student Party and the University Party are held here. The rooms may be used separately or as one big room.

The Woodhouse Conference

Room, where meetings and conferences of different sorts are held.

The Council Room, where violators of the campus and honor codes are tried by the men's and women's councils. The Women's Residence Council meets here also.

The Grail Room, where the Order of the Holy Grail meets. This room is also used for small conferences.

BASEMENT

The word basement usually brings to mind a damp, dusty place used mainly for storage. Graham Memorial's basement is quite different.

Here you can play pool, get a haircut cheaper than town rates, or try your hand at developing pictures in the darkroom. Offices of the Yackety Yack, student annual, are located here.

Carolina's service fraternity, APO, has its offices here.

The Rendezvous Room is a popular place on this floor. It is used for quiet recreation and includes a jukebox, piano and numerous tables. Campus election votes are counted here.
