

Two Faculty Pianists To Give Joint Recital

A joint recital by two faculty pianists on Sept. 30 will open the Tuesday Evening Concert Series. William S. Newman and Wilton Mason will play together in Hill Hall at 8 p.m. The Series is sponsored by the UNC Music Dept.

An announcement from the Music Dept. said "although two-piano recitals are often heard in the music world there has been no major event of this sort in Chapel Hill during at least the past dozen years."

The two artists, therefore, are "making a special point of playing three of the main masterworks originally composed in this form."

SELECTIONS

The program will open with Brahms' Variations on a Theme by Joseph Haydn. "This is a work that Brahms also made a favorite in an orchestral setting, the theme being the familiar Saint Anthony Choral," the announcement said.

The program's second work will be Mozart's three-movement Sonata in D, "one of that composer's most sparkling works." Last is Rachmaninoff's Suite no. 2, "written about the time and with much of the flavor of his popular Second Piano Concerto," the announcement said.

Professor Newman, nationally known pianist, teacher, and author, has appeared in main centers throughout the country as recitalist and soloist with orchestra. He is chairman of instruction in piano and gives courses in music appreciation and graduate musicology.

Professor Mason, well known as pianist and composer, teaches music history and directs the University Chorus. He has produced numerous operas and musical comedies. He has served frequently as accompanist on tour with front rank singers of the Metropolitan Opera Assn.

The next concert will be given Oct. 21 by Dr. Glenn Watkins, who will present an organ recital. Dr. Watkins, recently appointed to the Music Dept., will be making his first public appearance.

and Whitehead—has provided more room for an increase in the number of coeds.

There are also fewer three person rooms for coeds. The Lower Quad for men has been reverted to two man rooms.

Speaking of the orientation program, Herman Godwin, chairman of the orientation committee, said, "I think we have had a very successful orientation program. The committee has received outstanding cooperation from both the administration and the new students."

Capt. Tiedeman To Take Over NROTC Unit

Captain Carl Tiedeman, recipient of the Navy Cross and Silver Star Medal, has arrived in Chapel Hill from Pearl Harbor as the new commanding officer of the Naval ROTC at UNC, succeeding Rear Admiral A. M. Patterson who has retired.

A native of Sioux City, Iowa, and graduate of Annapolis in 1933, Captain Tiedeman saw action in the Pacific during the war as commander of the Submarines "Snapper" and "Guavina."

Following the war he became commander of the Naval Preparatory school at Newport, R. I., and later attended the Naval War College, studying logistics and strategy. In 1955 he became commander of the amphibious cargo ship the U.S.S. Skagit in waters near Japan and devoted his time to training with the U. S. Marines.

On the staff of the Commander in Chief of Naval operation in the Pacific since June of 1956, he was detached in August of this year to come to Chapel Hill.

Captain Tiedeman is married to the former Marcella Larson of Sioux City and they have two daughters, Nancy, 18, who is entering Bradley College at Peoria, Ill., and Susan, 14, a freshman at Chapel Hill High School.

Moving soon into their home at 410 E. Franklin St., the Tiedeman's are staying temporarily at the Carolina Inn.

UNC AUTHOR

A young UNC English teacher is the author of 28 poems published by Scribner's this month in Volume V of its series, "Poets of Today."

Dr. Osborne B. Hardison Jr., assistant professor in the Dept. of English, wrote the "Lyrics and Elegies" as one of three contributions to the volume.

"Poets of Today" is intended as a "fresh attempt to find a practical solution for an old problem, that of bringing together poetic talent and its potential audience" by calling the attention of the American public to outstanding young poets.
