ART LEAGUE

The University Art League, now beginning its second year, is already slating activities for the coming year. The first meeting will be held tonight in the Lecture Hall at the Ackland Building at 7:30.

New students and any old students who may wish to participate in the League's program have been urged to be present to hear about plans and make suggestions. Membership is open to any University student whether an art major or not, according to an announcement.

Included among this year's projects are a series of one man shows of the paintings of former UNC art students and of faculty members of other North Carolina college art departments; art movies and lectures; the annual Sidewalk Art Show; and varied social get-togethers.

The League is planned especially for those students who are not art majors but have an inclination toward artistic creativity or an interest in the subject, the announcement said.

STUDENT WIVES

The Student Wives' Club will hold its first meeting of the year tonight at 8 o'clock in the Victory Village Nursery.

The program will include a panel discussion of particular interest to Chapel Hill newcomers, said President Pat Scarborough. All student wives have been invited to attend the semi-monthly meetings.
