

Henry Spends Time Tackling Two Jobs

Graham Memorial's first professional director, Howard Henry, has at least two big tasks to tackle here.

First, of course, Henry is familiarizing himself on the operation and personnel within the University student union. This particular task is probably easy for him since he had experience as assistant director of the spacious student union at the University of Wisconsin.

One of the real problems that Henry stepped into when he assumed his new duties July 1 is the work and planning for a new student union building. So far, Henry has had relatively little time to consider the needs of a new building.

He said this week that he will begin working out specifications after meeting with the guiding committee of Graham Memorial's Board of Directors. This committee last spring outlined the general needs to be included in a new student union building.

While he was with the University of Wisconsin's student union,

Henry was directing nearly 500 part-time and full-time employees.

Here there are no more than 20 students on the Graham Memorial staff.

Besides his personnel work, Henry was in charge of reservations for the thousands of club meetings held both in the Wisconsin University's student union building and elsewhere on the campus.

Other duties that came under Henry's direction in Wisconsin included overseeing public areas of the student union building not included within the operation of other departments.

Although Henry would not discuss to any great extent the student union needs here, he did point out one striking example to Graham Memorial's limited facilities.

Henry saw a definite deficiency in a building that had to close up ping pong for six weeks so that year book pictures might be made.

GM's new director is especially interested in working with student employees. Henry said that work positions are good opportunities for students, commenting on a usual good group of potential workers.

Already expressing a fondness for Chapel Hill, Henry said he appreciated the hospitality shown him, his wife and 4 children.

Prof. Robert Getty Given Paddison Post

Robert J. Getty and Mrs. Getty have arrived here, where Getty is Paddis Professor of Classics. Before coming to Chapel Hill, Professor Getty taught at the University College in Toronto.

The Gettys, presently staying at the Carolina Inn, have bought a home in Chapel Hill and will be moving in soon.

Getty is an internationally-known Latin scholar and is vice-president of the American Philological Assn. A native of Londonderry, Northern Ireland, he was graduated from Queen's University, Belfast, and Cambridge University. He taught at the University of Aberdeen, University of Liverpool, St. John's College, and the University of Toronto.

Carolina To Play Host To High School Press

The University will be host to several hundred high school newspaper and yearbook editors and staff members Saturday, Oct. 4, at the Seventeenth Annual North Carolina Scholastic Press Institute.

Plans for the institute were drawn up by Acting Director Chris Folk of Charlotte in the absence of Director Walter Spearman, who has been on leave from the University during the past year to study at Harvard on a fellowship from the Fund for Adult Education. Spearman returned to the University this fall and will serve as director of the institute.

Saturday morning will be devoted to group sessions and panels on various phases of newspaper work, including news writing, editorial writing, feature writing, sports, writing and advertising.

Ending the one-day session will be a banquet Saturday evening in Lenoir Hall with Greensboro Humorist David Morrah, frequent contributor to the Saturday Evening Post and author of several volumes of humor, as the chief speaker.

The institute is sponsored each year by the University's School of Journalism, the University Extension Division, The Daily Tar Heel, student newspaper, and the N. C. Department of Public Instruction.

Insurance Conversion Allowed Korea Vets

More than 685,000 Korean conflict veterans will soon be able to convert their previously non-convertible term GI insurance to permanent GI policies, according to a report from the Veterans Administration.

The affected term GI policies are identifiable by the letters "RS" which precede the policy numbers, the VA explained.

Beginning next January, a new statute (Public Law 85-896) will provide the thousands of "RS" policyholders with three options:

1. To convert their "RS" term policies to permanent plans for GI insurance.
2. To exchange their "RS" term policies for a "limited convertible" term policy carrying a lower premium rate, but which — after Sept. 1, 1960 — can not be renewed by persons who have passed their 50th birthday.
3. To keep their "RS" term policies at the currently established premium rates, which increase every five years.

The maximum amount of the new-type insurance will be limited in each case by the face amount of the veteran's present "RS" policy.

VA listed the types of permanent insurance to be available under the new law as: ordinary life, 20-pay life, 30-pay life, 20-year endowment, endowment at age 60, and en-

Their use must be restricted because they belong in part to the staff association. Charges for the use of the kitchen have been applied towards the employment of help to clean the kitchen after each use and for a fund to replace broken equipment.

Organizations using the Library Assembly Room will be permitted to bring refreshments into the Room from the outside.
