

This week there are probably more red faces belonging to sports writers in this state than in any comparable time in the past. Last Saturday the eight ACC teams met each other. There were three upsets, and nearly a fourth.

On the home front, State College capitalized on Carolina's inability to hold on to the ball, ran up a quick 21-0 lead, then held off a final quarter Tar Heel threat to gain a 21-14 upset.

DEACONS BIG SURPRISE

Over at Winston-Salem, Wake Forest surprised everyone (probably including Wake Forest) by completely routing Maryland 34-0. The Terps were supposed to be the darkhorse team of the conference and the Deacs were said to have little improvement, if any.

A Saturday night barbecue was held in Columbia, and Duke furnished the fodder. South Carolina scored early in the game, ran the extra point, and held on for dear life while both teams tried in vain for another score. The Gamecocks came out on top 8-0.

CAVALIERS SCARE CLEMSON

The only game that went according to form, if it can even be called that, was Clemson's rather close win over Virginia. The Cavaliers, however, were ahead going into the fourth quarter and threatened to go ahead again after the Tigers took the lead. Clemson won it 20-15, and was glad to have escaped with its skin.

One thing is now obvious: There is no "breather" on the Carolina schedule. Tar Heel opponents illustrated and underscored this point in just one week-end. Added to the conference turnovers came a shocker from the West Coast. Southern Cal whipped Oregon State 21-0, beating a team that was supposed to repeat as PCC champs.

Tommy Mont of Maryland gives us this understatement of the week: "I wasn't at all pleased with the work of our boys." This after his boys had been drubbed, 34-0 by the Deacs.

When the suspension of State quarterback Ernie Driscoll was announced last week, most felt the loss would affect the Pack in one of two ways. Either they would lose their morale or go out and "winner for Ernie." Obviously, they did the latter. The suspension probably did Carolina more harm than good.

KEMPER INDEFINITE; STALLINGS READY

Word has not been received yet as to whether Don Kemper will be ready for the Clemson game. It is known that he broke the little and ring fingers of his hand. A good note is that 250-pound tackle Don Stallings will be ready to go next Saturday against the Tigers. His cracked rib has apparently healed.

A new innovation in the Tar Heel backfield, the wing-T, showed itself Saturday. Although at the time it was somewhat of a desperation measure, it clicked and may be used again.

FOUR PLAYS TO PAY DIRT

True, Saturday was a sad day in Chapel Hill, but one bright spot appeared through the clouds. This was the second Tar Heel touchdown, an 80-yard drive. With Jack Cummings at the helm the TD covered the distance in four passes, 1 minute and 15 seconds.

Next Saturday's game with Clemson may prove to be an aerial circus, with Cummings and Lowe pitching for the Tar Heels and Harvey White for the Tigers.

Al Goldstein, DTH Athlete of the Week, put on quite an amazing performance Saturday. There was one catch Goldstein made that was almost unbelievable. That was the one on the Carolina side, at about the State 30. Apologies for the misprint in yesterday's paper, Al.

At last count, two of last year's Tar Heels were still with the Ottawa Roughriders. They are tackle Leo Russavage and end and co-captain Buddy Payne. Both are expected to stick with the Canadian football league outfit.

TATUM SIXTH IN NATION

How does Coach Jim Tatum's all-time coaching record stack up against the other coaches in the country? In 13 years of being a head coach, he has racked up 94 wins, 31 losses, and 7 ties, good enough for the sixth spot nationally. Tatum's percentage, including years at Oklahoma, Maryland and Carolina, is a very creditable .752. Bill Murray of Duke ranks eighth. Who is first? Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma, of cuss, of cuss.

Tatum Says Spirit High

By PHIL CORNER

CHAPEL HILL, N.C., Sept. 23 (AP)—A subdued Jim Tatum tossed into the background his disappointment over North Carolina's opening day loss and began talking Tuesday of this week's football contest at Clemson.

Asked by a reporter at his weekly news conference whether team morale were injured by the 14-21 upset at the hands of North Carolina State, Tatum said:

"They're disappointed, of course, but they feel the things that happened can be corrected. They don't feel they got swamped."

Tatum, speaking in a hushed voice partly because of a pesty throat ailment and partly because of his disappointment, told newsmen, "I don't feel our line was outplayed. The fumbles didn't come from bruising tackles, but from poor ball carrying. We still have a very high morale on the team."

Tatum blamed the defeat partly on himself, saying a recent throat biopsy left him in bad physical shape during the weekend. He also cited his team's inability to use its quick kicking game as another reason for the setback.

"We've got a great kicking game," he said. "We just didn't get a chance to use it."

Tatum said, "We had shown no signs of failure to move the ball. At halftime I thought we were going to win. Then we fumbled at the start of the second half, and while we were wondering what was going on, (State halfback Ken) Trowbridge went into the end zone."

The hefty Tar Heel mentor heaped praise on his squad for its second half comeback. "I thought we did a good job in the second half coming up with 14 points against a good football team," he explained.

Then Tatum and assistant coach Pat Preston, who scouted Clemson's close call against Virginia, began discussing Coach Frank Howard's highly touted Tiger squad.

Asked whether Virginia's aerial success against Clemson would influence his plans for Saturday, Tatum indicated it would not.

The Cavaliers, led by quarterback Reece Whitely, threw a mighty scare into Clemson with a consistent pro-

NEW CONFERENCE CHAMP?

Wayne Bishop Appears Set To Lead ACC Harrier List

By BING SOMERS

Of the some 7000 students circulating about the UNC campus this year, few demand as much genuine respect and admiration as does Wayne Stator Bishop.

His record speaks for itself. In three years he has secured membership in the Men's Honor Council, the Order of the Holy Grail, and the Order of the Golden Fleece. He has also been sports editor of the Daily Tar Heel, president of the Carolina Athletic Association, and has lettered in both track and cross country.

Despite his impressive catalogue of membership cards, the slightly-built (6'1", 152) Bishop is perhaps best known as a runner. A specialist in the two mile, he finished eighth in a field of 35 at the NCAA finals in California this summer.

Whereas Dave Scurlock is regarded as the galloping, power-packed Horse of the Tar Heel track team, Bishop might be termed the artful, feather-stepping Cat. He is the thinker, the planner, the schemer who uses his mind as much as his legs during a race. He runs with a rather unique cat-like lambency using a step so light that even the battered old boards of the Tin Can barely creak under his stride.

Despite his current perch atop the ACC long distance ladder, this wiry Greenville senior constantly runs with a rather ominous cloud overhead in the presence of recurrent knee injury.

Having first been encountered in 1956, the injury raised its ugly head again last year when it crushed Bishop's hopes of coping the ACC cross country championship meet. Later, just three days before the indoor games, he dodged a runaway volleyball and popped it out of joint again. This time, however, the guts and determination which are his to such a high degree conquered the pain and he staged the '58 Games greatest duel with Maryland's indefatigable Burr Grim in the two mile, finishing second.

In the spring with the knee it least temporarily healed, Bishop cruised away with the ACC two mile eclipsing the old record with a 9:19.5.

If the knee holds up, and it should, this year will finally be Bishop's. He should, with little strain, tiptoe away with the conference cross country crown and both the indoor and outdoor two mile. With Grim gone, who's to stop him?

Former Tar Heel Now In Ky.

A champion runner and former Tar Heel, Everett Whately of Atlanta, with many track records to his credit, is getting ready to settle down to some difficult studies at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky.

The former Henry Grady High School track star and his wife, Martha, say that they feel they definitely are "in the center of the Lord's will for our lives" in Kentucky.

One of the rooms in their Seminary Village apartment has been converted into a study and trophy room. Thick volumes on theology are being added with some of the books he brought from Carolina, where he graduated last year.

Whately holds the 1953 and 1954 Georgia State High School Championship titles for the mile run, with a time of 4:32 minutes, and for cross country competition. At Carolina he took honors during his senior year for a 4:13 mile. He was captain of the track and cross-country teams and was awarded the E. J. Evans senior track trophy for general excellence in sports, scholar-
