G.M. Board Of Directors In Policy Freedom Fight

By CHUCK FLINNER

The Graham Memorial Board of Directors yesterday prepared to fight for freedom and autonomy in regard to GM policy.

The board moved to approach Chancellor William Aycock to reach an agreement which would provide the board with powers of hiring and firing and controlling student government employees.

The board would assume the responsibilities as employer if the University would recognize the board as such. The move entails revocation of the North Carolina attorney general's opinion of May 1957.

Under the attorney general's opinion all full time employees of the Student Union are considered as employees of the University and paid by the University Personnel Office.

Under the present ruling Student Union employees are paid by the University which in turn reimburses by the Student Union with funds for that purpose. The Student Union lacks, however, the power of the employer, which it considers an infringement of its powers.

The Student Union would take the employer powers in return for assuming the employer responsibilities. These responsibilities include social security, retirement and other employee benefits. Independence could be maintained by the Graham Memorial if employer rights are regained. It is already independent in every other aspect.

Somebody Has Spelled It Out -- 'O. G. H.' May Be Antagonism Against UNC Librarian Orne

No One Complains Says Library Chief

By PRINGLE PIPKIN AND CLARKE JONES

A committee of angry graduate students Wednesday demanded better service from the Wilson Library here.

The graduate group is pressing mainly for representation on the Student Library Committee, restoration of the graduate study and non-separation of reference facilities.

The committee is behind the O.G.H. signs that have appeared on the campus this week. The initials stand for "Orne UNC Librarian Jerrold Orne) Get Hot" or "Orne Go Home."

Large black letters saying "Orne, Go Home" were also printed on the wall of the graduate study room. They apparently were drawn by someone who has access to the room on the fifth level of the stacks.

About the study room restoration, the committee hotly demanded that Orne "bring back those sofas! Paint those walls. Prison cell atmosphere is not conducive to scholarship!"

Members of the committee are unidentified. One graduate student, who did not wish to be identified, explained that some were dissatisfied because the grad study had been reduced without their consultation—specifically, the old lounge furniture had been removed and not replaced.

The splitting of the reference service had worked a hardship on some, the graduate student asserted. He described the people in the reference room as being "overloaded."

"We feel a great deal has been done arbitrarily," he claimed. The grad student was aware that there is a Student Library Committee but he added there is no grad student on it.

He suggested that the grad students should get together and put forth their demands as a body.

Dr. Orne said he had received no complaints from any students concerning the library. "If any student has a beef, I think the student committee should take care of it," he commented.

PLANS REPLACEMENT He stated he plans to replace the old lounge furniture with proper furniture as rapidly as possible. "It is part of our plan to equip the library for the best possible use," he said.

"We are not going to police any single student or small group of students," he asserted. That should be a function of the students, he added.

He urged the students to take advantage of the student library committee. At his first meeting with the student library committee he had suggested that a grad student be included.

He was disturbed by the O.G.H. signs and did not know where they were coming from.

Speaking Tuesday night, Larry Taylor, chairman of the library committee, said, "The committee is primarily to act as a link between the students and the library

Drinking Rule Revocation Asked By Di

By ELLEN STEIN

The Dialectic Senate Tuesday night unanimously passed a bill advocating the revocation of the "drinking rule" originally issued by the trustees.

A bill favoring the abolition of the Campus Code was also proposed on the Senate floor. Because the drinking rule is associated with the Campus Code the Senate wished to determine its value. The second bill was not voted on and will be next week's topic for discussion.

Senator Curtis Gans illuminated the unjust and hypocritical character of the "drinking rule" saying, "Rules within a society place limits on drinking but people have no authority to control another's individual right to take a drink."

President Gary Greer spoke negatively on the bill. He stated that drinking was morally wrong, and it is only the liberal who engages in this pastime. "The liberal," said Greer, "is a man in favor of doing all thing that will destroy the things from which today's world is made."

He said, "That general group of freethinkers are advocating in this instant the one thing that will direct man straight to hellfire. This thing is contrary to the will of the Lord."

Senator Fredrick Wolfer said, "The code functions as a tradition only and unless it is expanded to have some finite meaning it should be thrown out."

Senator Bill Porter spoke on behalf of the Campus Code. He mentioned the elaborate set of rule that once governed Carolina and the resentment they aroused. This resentment, he said, became an incentive for the formation of the Di and the Phi. Afterwards the Student Council summarized what they considered to be good conduct and put into effect the Campus Code.

IDC Approves Revision Of Dormitory Judicials

The IDC last night in special session passed the new IDC court bylaws.

The new bylaws provide for individual dormitory courts, and a jury trial system.

The old IDC court would have jurisdiction over all cases on appeal from the dormitory courts and would have original jurisdiction over all cases in which a member of another dormitory violated a regulation in a dormitory not his own. The court will also try cases involving violations of rules by dormitory officers.

The dormitory court will consist of the four dormitory officers, with the vice president serving as chairman. The secretary will serve as clerk of the court, and the treasurer and president will be members.

The IDC representative will be the prosecuting attorney, and three dormitory residents taken in alphabetical order from the dormitory roster will serve as a jury.

The new court will start in effect after a training period by members of the IDC court.

The proposal includes a revision of the penalty system, eliminating unofficial reprimand as a punishment and substituting a $2-10 fine. For each penalty a resident suffers, he is liable to be fined by the court.

Rudy Edwards, IDC president, expressed his happiness at the Mayor Oliver K. Cornwell has proclaimed Friday, Oct. 24, as United Nations Day, and has officially urged all citizens of Chapel Hill to participate fully in the observance.

The U.N. General Assembly has set aside this day, which is the anniversary of the United Nations Charter, as a time to make known the purposes, principles and accomplishments of the world-wide organization.

council's action.

"Tonight, I feel we of the IDC have reached a milestone," Edwards said.

"For many years our court system has been ineffective and impractical," he explained and added, "I feel the revised court will do much good by placing a court system in each dormitory, under the supervision of the dormitory officers."

Outing Club Formation Being Attempted

By STEWART PHINIZY

Carolina may have an Outing Club after tonight.

Those interested in such a club will meet tonight at 7:30 in room 304 of Woolen Gym.

Walter Rabb, head of the Intramural Department, said, "The meeting is an effort to bring together all students and faculty members, who are interested in outdoor recreation. If response is sufficient to warrant forming an Outing Club, we will take the necessary steps to formerly organize such a club. It's a wonderful opportunity for the entire student body to have a chance to participate in some form of outdoor recreation."

"We have realized that for a number of years there has been a tremendous amount of interest among the student body in the general area of outdoor recreation," Rabb cont.

Three years ago the Intramural Department started a Rod Gun and Field Meet because of campus interest in hunting and fishing. In the past there has always been a number of participants who have wanted to continue activities related to hunting and fishing, Rabb added.

Rabb pointed out that it is not the intention of the Intramural Department to run the club, but only to sponsor it and see that the people that want such a club are brought together.

Rabb said that there would probably be two or three major projects annually.

Such projects as weekend camping and boating trips to the University property on Carr Lake.

Interdormitory Council President Rudy Edwards said yesterday election results will be released the first of next week.

The only dorms not voting are Old East, Old West and Battle-Vance-Pettigrew. These dorms do not have physical facilities for social rooms, Edwards said.

Open Room Elections Being Held In Dorms

Elections are currently being held in all but three men's dormitories to determine if the residents want to open their social rooms to visiting coeds three days a week.

Interdormitory Council President Rudy Edwards said yesterday election results will be released the first of next week.
