Wells Special Guest Today

Dr. Warner Wells of the University School of Medicine will be special guest on WUNC-TV's "Ideas" program today. He will discuss "Survival in the Atomic Age."

Dr. Wells, assistant professor in the Department of Surgery, is author of "Hiroshima Diary." In 1949, under the auspices of the U. S. Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission, he went to Japan to make a two-year study of the long-range effects of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

The discussion series, "Ideas," which feature UNC faculty members as guests, may be seen every Wednesday evening at 9:30 on WUNC-TV, Channel 4.

Who's Jonas? Curiosity Gets Better Of Coed

By ANN FRYE

"Who's Jonas?"

Mary Crow's curiosity got the better of her Sunday afternoon. She'd passed my Jonas-literatured door on third floor, McIver, many times—too many times to let go unanswered the question, "Who's Jonas?"

Naturally I told her that Charles Raper Jonas is the Republican candidate for re-election to Congress from North Carolina's 10th Congressional District.

But she still wondered why I had on my door a car sticker saying "Re-election Jonas to Congress" and a full page ad from the Charlotte Observer on my congressman.

Just whom would I influence? Mary asked. Was it some form of super psychology I was employing?

More accurately, I told her, the public display of my political preferences is good psychology for me because I can't help Mr. Jonas back home in Hickory.

My roommate, Lynn Moody, kids me about the irony of it all: that the one person (me) who really wants to vote for Jonas will reach the legal voting age—19 days after the Nov. 4 election!

THE LOW DOWN ON THE UPSTAIRS

By RUTH GORDON

Before we write another word, we do want to thank you for noticing and commenting so favorably on the ones we have already written . . . It seems that everyone, but everyone, in Chapel Hill reads The Daily Tar Heel . . . maybe the "price is right" or maybe the "news is right" . . . but from the song of the same name, "It's all right with me."

We have a great many Chapel Hill customers and enjoy doing business with them so much . . . Incidentally, did you know you enjoy a very good reputation here in Durham? I recently heard another merchant discussing you, and he said that it was always a pleasure to wait on people from the "Hill".

So please come to see us more often . . . you know we carry all sizes, from tiny 5's to tall 25's . . . and there is always a kettle on . . . why not drop up for a cup of coffee and browse around? We'd love to have you —

Whether you're looking or Whether you're buying,
Whether you're messing or Whether you're trying.

Why not try us for size because fat or thin, short or tall, RUTH GORDON fits 'em all.

P. S. We have a terrific selection of semi-formals for that dance Friday night.

MATH COLLOQUIUM

Prof. E. F. McShane of the Department of Mathematics, University of Virginia, will speak at the UNC Mathematics Colloquium in 320 Phillips Hall, today at 4:30 p.m.

He will talk on "An Approach to Distributions."

DANCE TEACHER NEEDED

An instructor of popular dance is being sought by the Special Events Committee of Graham Memorial Activities Board.

The position is salaried and the teaching load involves a one hour lesson weekly. Those interested have been asked to contact Jimmie Rucker or Eda Faye Pugh at the ADPi House.

STATE STUDENT LEGISLATURE

State Student Legislature interviews will be held in the Woodhouse Conference Room today from 3 to 6 p.m. Those who have taken the test on parliamentary procedure and current events may do so at this time.

Selection Of Teachers Explained By Godfrey

ty member, all the while stressing that the initiative almost always came from the department involved, not from his office. Taking the History Department as a typical example of how appointments are made, Dean Godfrey pointed out several reasons for seeking a new faculty member, such as if one should resign or die or if the Legislature should appropriate more money to enable additions to the faculty.

When such a vacancy occurs the faculty of the department meets to discuss what field needs strengthening most. This "pooling of judgment by the faculty of that department," as Dean Godfrey termed it, is as influential as the chairman of any department allows. "Some chairmen may be more democratic than others; some may be more arbitrary.

TRY FOR BEST

"After it is decided what part of the department needs a new member they then try to get the best person at the salary they offer."

The faculty of the department meets to decide on one of the applicants for the open position after all applications have been narrowed down by a committee or the department head. The department, using history as an example, then recommends its choice to the dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. This dean then meets with his Advisory Board composed of the dean of the Graduate School, the dean of the General College and the chairmen of the divisions of social science, natural science and humanities.

USUALLY AGREES

If this board agrees with the choice, "and they usually do," said Dean Godfrey, the name is passed on to the Faculty Advisory Committee composed of nine elected members from the faculty at large, Chancellor Aycock and Dean Godfrey. This Advisory Committee usually sees fit to tell the Chairman of the department to go ahead with the appointment.

"However," said Dean Godfrey, "if the appointment is above the rank of instructor, the Chancellor must recommend the appointment to the Board of Trustees before final approval. We must remember that the Board of Trustees is the only agency in the University who can make faculty appointments."

The above method, which begins within the departments and works up through the higher administrative offices, is used almost entirely, said Dean Godfrey.

Dean Godfrey was asked if it were true that several times in the past he or the Chancellor had recommended specific appointments to department heads. He replied that he would consider it "extremely unwise" to "advise" a department head to make a specific appointment.

However, he said, he might call to the department head's attention some outstanding individual which he knew something about or had observed, such as a graduate student or assistant. "But I would never go beyond that,' he said."

Dean Godfrey classified as a rumor of which he had heard nothing substantial that the head of the Department of Music last year refused to make an appointment which had been "recommended" by a high administrative officer in the University.

"The reason initial plans for a new appointment must occur within the individual departments is because they, more than anyone else, know their own needs," he said.

55 Glee Club Members Go On Fall Tour

The 55-voice UNC Men's Glee Club will leave this morning on its annual Fall Tour which will carry it through Virginia, Tennessee and western North Carolina.

The club will return to the campus on Sunday night, Nov. 2.

Under the direction of Dr. Joel Carter, the group will perform before various schools and civic groups and will see the Carolina-Tennessee football game in Knoxville, Tenn. Saturday.

The club's itinerary calls for stops at Stratford College in Danville, Va., on Wednesday and Hollins College, Roanoke, Va., where the combined choruses of the two schools will present Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado."

On Thursday the singing group will perform at Radford College in Radford, Va., in the morning and will give a formal concert at Johnson City, Tenn., that night.

The club's second major performance will be given in Oak Ridge Friday night, after a concert in the local high school that afternoon.
