finest centers in the nation; Fred Swearingen, the great Tar Heel guard, and Mac Turlington, a hustling end. Not pictured are Don Kemper, Emil DeCantis, Takey Crist, Bill Hardison, Don Redding, and Daley Goff.

Coaching Career Next For Mac Turlington

Editors Note: This is the 3rd in a series of DTH Articles on Carolina's Graduating Football players.

By STEWART PHINIZY

Thirty seconds was all that separated Carolina from a decisive 26-7 victory over the Demon Deacons of Wake Forest.

The spectators noisily began their march to the exits.

Unwaved by victory chants and the beating of Tar Heel drums was a small boy parading behind the Carolina bench.

Not many noticed the little fellow, who was wearing a Tar Heel helmet flopped proudly over his head.

But Tar Heel end Mac Turlington spotted the youngster, walked over and began playing with him.

Plans To Be A Coach

Turlington likes kids. In fact, he plans to make a life's work teaching them the fundamentals of the game he knows best . . . football. He plans to be a coach.

But right now Mac is busy as a member of a wrecking crew known as the Carolina line.

Last year Carolina had a record of 6-4, its finest showing since 1949. Instrumental in the Tar Heels comeback was Turlington. Mac caught 8 passes for 167 yards, did yeoman work defensively.

This fall Mac conceded his starting right end position to Al Goldstein, Carolina's best pass receiver since Art Weiner. Showing no bitterness, Mac unselfishly says, "I consider it an honor to play behind as fine a ballplayer as Al."

"The Biggest Thrill"

"Beating Duke last year was the biggest thrill of my career. It's been a pleasure playing under Coach Tatum, he is as fine a man as I've ever known."

TRACKIN' THE TARHEELS by RUSTY HAMMOND DTH SPORTS EDITOR

Today is the day. This bright fall afternoon two of the bitterest football rivals in the nation go at it tooth and nail in the arena of Kenan Stadium before an expected crowd of 42,000.

Last year's victory, coming under the circumstances that it did, was tremendous. But this year the rivalry has, if anything, waxed hotter than ever. In evidence is the fact that the student bodies of each school have raided the campus of the other several times. The excitement over today's battle has reached a fever pitch.

TEN END HOME CAREERS

On the playing field, ten Carolina football players wind up their home careers. Some of the greatest of all time to play in the sunny confines of Kenan finish up today.

Their names are household words on the Carolina campus. Blazer, Koes, Redding, DeCantis, Kemper, Turlington, Crist, Hardison, Goff, and Swearingen. Today they play for the last time before the home fans. They may have one more game left . . .

LET'S GO BOWLING . . .

In addition to the fierce rivalry between Carolina and Duke, today's battle has taken on added importance because of the possibility of Carolina going to a bowl. They will need at least a victory and probably a very convincing one before they can make the trip to New Orleans or Miami.

Old-timers around the campus all readily admit that they have never seen the rivalry so bitter since they have been here. Both teams want this one so bad they can taste it.

TWO STARTERS INDEFINITE

Each team has a man who may miss this game of games. Carolina's brilliant sophomore end John Schroeder, who injured his knee in a freak accident in the Virginia game, has a doubtful status right up to the kick-off. Schroeder says he may start, or he may not even dress. Duke's George Dutrow, rated one of the best halfbacks in this or any conference, has been announced as about the same status as Schroeder.

Position for Position: Ends—Carolina's are smaller, but quicker. Goldstein is a better pass receiver than any Duke has. Duke perhaps has the nod on defense, although their ends are not so fast as the Tar Heels. Tackles—The edge to the Tar Heels, but not by much. Blazer and Redding are two of the best. The Duke tackles are just as big and have been just as stingy with ground yardage.

Guards—A very slight edge to Duke, on the basis of their Mike McGee. McGee is one of the best, but Swearingen and Mueller are also. Center—A big edge to Carolina. Koes is simply great, he's great both defensively and offensively. Byrd is good, but largely overshadowed by Koes.

Quarterback—Cummings by a landslide. Brodhead is protected by a bigger line, but Cummings is a better passer and a far better play caller. Halfbacks—An edge to Duke if Dutrow plays; if he doesn't it's about even. Carlton leads the conference in rushing and points scored, but Smith and DeCantis are equally dangerous. Fullback—The people's choice, Don Klochak. Since Hal MacElhane graduated, the Dukes have had their problems at this position. Klochak has come along every game, is now about at his season peak.

COMPARATIVE SCORES

Comparative scores, (which don't mean a thing in this game):

CAROLINA	DUKE
State 14-21	South Carolina 0-8
Clemson 21-26	Virginia 12-15
Southern Cal 8-7	Illinois 15-13
South Carolina 6-0	Baylor 12-7
Maryland 27-0	Notre Dame 7-9
Wake Forest 26-7	State 20-13
Tennessee 21-7	Georgia Tech 8-10
Virginia 42-0	LSU 18-51
Notre Dame 24-34	Wake Forest 0-29

The comparative scores may be interesting, but they don't prove a thing in this traditional battle. The Dukes own the series edge 18-22, having swept seven straight before last year.

DUKE AT BEST LAST WEEK

Last week Duke looked the best they have all season in whipping Wake Forest by a decisive 29-0 count. The Devils blocked a kick, intercepted two passes and recovered three fumbles in that one. So, Carolina will have to keep its eye on the ball today. Although they went down in defeat last week, the Tar Heels still made a very fine showing against one of the nation's best. Most of the players are recovered from the battering they took against the rugged Irish at South Bend. Today is the perfect way to end a football season, or a football playing career. May the best team win, and let's all hope they're wearing light blue. Somehow, I keep smelling Sugar around here . . .

Tar Heels Shutout Duke Booters, 2-0

By JIM PURKIS
DURHAM — With right wing Coleman Barks leading the offensive punch, Carolina's varsity soccer team nailed down second place in the ACC with a 2-0 victory over Duke yesterday.

Barks, who has played consistently well for the Tar Heels all season, scored both goals, assuring the team of second place with a 3-1 conference record and a 8-2 overall record.

Duke, determined to stop the Tar Heels, put up a strong defensive wall, which Carolina couldn't penetrate until Barks scored late in the second quarter to give the squad a 1-0 lead.

In the third quarter, Barks hit paydirt again with his second goal, this score coming with about six minutes gone in the quarter.

Carolina Defense Stingy
Duke was unable to start any serious offensive charges against Carolina's stingy defense, led by Dave Corkey at center forward.

Corkey received ample support from Bob Quackenbush at left fullback, with Tom Evans and Tom Cordle alternating at right halfback. Cordle, one of the most improved players on the team, played his best game of the season.

The Tar Heels, not playing as well offensively as they did against Maryland, were still able to set up numerous shots on the Duke goal. John Ghanim pounded at the Blue Devils goal several times in the fourth quarter.

First Win In Three Years
Carolina's win over Duke marked the first time in three years a Tar Heel team has been able to overcome the Blue Devils. Two years ago Duke beat Carolina, 2-1, and many feel that the Blue Devils will be forced to take to the air. The experts, as usual, rate the game as a toss up. When the Carolina-Duke game comes down to the wire anything can happen and usually does.

The Dukes lead the long series 18-22. The famed Victory Bell, which has been residing in Chapel Hill for the past year, also hangs in the balance of today's game.

Each team has one man on the injured and doubtful starter list. For Carolina it's soph end John Schroeder who might possibly see action today although it is doubtful.

Wake Forest Tangles With Auburn's Hopeful Tigers

AUBURN, Ala. — Still hopeful of winning the national football championship for the second year in a row, Auburn put its 22-game undefeated record on the line against Wake Forest here Saturday.

But the Tiger coaches will be watching more than the scoreboard. They'll be almost equally concerned over the outcome of the Tulane-Louisiana State game at New Orleans.

If Tulane can upset the Bengals now in first place nationally — convincing victory over Wake Forest and assuming Auburn turns in a est—the Plainsmen, who rank No. 2, will have a chance of moving back on top and retaining the championship.

Of course, they would still have Alabama to beat the following Saturday.

Wake Forest has won only three of its eight games this season, but Tiger Coach Ralph Shug Jordan isn't taking Saturday's game lightly. He exhibits nothing but profound respect for the passing ability of quarterback Norman Snead, one of the best in the South. Auburn for the first time in six weeks will be at full strength with fullback Tommy Lorino ready to start. Lorino suffered a shoulder injury against Florida and has been out of commission since then.

A victory over the Deacons will extend Auburn's unbeaten string to 23 games.

Do You Think for Yourself? (SEE WHAT THIS TEST TELLS YOU ABOUT YOURSELF!*)

Would you turn down an unusual opportunity if it would alter a preconceived plan for the future? YES NO

Do you instinctively feel a qualm when you walk under a ladder? YES NO

Do you feel your education would suffer if books and notes were allowed at examinations? YES NO

When introduced to important people, do you act a role which is quite different from the real you? YES NO

Do you think that a public official should do what the voters want him to do, even though he personally may feel it is wrong? YES NO

If someone wanted to hypnotize you, would you refuse to let him try? YES NO

Can you honestly say you enjoy a game or sport as much whether you win or lose? YES NO

Would you feel that you should leave a formal affair if you found you were wearing clothes that were different from everybody else's? YES NO

Do you let other people tell you what filter cigarette is best for you, rather than making up your own mind? YES NO

The fact is, men and women who make up their own minds—who think for themselves—usually smoke VICEROY. Their reason? Best in the world. They know only VICEROY has a thinking man's filter and a smoking man's taste.
