EASTERN ASKS COURT ORDER

MIAMI (U)—Strike-bound Eastern Airlines petitioned for a federal injunction against a walk-out its flight engineers began Monday.

EAL also sought a court order prohibiting the Flight Engineers International Assn. (FEIA) from forcing the line to set engineer qualifications lower than the company believes consistent with safety.

New Strike Complicates UNC Traffic

By ROSEMARY ROBERTS

Additional airline strikes have caused a transportation problem for Carolina students wanting to "get away from it all" for the Thanksgiving holiday.

Eastern Air Lines was shut down Monday. Trans-World Airlines has been struck since Friday. Capital Airlines, whose workers have returned to work after a 37-day strike will help alleviate some of the holiday havoc.

An official at Continental Travel Agency in Chapel Hill said he had "not even the slightest idea" when the Eastern Airlines shutdown would end.

The Eastern Airlines ticket office will help to arrange alternate transportation for people holding reservations on that airline, a spokesman said Tuesday afternoon.

All men's dorms will remain open during the holidays. The dean of women's office said that only Kenan Hall would remain open for women students staying here.

Since Eastern's strike, many UNC students have arranged train bus or car transportation while others have reconvened themselves to Thanksgiving dinner in Chapel Hill.

Values Group Is Formally Organized

A committee to emphasize "thoughtful, personal interpretation of the Campus Code" was formally organized here Monday night.

The Social Values Committee will not, however, exercise any judicial authority in its actions.

At a meeting Monday night, representatives from the women's residences organized the committee under co-chairmen Janie Walters and Jane White.

Also at the meeting, the following statement of purpose was drawn up:

"This committee was formed as the result of the realization that there is a need for emphasis on the Campus Code. This emphasis can only be accomplished through thoughtful, personal interpretation of the Campus Code as its applied to each individual.

"The Social Values Committee shall be composed of one representative from each women's residence. Its aim shall be to create in each person's mind a conception of her own social values. It is felt that this can best be accomplished by stimulating discussion, thought, and interest which will hopefully resolve into a more tangible understanding of the code.

"This is not to be interpreted in any way as an extension of judicial authority. There will be no attempt on the committee's part to restrict an individual's conduct."

day in the midst of the Thanksgiving holiday travel buildup.

The International Assn. of Machinists (IAM) considered shutting down National and Northeast Air Lines in disputes over wages and working conditions, but the fear that American Air Lines Pilots would walk off the job was dispelled.

The air travel crisis began developing last Friday when a strike closed down Transworld Airlines. Eastern Air Lines halted all flights Monday after a walkout of mechanics and flight engineers.

In Miami, Vice President J. M. Rosenthal of National Air Lines met with IAM officials in an effort to avert a strike but the union men said nothing was accomplished.

"I am preparing for a strike," John Sheridan, President of the Miami IAM local, reported.

The Miami News said another IAM negotiating team was meeting with Northeast Air Lines executives in Boston.

In Chicago the Air Lines Pilots Assn. said it would comply with a court order which forbade a scheduled midnight strike of the American system.

ALPA President Clarence Sayen said all American pilots had been notified to stay on the job. Sayen said his group delayed striking even though it had not been served with the court order.

American obtained the order from Federal Judge Frederick V. P. Bryan in New York on grounds that the strike would violate Railway Labor Act requirements for mediation and other "cooling off" measures.

I don't know if we will comply with the court order," Sayen commented. "We have exhausted all the processes of the Railway Labor Act several times over and nothing remains but to strike."

American's pilots are demanding higher pay, a shorter work schedule and various rules changes.

Issues at stake in the Northeast and National disputes are virtually the same as those on which the IAM was unable to reach an agreement with Eastern and Transworld—higher pay and better working conditions.

Joining in the shutdown of Eastern, the world's biggest passenger air carrier, were the flight engineers, who have refused to agree to company demands that they qualify as pilots before working on jet aircraft.

Symphony's First Concert Is Tuesday

The University Symphony Orchestra, Earl Slocum conducting, will present its first program of the season in Hill Hall Tuesday, Dec. 2, at 8 p.m.

This concert, the fifth in the Tuesday Evening Series, will feature Eger's "Enigma Variations" as the major work of the evening. The rest of the program will include J. S. Bach's "Choral and Fugue," transcribed for orchestra by J. J. Albert, "Pascaglia for Orchestra" by Ralph Dunlap, members of the orchestra; "Fantasia on Greensleeves" by Ralph Vaughan Williams; and Tchaikovsky's "Overture 1812."

The 69 instrumentalists in the orchestra include members of the music department, students and teachers from other University departments, and musicians residing in and around Chapel Hill.

Prof. Earl Slocum, acting head of the Music Department this semester, has conducted the symphony for the last 13 years. In addition to his duties with the orchestra, he also teaches composition and conducting.

Student Court

Two warnings and one probation were issued this week by the Student Traffic Court.

The names of four people who did not appear for trial, are being turned over to the dean of student affairs' office.

"DO YOU REMEMBER? . . ."—W. O. Gant, portrayed by Foster Fitz-Simons, and Madam Elizabeth, portrayed by Carolyn Marsh, talk over past experiences in a scene from the Playmakers' production of "Look Homeward, Angel," the play based on Thomas Wolfe's novel; opens in Memorial Hall Dec. 5, and will run through Dec. 7.

Big Three Allied Powers May Have Berlin 'Plan'

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

BERLIN (U)—The western big three tonight were reported firmly united behind a new secret plan to counter any Communist attempt to freeze them out of Berlin.

Diplomats said the agreement was reached within the past few days. This indicated the allies had resolved any differences on how to react should the Russians hand over to the East Germans control of allied lifelines to isolated West Berlin.

Allied officials declined to spell out the details of their new plan, keeping the Communists guessing on what to expect.

Diplomats said, however, that under the plan the three would refuse to allow East Germany to replace Russia on the four-power allied air safety center in West Berlin. This controls all air traffic in and out of Berlin.

But East German Communist boss Walter Ulbricht, spelled out his intentions. While scoffing at western fears of a Communist blockade, he said the allies would have to negotiate with his regime for free access to Berlin.

"If I want to travel to London, I must have the permission of the English government," Ulbricht said in an interview with a British newspaper. "And if the gentlemen want to travel to Berlin, they must have the permission of the government of the DDR (East Germany). That is just the way it is."

The Communist East German

news agency ADN gave the interview official sanction by distributing it.

Ulbricht gave the impression the Soviets were about to hand over control at any minute. But the Russians themselves seemed to be moving cautiously, feeling out the allies before taking the big step.

The U.S. Army quietly sent a lone truck down the 116-mile Autobahn linking Berlin with West Germany past Soviet guards at a border checkpoint, without encountering any trouble.

This was the second test run—carried out without a hitch—since the Soviets on Nov. 14 turned back an outward-bound convoy of three covered U.S. Army trucks. In keeping with long standing orders, the U.S. guards refused to let the Russians inspect the cargo.

The Russians have been waging a nerve war behind the scenes since Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev first made his demand Nov. 10 for an end of the four-power administration of Berlin.

Ulbricht told the British interviewer he believed the Soviet plan would be handed over to the West before the end of the week.

The West Germans are insisting the allies stand firm. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer has described the security of Berlin and the West as indivisible.

HECK LECTURER

McLendon Calls Service Lawyer's Best Client

Major L. P. McLendon, prominent Greensboro attorney and vice-chairman of the North Carolina State Board of Higher Education, called the lawyer's most important client, "the client of public service."

Major McLendon made his remarks in an address to the University of North Carolina Law Students Association where he appeared as the guest speaker for the third event of the 1958-59 Heck Lecture Series.

"The cynics who scoff at the activities of lawyers in politics and public affairs," Major McLendon continued, "do not speak for the majority of the people. In every community, however small or however large, there are problems of great importance to large numbers of people and the solution of these problems calls for leadership, the exercise of judgment and discretion, and a high sense of devotion to the public welfare."

In speaking of the role of the lawyer in the community, Major McLendon declared that, "because of the lawyer's education, training, and philosophy, he occupies a unique position in his community. Almost instinctively people expect him to be a leader in community and public affairs."

The veteran North Carolina attorney described the need of the lawyer's role of public service as having arisen as a result of "the advance of civilization." "In the shadow of skyscrapers and gigantic manufacturing plants and even in the shadow of great universities lie our own here in Chapel Hill," he said, "there are multitudes of people who are caught in the backwash of the rapidly advancing developments in the fields of modern science and industrial organization." In meeting and in helping to solve the social, economic, and political problems of his generation, "a lawyer reaches his highest value to society."

Major McLendon's appearance was sponsored by the UNC Law Student's Association in conjunction with the fund set up by George Heck of Glen Head, N. Y., who is the oldest living alumnus of the UNC Law School.

He was introduced by Robert W. King Jr. of Wilson, chairman of the LSA Speaker's Committee.

Chem Prize Is Awarded UNC Grad

A former student and instructor at the University has won the 1958 Southern Chemist Award of the American Chemical Society's Memphis Section.

Dr. Thomas P. Nash Jr., professor of chemistry and dean of the School of Biological Sciences, University of Tennessee Medical Units, Memphis, is a native of Elizabeth City. He received his B.A. and M.A. degrees in 1910-11 from UNC. He was an instructor here for five years before he left in 1915 to join the faculty of the University of Tennessee College of Medicine.

The medalist is associate editor of the "Memphis Medical Journal" and has written numerous scientific papers on his investigations. As a biochemist, Dr. Nash has contributed importantly to the understanding of body chemistry in certain functions of the kidney and circulation of blood. Studies with diabetes resulted with increased scientific knowledge of the behavior of insulin.

The Southern Chemist Award is supported by the "Southern Chemist," a publication for local sections of the American Chemical Society in Southern States.

The Student Council voted unanimously last night to hold a re-vote of the sophomore class presidential election.

The action came following a protest by Student Party candidate Davis Young. Young lost the election to Charlie Graham, University Party candidate by two votes.

The re-vote will be held on the day of regular fall run-off elections, Tuesday, Dec. 9.

The Council granted Young's request on the following grounds: (1) Two sophomores were in the infirmary on election day and were not given ballots, as required by the Elections Law. (2) The ballot boxes in at least one voting district were removed prior to 6 p.m. on the day of the election. The Elections Board ruling says that ballot boxes shall be kept open until 6 p.m.

The grounds for hearing the case was Article IX, section 12 of the General Election Law: "In the event that any election held under the jurisdiction of the Student Legislature is protested on the basis of the provisions of this bill or of any other official enactment of Student Government, the Student Council shall determine the validity of the protest."

Jim Long, chairman of the Student Council, pointed out that all of Young's protests were not upheld, but that the Council felt that, on the grounds stated above, Young did have sufficient reason to protest and to have a re-vote.

Third Night Of 'Angel' Scheduled

A third performance of the Playmakers' production of "Look Homeward, Angel" has been scheduled, Publicity Director Dave Peterson announced yesterday.

The extra performance will be given Dec. 7.

This is the second time the date of the show have been changed. Originally scheduled for Nov. 19-23 in the Playmakers' Theater, the time for the production was advanced to Dec. 5th and 6th and moved to Memorial Hall.

Peterson explained that the change was necessary because "the set is too big, and the theater too little." He pointed out that as many people can be seated in two performances in Memorial Hall as in five in the Playmakers' Theater.

The third performance was scheduled due to popular demand, he said.

Tickets for the hold-over night are available at 214 Abernethy Hall. All seats are reserved at $1.50.

Peterson said a few seats are still available for the Dec. 5th and 6th showings.

The Playmakers' production will mark the first off-Broadway performance of the stage adaptation of Thomas Wolfe's novel.

Mrs. Ketti Frings who wrote the stage version, gave special permission to the Playmakers to present the drama, which is still running in New York.
