or he had put forward new proposals.

Dulles met with Mikoyan a few minutes after being treated at the White House for a virus infection. The illness forced the secretary to cancel a scheduled trip to Ottawa to talk over economic problems with Canadian cabinet officers. He went home but is expected to return to work in a few days.

The 70-year-old Dulles, hit by an intestinal ailment only a month ago, apparently kept his virus condition from Mikoyan. Authorities said he decided on this last Mikoyan visit mention of it as a sign Dulles wanted to cut the talks short.

State Department Press Officer Lincoln White reported Mikoyan Dulles from Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

"The atmosphere was cordial, friendly and frank," White said. Mikoyan, bundled in a heavy overcoat, created more hubbub at the State Department than any other foreign visitor in postwar years.

A band of anticommunist Hungarian refugees chanted "murderer," shook their fists, and waved placards from across the street as Mikoyan arrived and departed.

About 300 State Department employees crowded the lobby to watch Mikoyan.

They added to the din caused by about 100 newsmen, still photographers, newsreel and television cameramen.

The 5-foot-7 Russian, dressed in a conservative blue business suit topped off with an elegant gray necktie, continued to stress the "peace and friendship" theme he has hit since arriving Monday.

Appearing before television cameras, he said his talk with Dulles should improve Soviet-American relations. But he did not go into detail.

"We will wait and see," Mikoyan said.

"We had a useful exchange. I am an optimist in general."

Mikoyan returned to the Soviet Embassy in a police-escorted limousine. He arranged to attend a dinner in his honor tonight. Host for the dinner was Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Assn. of America, who recently spent some time in Moscow negotiating an exchange of films.

Mikoyan's entourage meanwhile continued shielding his future movements in secrecy.

The Campus, World Over The Holidays

On Campus

By RON SHUMATE
The Carolina campus, though relatively "dead" throughout the Christmas holidays, did produce a few "holiday happenings."

One of the major events was the Dixie Classic, where the South rose again, topping the North's (and the nation's) No. 1 bounce-ball squad twice, once by The UNC team. Carolina finished a strong third.

PATRICK'S SCHOLARSHIP
Dr. Cornelius T. Partick of the UNC School of Medicine has been recently awarded a one-year Mead Johnson Residency Scholarship.

Dr. Partick, a native of Clinton, did his undergraduate work at UNC and received his M. D. degree from the UNC School of Medicine in 1954.

At the present time he is a senior assistant resident in medicine. The scholarships are valued at $1,000.

UNC PSYCHIATRIST
Dr. Lucie Jessner, professor of psychiatry at the UNC School of Medicine, will give two lectures at the Veterans Administration in Lexington, Ky. Dr. Jessner will talk on special problems and will be present at a case seminar.

POSTGRADUATE MEDICAL COURSES
Two postgraduate courses in medicine will be offered by the UNC School of Medicine beginning in January.

The first course will be in the Atherosclerosis and Elizabeth City area. This course will begin Wednesday, Jan. 14, and will continue each Wednesday for six weeks, sponsored by the School of Medicine, the UNC Extension Division and the First District Medical Society. The lectures will be given in alternate locations each week.

The second course will begin in Goldsboro on Thursday, Jan. 15. The lectures in Goldsboro will be held each Thursday for a six-week period. The co-sponsor of this course is the Wayne County Medical Society.

The lecturers for these two courses will consist of the faculty members of the UNC School, Harvard School of Medicine, Ohio State University School of Medicine, University of Maryland School of Medicine and the Duke University School of Medicine.

These courses are approved for credit by the American Academy of General Practice and certificates will be issued to those physicians attending the courses.

UNC GETS $125,000 FORD FUNDS
The Ford Foundation recently approved a grant of $125,000 to UNC to support a five-year study of American economic growth by economic historians from four institutions.

President William C. Friday of the Consolidated University received notice of the grant from Foundation secretary Joseph M. McDaniel Jr. of New York.

Problems of American economic history will receive the attention of the researchers. UNC has been designated as the fiscal agent for the group of four universities. The other three are Indiana, Stanford and Yale universities.

CHEMICAL SOCIETY CHAIRMAN
Prof. Warren W. Brand of Purdue University has been elected chairman of the American Chemical Society's Division of Analytical Chemistry for 1959. He succeeds Prof. John H. Yoe, head of the University of Virginia-Chemistry Department.

Dr. H. A. Liebhafer of the General Electric Company, Schenectady, N.Y., is the new chairman-elect of the ACS division. Dr. Charles N. Reilly of UNC will continue as secretary-treasurer.

UNC STUDENTS RANKED HIGH IN HIGH SCHOOL
Top-notch students are coming to the University. Chancellor William B. Friday recently said that tests show that 85 per cent of the students enrolled in the freshman class ranked in the upper half of their high school and preparatory school classes, from the standpoint of scholarship.

Over half, or 54 per cent of the freshman class at UNC ranked scholastically in the upper fourth of their classes prior to coming to UNC. Another 29 per cent were in the "second quartile" of their high school classes. Ten per cent were in the third quarter of their classes and only 2 per cent came from the bottom quarter of their classes. For 3 per cent, no previous ranking was given. It is stressed that all enrolled passes the College Board Examinations, or the equivalent.

Chancellor Alcock reported the scholarship statistics available from test scores and other records incident to North Carolina's admissions testing program.

Speaking to the University's Public Relations Advisory Committee headed by E. A. Resch, Siler City publisher, Aycok thanked the committee members for counsel to the University. Other committee members present were John Harden of Greensboro, Hugh Morton of Wilmington and Richard Mason of Raleigh.

Stating the need for increased faculty salaries in the coming General Assembly, Aycok asked for consideration of the fact that UNC has high ranking among universities of the world.

There are bigger and more abundantly endowed universities, said Aycok, "but dollar for dollar we are at the top among universities of the nation."

Publisher Resch, in presenting the Chancellor said, "We have in Bill Aycok the Number 1 public relations attribute of the University."

In The World

By CHUCK FLINNER

While UNC students were enjoying their Christmas holiday the world continued rushing on at its space age pace.

As students were rolling away from the campus many were hearing the voice of President Eisenhower transmitted from outer space by way of an Air Force Atlas missile and Army Signal Corp communications equipment.

The voice from outer space had hardly echoed when the Soviet Union announced it had sent up a moon rocket with a payload of 796 pounds. The payload of the com-
