Legislature Passes SP Bill

By STAN BLACK
The Student Legislature made the first move in a projected reorganization of student government when it passed Jim Crowner's (SP) bill establishing a Campus Affairs Board.

The Board, as constituted in the bill passed Thursday night, will consist of 10 members and a chairman appointed by the president of the student body. Its chief functions will be the selection of chairmen and members of the numerous temporary and semi-permanent committees dealing with campus affairs and the supervision and coordination of the work of these committees.

Student Body President Don Furtado, in commenting on the establishment of the Board, said, "This new group is one of the first moves in our necessary reorganization of student government."

"As our campus expands, it becomes necessary to consolidate some of the many committees under some coordinating chairman in order that communication between the various elements of the student body continued without loss of efficiency," and the executive offices may be.

In other action Thursday night the Legislature finally killed the Levy bill for letters to the governors of Arkansas and Virginia.

Norman Smith (Ind.) was elected President Pro Tempore of the body by acclamation to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Gary Greer from the Legislature. Another vacancy was filled by the election of Ann Lucas to the chairmanship of the Rules Committee.

New business included a bill introduced by Harold O'Tuel on behalf of Doug Young on behalf of the sophomore class to appropriate $30 to the sophomore class for administrative needs. A bill to prohibit elected student government officials from holding seats in the student legislature was also introduced by O'Tuel for Norman Smith.

Dave Jones (SP) introduced two bills, one for appropriation of $200 to the University Club for planning and publicity and one authorizing the club to sell advertising in anticipation of the publication of the 1959 "University Club Handbook."

Bob Thompson introduced a bill to appropriate $20 for the purpose of printing bills for the Legislature.

Doug Moe Leads Heels With 32 As Carolina Makes Comeback

By RUSTY HAMMOND
DURHAM — Sparked by sensational sophomore Doug Moe, who poured in 24 points in the second half, and wound up with 32, Carolina came from as much as 11 points behind to whip Duke's young Blue Devils 89-80 here last night.

Moe, who was moved to pivot early in the second half, just couldn't miss as he ripped the cords with lay-ups and turn shots.

Duke left the dressing room at half time the owner of a nine-point lead at 42-33. In the initial half, the Heels couldn't do anything right, but Duke could do no wrong.

Carolina led only twice during the entire first half, at 17-15 and 20-19. Duke jumped off to a quick lead, and built it to 7 at 11-4. Then Carolina rallied to tie things up at 15-15, 17-17, and 19-19.

The scoring moved along evenly until the big Blue Devil spurt started with about six minutes left.

With 6:00 left on the clock, and the score knotted at 25-25, Howard Hurt hit two jump shots and a free throw, and Carroll Youngkin and Jack Boyd hit one basket each to boost a nine-point spread at 34-25. In the streak, the Devils outscored the Tar Heels 9-0.

From that point Carolina couldn't recover, and Duke retired at intermission with a 42-33 lead.

Carolina came roaring back on to the floor after half time with Moe leading the way. After Shaffer's follow shot made it 44-34 Duke, Moe took personal charge. The blond youngster racked up 11 straight points to pull his mates within one point, then Shaffer's two free tosses put the Heels ahead for the first time in the half at 53-52 with 14:15 left.

Carolina then spurted to a 63-58 margin, but the Dukes came right back and on two quick baskets by Hurt went back into the lead 66-64. The lead changed back and forth until Duke led for the last time at 69-68 on John Frye's jump.

From there the Tar Heels hit a hot streak and vaulted to a 75-69 lead, Moe getting three of the six points. The Heels then built their lead steadily as the Duke big man Carroll Youngkin fouled out.

Laresse's lay up and free throw gave Carolina its biggest margin at 85-74, and from there it was all over but the shouting.

The most amazing thing about Moe's performance was that he played the entire second half with four fouls on his back.

Moe was held to only four points in his last appearance, largely due to an injured foot.

Sophomores To Sponsor Scholarship

In an Executive Cabinet meeting yesterday afternoon, the officers of the sophomore class decided to direct their future efforts towards the establishment of a scholarship fund.

Sophomore President Davis Young said that the scholarship would be named for a prominent North Carolinian, but declined to disclose his name.

He said that as soon as certain details are ironed out and the University Administration has had a chance to approve the undertaking, the name of the person for whom the scholarship is being established will be revealed.

Several fund raising ideas are being checked at this time. Young announced that solicitation for the scholarship will be conducted on a statewide basis as well as here on campus.

He said that on Tuesday night, Durham newspaper editor Bob Pace will meet with the officers and tell them of his ideas for raising funds for the project.

In conjunction with this, the Executive Cabinet has made a request to the Student Legislature for an appropriation to be used for publicizing the scholarship fund.

The bill for this was introduced Thursday night in the Legislature by Representative Harold O'Tuel (SP).

In other business at the regular meeting of the sophomore officers it was decided to check into the possibility of having an outdoor dance in the spring, the proceeds of which would be directed to the previously mentioned scholarship fund.

Young also announced that letters have been sent out to one sophomore in each residence hall on campus. These people will meet on Tuesday, Feb. 24, with the officers and will act as liaison agents to the rest of the class members.

Young further announced that Charlie Graham (UP) will act as an assistant to the president and will have the status of a class officer. Explaining this he said, "After talking with Charlie, I have decided that his services will be in for two year terms.

Joseph Sloan Accepts Art Dept. Chairmanship

By MARY ALICE ROWLETTE
Joseph Sloan, who was chairman of the Art Department at Bryn Mawr College for 20 years, has accepted the corresponding position at UNC. He replaced Kenneth Ness, who was serving as acting chairman, approximately two weeks ago.

In addition to his work at Bryn Mawr, his experience in the art world has included being assistant curator of the Cooper Union Museum in New York, instructing in the Department of Art and Archaeology at Princeton and teaching at Rutgers University.

He is a past president of the College Art Association of America; on the advisory council of the Department of Art and Archaeology at Princeton and a member of the New Committee of the American Council of Learned Societies, a committee to study the relation of secondary schools to universities.

Besides his work as chairman of the Art Department, Sloan is teaching one graduate seminar this semester.

Sloan "couldn't be more enthusiastic" about the UNC Art Department and Ackland Art Museum. He said that very few schools in the country have the physical equipment to compare with UNC. He is very pleased with Ackland being a departmental museum.

When asked about his own artistic talents, Sloan answered, "Terrible!" He added that, although he is primarily an art historian, he is equally interested in both sides of the department and feels that the department has many able artists on the staff.

Sloan, his wife and one of their two daughters are now living in Chapel Hill. The older daughter is a sophomore at Wellesley.

UNC Symphonic Ensemble To Present Wind Concert

The UNC Symphonic Wind ensemble, Herbert Fred conducting, will present a concert in Hill Hall Friday, Feb. 13, at 8 p.m.

Appearing as guest soloist with the 44 woodwind, brass, and percussion players will be Gordon Finlay, solo cornetist with the United States Navy Band.

Organized by UNC band director, Herbert Fred, the all-student ensemble consists of nearly every wind instrument employed by the modern symphonic orchestra and band. In addition to the usual complement of woodwinds, a bass clarinet and a contra bass clarinet are used. All the brass instruments are included, and five percussion instruments are represented. One string bass will be included.

Finlay occupies first chair with the U. S. Navy Band and conducts the band's Ceremonial Detachment. He accepts many conducting assignments each year and has composed numerous marches and cornet trios which the band features extensively in its tours.

A native of Portland, Ore., the cornetist studied music at Oregon State College and at the Universities of Oregon and Idaho. He has been director of instrumental music for Salem, Ore.; director of band at Oregon College in Monmouth; and supervisor of music in Nyssa, Ore.

In addition to his duties with the Navy Band which he joined during World War II, Finlay has continued his interest in music education through frequent appearances as guest soloist or conductor at instrumental clinics. His appearance here is through the courtesy of Burrage Music Company of Raleigh.

Titan Launching Goes Smoothly On Third Try

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — (UP) — A powerful Titan ICBM roared skyward yesterday after two earlier failures to get the big war rocket off the ground.

The 90-foot Titan, which could play a key role in U. S. plans to match Russian intercontinental range ballistic missile claims, made its fiery launching debut at 4:22 p.m. (EST).

The liftoff appeared to be successful to observers at the Cape. Twice before, on Dec. 20 and last Tuesday, Titan ignited on the pad but on both occasions the engine died a split second before liftoff.

Everything appeared to run perfectly for the wary crewmen today.

The 110-ton Titan climbed aloft, uneasily at first. A roar and a flash of flame signaled the launching.

The two-stage missile rose straight up for minutes before arching overhead and streaking toward the southeast. A long plume of white fire flowed in the missile's wake.

The Titan is the first of a new series of "second generation rockets" which will bolster the nation's missile arsenal. The Air Force says its newest ICBM should be more powerful and less complex than the present Atlas which has been in the flight test stage for more than a year.

The Titan's range has been estimated by missilemen as high as 9,000 miles.

For the initial test, the 36-foot second stage of the rocket was inactive. Several thousand gallons of water were carried in place of fuel.

The Martin Co., builder of the rocket, considered the shoot a triumph as soon as the missile blasted skyward. It was learned that 90 percent of the test objectives were accomplished once the missile left the pad.

More than 300,000 pounds of thrust was generated by the first stage engine as soon as the crucial countdown hit zero.

The slender rocket was capped by a 3,000-pound nose cone.

'Cheating Ring' Investigation Ends With Not Guilty Verdict

By CURTIS GANS
One student, charged with complicity in a cheating establishment, was cleared Thursday night in a Men's Honor Council trial that lasted two nights.

The student, a roommate of the ex-student who is alleged to have sold keys to faculty offices, declared himself innocent, and that he had no knowledge that any real wrongdoing was taking place. He thought, at the time, the whole matter was a joke.

He commended Attorney-General Dick Robinson for his fairness in the handling of the case.

Principal Gone
The student who had engaged in selling office keys is no longer in school.

Evidence was presented which showed that two freshmen heard about exams being for sale reported to the Honor Council, and were asked by one member of the Honor Council to pursue investigation by attempting to purchase examinations.

Apparently no examinations were ever produced, but on the night before a Spanish examination, the student gave a key to the two freshmen, although the defendant said that he did not know about his roommate's action.

The first night of trial was devoted to presenting the prosecution argument, while the defense was carried over into the second night. Attorneys for the defense were Dave Biren, member of the Attorney General's staff and Ken Friedman.

Ex-Student Key
It was apparent from the trial that the ex-student was the key to the whole mystery, and that the case would never finally be solved until he could be contacted. It was also clear from both the verdict and the facts brought out that the student on trial was not in violation of either the letter or spirit of the code.

The defendant pointed out how he and other students faked an exam robbery, once they ascertained that those attempting to buy exams were connected with the Honor Council. Both the defendant and the other students were not in the same place that night as the defendant's roommate.

21 Appointed To Symposium Committee

Twenty-one new members were chosen Thursday for the Carolina Symposium Committee. The new members were selected from a field of 50 applicants.

Chairman Al Goldsmith said the applicants were so outstanding that the selection process was most difficult.

"Those who were not selected should not be discouraged. The interviewing committee felt that all who applied had the qualifications for work with the Carolina Symposium. There will be a need for more Symposium workers next fall."

"I would like to extend my most sincere congratulations to those who were selected," Goldsmith said. "With such students running the 1960 Carolina Symposium I do not see how it can be anything but the best Symposium yet."

Orientation Interviews Still On

Three Carolina students have applied for Orientation Chairman, Student Body President Don Furtado said Friday. Other applications will be received through Tuesday in the student government office.

Jim Crowner, Hugh Patterson and David Parker have already applied for the position, Furtado said. Both Patterson and Parker have previously served on the Orientation Committee.

Interviews with all applicants will be conducted Wednesday afternoon by Furtado, former Orientation Chairman Herman Godwin, former women's Orientation Chairman Katie Stewart and Student Body Vice President Ralph Cummings.

Furtado will announce the appointment at Thursday's meeting of Student Legislature, which will act on the appointment.

Students To 'Lobby'

Carolina students will "lobby" at the State Legislature session Monday, Feb. 16, on behalf of the University's budget needs.

Members of the Committee on State Affairs will carry out a project began last year of informing legislators about University needs, such as increased faculty salaries and a new student union.

Norman Smith, chairman of the Committee on State Affairs, said yesterday members of the committee had been invited by several legislators to attend the Feb. 16 session of the General Assembly.

Smith also announced that several committee members will participate in the WUNC-TV "Ideas" program Wednesday at 10 p.m. to discuss their activities. Student Body President Don Furtado will join the committee members on this show.

The appearance of committee members and Furtado on "Ideas" will be the first time students have participated in that program. Program moderator will be Elmer Oetinger.

RING SALE

Although the sale of Carolina class rings officially ended Thursday, Danny Lotz said yesterday he will take any ring order from students who contact him in his dormitory, 101 Teague.

Lotz, chairman of the ring sale for the Order of the Grail, said the next big sale will be held in Y Court around April 1.

During the two-day sale this week, more than 330 students ordered class rings, Lotz said.

The Weather Will Change, Stick Around

By MARY ALICE ROWLETTE.
If you don't like the weather in North Carolina, just stick around a few minutes—it'll change.

That old saying has been ably demonstrated by Chapel Hill weather the last few days, and just to prove its point, more changes are in sight, according to the weather bureau at the Raleigh-Durham airport.

Mostly fair with increasing cloudiness is the prediction for the weekend.

The warm air which began moving into Chapel Hill Thursday is apparently going to move right out again and the weather bureau is predicting a drop in temperatures along with the clouds.

Cosmopolitan Club

The Cosmopolitan Club's International Dinner is a sell out.

Dinner chairman Sipra Bose reported Thursday that around 182 tickets have been sold to the dinner today at 6:30 p.m. in the basement of the University Baptist Church.

Food from foreign countries will be included on the menu.

Hospital Needs Blood

The North Carolina Memorial Hospital needs blood—and Carolina students have been requested to donate.

Most of the blood will be used for heart operations in which the "artificial heart" is used.

These operations are of the type that the patient's own heart cannot operate during the surgery and the blood must be pumped through their body artificially, according to Dr. Richard M. Peters, associate professor of surgery in charge of thoracic (heart and lung) surgery.

Most of these patients are children, although there are some adults. Approximately 15 pints of blood are needed for each of these operations and the blood must be donated the day of surgery.

Dr. Peters explained that in a community the size of Chapel Hill

UP To Fill Legislature Vacancies

The Student Legislature is shrinking.

The University Party will fill vacancies left by resignations of four UP representatives to the governing body at its meeting Tuesday night in Roland Parker I and II at 7:15.

Positions are open in districts where the following have resigned: Doug Kellam, Town Women; Larry Melver, Town Men's III; Bob Turner, Town Men's I, and Jimmy Williams, Town Men's II.

Anyone interested in representing one of these districts has been invited to the meeting Tuesday night.

UP will also discuss the date of nominations and forthcoming campaign policies as well as revise the nominating procedures.

STUDENTS ASKED TO DONATE

it is difficult for a family to find that many donors of the correct type. This is one of the reasons the students have been asked to donate blood.

Another reason is that, while many hospitals have lists of "professional" donors, few families can afford the $250 that the blood cost for the heart operations would cost.

"Students are ideal donors," said Dr. Peters, "because they are not likely to have contacted the diseases that make it undesirable to use their blood."

Before blood is donated it must be typed. Students who wish to donate may be typed at the hospital on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons until 3:30. The hospital will send them identification cards.

If the hospital needs them to donate blood they will be called several days beforehand. "The blood will be taken early in the morning and they should be out of here in about 20 minutes," said Edward K. Tuohy, supervisor of the blood bank.

Students who weigh under 110 pounds cannot ordinarily be blood donors, according to Tuohy. However, those who weigh between 100 and 110 may be needed to give small amounts (less than a pint) for babies and burned children.

People who have had a transfusion within the last six months may not donate.

The legal age limit for donating blood in North Carolina is 18. Those students who are between 18 and 21 must have their parents' permission. Permission cards may be obtained at the Blood Bank.
