Tar Heels Tangle With Deacon Deacs Tonight

By RUSTY HAMMOND

Carolina, gunning for the number one ranking in the nation, tonight journeys to Baptist Hollow to battle old foe Wake Forest in a game that could come up with plenty of surprises.

The Tar Heels are the proud possessors of a 14-1 mark for the season in addition to an undefeated 9-0 record in the ACC.

Wake Forest, which has been somewhat disappointing, owns an even 6-6 overall record. The Deacs are tied for a slot in the first division with Maryland, being 4-5 in the ACC.

The teams have already met once this season, at Chapel Hill. In that one Bones McKinney pulled a deep freeze routine which had Tar Heel fans sweating until the Carolinians emerged with a 44-34 verdict.

Wake Forest has come on strong lately, disposing of two tough opponents. The Deacs whipped highly regarded George Washington 83-81 then turned on the power in the second half to edge Maryland 56-53.

Carolina has a string of four ACC victories achieved after the exam break, the wins coming over Clemson, South Carolina, Maryland and Duke in that order.

Last week the Heels staged a great second half rally as they came from 11 points behind to whip the Duke sophomores 89-80 in Durham.

Top point-makers in the last two contests have been the sophomore standouts, Doug Moe and York Laresé. Laresé pumped in 32 against Maryland and Moe did the same against Duke.

Laresé, second highest scorer in the conference, leads the Tar Heels with a 16.4 average. All of the Heel starters are in double figures. Laresé is followed by Moe (13.2), Lee Shaffer (13.1), Harvey Salz (11.9) and Dick Kepley (10.4).

The Demon Deacons are led by Dave Budd (13.7) and George Ritchie (13.1).

Although the exact strategy Coach Bones McKinney will try tonight is not known, it is almost certain he will have some sort of trick up his sleeve. When asked to comment on the subject, McKinney replied warily, "Just say we've got something in mind."

McKinney is high in his praise of Carolina. He said, "That Carolina bunch has plenty of talent. They have everything, great height, fine shooting and lots of savvy. That's why I say it's going to take a great performance by my boys to beat them."

Carolina stands a good chance of marching to the top position in the basketball polls next week if they can get by Wake and Loyola. They were ranked second this week.

Coeds Granted Added Hour After Game

Coeds will have an extra hour to celebrate the Carolina victory over State College Wednesday night after the basketball game. But if the Tar Heels lose, dormitory closing hours will not be extended until midnight.

The late permission, if Carolina wins the game, was granted by joint resolution of the dean of women's office and the Women's Residence Council at a meeting of the WRC Tuesday.

Accumulative minutes late at night might be allowed coeds before they are campused. This possibility was discussed, but no action was taken by the Women's Residence Council Tuesday. The present coed rules state that a girl is campused for one night from one second to ten minutes late.

The Council announced that violations of regulations during a party raid would be subject to House Council action. Only cases of an infringement of the Campus Code during a party raid would be referred to the Women's Honor Council.

Katie Stewart and LuRuth Sutton will report to the council at a later meeting on the freshmen counselor system for next year. They will investigate the possibility of having orientation counselors double as freshmen counselors.

Lists of dormitory study rooms needs are being compiled. Council members were told. These needs will be turned over to Student Body President Don Furtado. A leadership training program for new WRC members will be held early in April, it was announced.

IN THE GOOD OLD SUMMERTIME

Summer Program Announced

A full range of undergraduate, graduate and professional programs in seven schools and in 31 academic fields will be offered in the 1959 UNC summer session, according to Dr. Arnold K. King, director.

Inquiries from prospective students are running about 30 per cent ahead of this time last year, Dr. King said yesterday. UNC's Summer School is the oldest in the nation, the largest in the state and among the largest in the country. Enrollment will reach about 3,600 the first term, or about five per cent over last year, Director King predicted.

The first six-week term opens June 4, the second term July 15. About 240 faculty members will be teaching.

Dr. King announced programs "identical with those of the fall and spring semester" and carrying degree credits in the College of Arts and Sciences, Graduate School, School of Business Administration, School of Education, School of Law, School of Library Science, School of Social Work.

The summer session of 1959 has been planned to meet the needs of the following groups: (1) graduates of accredited high schools who are entering the freshman class, (2) regular undergraduate and graduate students who are meeting degree requirements at Chapel Hill, (3) visiting undergraduate and graduate students who desire to take courses for transfer to other institutions (4) teachers and administrators who desire to meet certification regulations of North Carolina and other states, (5) other students

Interdormitory Council Passes New Regulations For UNC Residence Halls

Faculty Members Raps Recommended Budget

By NORMAN SMITH

"The budgets as recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission will provide for the decline and degradation of the University of North Carolina. The acceptance of such budgets will lower standards here so much that it will require 20 years to restore the University to its present status."

These remarks were made yesterday by a member of the UNC faculty who said that he felt this attitude on the Commission's report reflected the attitude of the faculty as a whole. He asked to remain unnamed.

"It has been a deeply kept secret that UNC has been failing to live up to its academic reputation for the past 10 years," he said, "and the drastic cuts in requested budgets made by the Commission will serve to precipitate the decline which already has started."

William B. Aycock, chancellor of the University, said that an official statement regarding the action of the Commission will be forthcoming "as soon as administrative officers have had time to completely evaluate the Commission's recommendations."

"A lot of things are there that don't meet the eye," Chancellor Aycock said. Concerning the omission of the request for a new student union and the inclusion of a new cafeteria which was not on the list of immediate requests submitted by UNC, Aycock said, "It is evident that they have placed emphasis first on feeding, housing and teaching the students at the expense of the student center."

The unnamed faculty member cited several situations which will result from the acceptance of the Commission's budget slashes:

(1) Young men who come here with specialized training and high expectations will not be able to continue educating themselves and will not be able to do research because of lack of funds and library resources.

(2) Those who continue to try to learn and do research will have to become increasingly dependent on the use of the Duke University Library, a privilege that may be withdrawn at any time.

(3) At least four departments here may well disappear for lack of funds and faculty.

(4) Many young faculty members who would become chairmen, deans, researchers, and writers will be lured away by higher pay and more adequate facilities.

Bill To Unseat Executives Prepared

A bill, introduced by Norman B. Smith (SP), to prevent executive officers from holding seats in the Student Legislature will be discussed at the Legislature meeting tonight.

The governing body will meet at 7:30 in Phi Hall, 4th floor, New East.

The bill was amended by the Rules Committee yesterday to take effect April 7, 1959, if it is passed by Legislature.

A resolution, presented by Dave Jones (SP) at the last session, authorizing the University Club to sell advertising in preparation for publication of the 1959 University Club Handbook was indefinitely tabled by the Ways and Means Committee.

According to Norman B. Smith, committee chairman, "The tabling of this resolution does not reflect any attitude of hostility toward the University Club on the part of the Ways and Means Committee. The action was only taken to relieve the legislative agenda of business that can legally be transacted within the University Club itself."

Also on the agenda will be a bill, introduced by Smith, to provide $30 for the sophomore class for its scholarship program.

The Interdormitory Council passed new residence hall regulations last night including a proposal which would eliminate all gambling and drinking in the dormitories but permit the possession of alcoholic beverages.

The rules outside of the drinking provision remained largely the same as those posted on the back of dormitory doors. The rules will ultimately have to be approved by the administration.

A representative of the Chapel Hill Telephone Company told the group that the company was attempting to give the dormitories the best possible service, but that if phones continue to be damaged there would be a possibility that all phones would be taken out of the dorms.

He pointed out also that about $70 per month was being lost because students were using quarter size washers in an effort to get free telephone service on long distance calls.

He said that the company has ordered 200 Hear-Hear phones and are currently in the process of replacing all the old phones in the dormitories.

Edwards reported that the Dormitory Council Courts had not heard a single case, and that some dorms had maintained excellent conditions while others hadn't. He added that he hoped that the students would realize their responsibility for self-government without University control.

NASH HALL FIRE

The second fire in two years hit Nash Hall last night, as internal smoke brought firemen at 9 p.m. rushing to the scene to put the blaze out within three-quarters of an hour.

According to firemen on the scene, the fire was caused probably by faulty wiring, but damage to the building, a University structure on Pittsboro St., was slight.

Smoke was contained within the walls of the building, and the only damage, except that necessary in putting the fire out, was the burning of already rotting wood inner walls.

At no time was the building in any real danger as sparks and smoke were the extent of the blaze.

Bardot Loses Ph.D. Award In Phi Fight

By HOBART T. STEELE JR.

A resolution to award Brigitte Bardot an honorary Ph.D. in physical education was overwhelmingly defeated by the Philanthropic Literary Society at its regular Tuesday night meeting.

The bill was directed at beautifying the campus, physical education and graduation exercises. Further provisions were to have portraits of Miss Bardot hung in Graham Memorial and Phi Hall. She was also to become an honorary member of the Phi.

John Brooks, president of the Phi, explained that the bill was presented to interject a bit of humor and give members a break from the usual bills on matters of national and international interest.

Rep. Clay Simpson, in his speech against the bill, said, "Brigitte Bardot is an immature child, she has never grown up." This observation brought several objections from the floor. Questions from the floor ascertained that Simpson meant that Miss Bardot was emotionally, not physically, a child.

Rep. Hobart Steele pointed out that just as Gov. Luther Hodges wants to bring outside industry to North Carolina, so the Phi was attempting to bring outside sex to the campus. He said, "we should patronize our native business just as we should utilize the vast potential of sex in our own coeds."

Rep. Glen Johnson, critic, said a high level of humor was evident in speeches as it should be. No award was given for the best speaker of the evening.

Guests for the evening included several members of the Dialectic Senate.
