'Challenge To South' Is Subject For Hays

Former representative Brooks Hays of Arkansas will speak in Hill Hall at 8 p.m. Monday, sponsored by the local YM-YWCA.

BROOKS HAYS
... in Hill Hall Monday

Hays' topic will be "The Challenge to the South."

Defeated in a write-in vote in Arkansas over the school segregation issue, Hays is a foremost moderate. He is author of a book to be published by the UNC Press in March, entitled "A Southern Moderate Speaks."

Presiding at the speech Monday night will be Betty Kaye Johnson, co-chairman of the Y's Program Committee. Randy Shelton, president of the YMCA, will introduce the former congressman.

Hays is a well known churchman and in 1951 received the annual Layman's Award from ministers in Washington for outstanding service. He has served as chairman of the Christian Life Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention. His current position is president of the Convention for the second consecutive term.

Honor Council Ousts Eight In 5 Months

Eight Carolina students have been suspended from school by the Men's Honor Council in a period from Oct. 7, 1958, to Feb. 7, 1959. Hugh Patterson, council chairman, released a report last week of the total number of cases brought before the council and of the verdicts handed down.

All cases during the four-month period were held using the new jury system which was incorporated into the trial procedure last spring.

Of 27 cases before the Men's Honor Council from Oct. 7 to Feb. 7, 8 students were suspended, 13 were acquitted, 3 were given reprimands, 12 were placed on probation and 1 student was placed on bad check probation.

These figures compare with the following decisions made in 43 cases during a similar period of time a year ago: 9 students were suspended between Oct. 5, 1957 and Feb. 7, 1958; 7 were acquitted, 2 were given reprimands and 25 were placed on probation.

In releasing these figures, Patterson said students have wrongly believed that the Men's Honor Council suspends many students each year. "The actual figures indicate that this is far from true," he said.

One Will Graduate In Physical Therapy

By MARY ALICE ROWLETTE

One of the youngest sections in the curriculum at UNC is the Section of Physical Therapy in the School of Medicine. Established in 1957, it will graduate only one senior, Shirley Cloninger, this spring with a B.S. degree in physical therapy.

There are presently 20 students in physical therapy on campus. Besides, Miss Cloninger there are four juniors and the rest are freshmen and sophomores.

Being enrolled in the General College for the first two years does not mean that students automatically will be accepted into the Physical Therapy section for their last two years. The junior class is being limited to 12 students this year.

Students enrolled in physical therapy work and practice in the clinic during their junior and senior years, in addition to regular classes.

Directing the physical therapy program here is Miss Margaret Moore.

The summer after physical therapy majors graduate they can become affiliated with such places as Warm Springs, Ga., and the Cerebral Palsy Hospital in Durham during the summer so as to become certified physical therapists.

Gov. Luther H. Hodges has designated Feb. 16-21 as State Physical Therapy Week to familiarize physicians with the state's physical therapy facilities and to develop an interest in this field.

In connection with the observance, a half hour program on this branch of medical science will be carried on WUNC-TV Monday at 8 p.m.

Physical therapy is one of the medical profession's most rapidly developing allies. Since World War II, the number of physical therapists has grown from 2,000 to an estimated 7,800.

A physical therapist gives specialized types of treatment prescribed by the physician which employs physical agents, such as heat, cold, light, water, electricity, massage and exercise for injury and disease.

In the rehabilitation of the severely disabled, it plays an important part in aiding the handicapped to acquire physical, occupational and social independence.

Student Party Starts Nominations Monday

The Student Party begins nominating candidates for Student Legislature for the spring elections at its meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Districts for which candidates will be selected are Dorm Men's I and VI, Town Men's I, II, III and IV. The party will also decide whether to approve any candidates for the presidency of the Carolina Athletic Association and the Women's Athletic Association.

One seat in the Legislature recently vacated by Mike Shulman in Dorm Men's III remains to be filled by appointment. The party will also select a nominee for this post Monday night.

Other matters for discussion will be bills currently pending in the Legislature.

Sophomore Scholarships Idea Grows

The freshman class will join the sophomore and junior classes in a statewide scholarship solicitation program, junior class President Wade Smith and sophomore class President Davis Young announced Saturday.

In a meeting Thursday night, the Freshman Cabinet voted to endorse the project. Freshman President Jay Deifel made it clear at that time, however, that his class will continue to work on their own projects in the future, as well as to join the sophomores and juniors on theirs.

On Friday afternoon, the officers of the three classes met for the first time as a unit and divided up the work into several small sub-committees. The work of these groups will come under the supervision of Deifel, Young and Smith, acting as a three man guiding force.

Later that afternoon, Young and Smith met with Chancellor William Aycock in his office and discussed the proposed program with him. The chancellor gave his approval to the project and consented for his name to be used as one of those that will be on the state committee.

This week, another series of meetings will follow. Efforts are being made now for Deifel, Young and Smith to meet with Gov. Luther Hodges in Raleigh.

The officers of the three classes will work as one group on this project. Generally, the sub-committees are all formed with one member of each class on each committee.

Young pointed out that one of the great needs at this time is for the officers to find office space. He said, "We are looking for some room or rooms on this campus with typewriters and files, for the purpose of converting them into headquarters for the fund raising campaign. We are hopeful of having something by this by the end of the week."

The presidents of the three lower classes still would give no indication of whom the scholarship is being named for, preferring to meet with the family of the person before announcement is made.

It is anticipated that this name will be disclosed to The Daily Tar Heel as well as the state papers in one to two weeks.

The group is now preparing the preliminary plans for a handbook to be used in publicizing the program. They further reported that they are pleased with the response from the many officials they have talked with to date.

Study Groups Begin At Presbyterian Hut

Spring semester study groups will get underway at the Presbyterian Hut this week.

The day and time for seven workshops will be set tonight after the Westminster Fellowship program at the convenience of students who sign up for the groups.

The proposed seven workshops include: Bible Study, Christian and Nuclear Warfare, Graduate Study Group, Nature and Mission of the Church, Christian Questions in Modern Novels and Plays, Worship Workshop and Basic Christian Beliefs, and Nature of Man Seminar.

Orientation Unit Needs Members

Now's the time for all good men and coeds to come to the aid of Orientation Chairman David Parker.

Parker, who was named Orientation Chairman last week, is looking for members of the Orientation Committee. The committee will include such offices as men's coordinator, women's coordinator, secretary and treasurer. This committee is in overall charge of planning orientation for new students in the fall.

Orientation counselors will be selected later this semester. Applications for the Orientation Committee will be received this week. Application forms are available in the student government office.

Interviews for committee members will be conducted Feb. 23-26.

To Receive Radium Therapy; Takes Leave Of Absence

WASHINGTON — John Foster Dulles has cancer of undetermined extent. But he will continue as Secretary of State on leave of absence while undergoing treatment.

President Eisenhower made this announcement yesterday after visiting Dulles at Walter Reed Army Hospital.

A medical bulletin issued along with the President's announcement ruled out any immediate surgery. It said that "In the immediate future radiation therapy will be used."

The disclosure, based on laboratory tests, came about 27 hours after Dulles was operated on for a groin hernia. The operation was performed by the hospital commandant, Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, who removed a cancerous portion of Dulles' colon two years ago.

State Department Press Officer Lincoln White told newsmen doctors informed Dulles has had cancer about 9 a.m. (EST.) White said Eisenhower and Dulles' family were notified about the same time. The news evoked expressions of regret and concern from this capital and around the world.

It also threw awry the Allies' timetable of negotiations on Soviet efforts to oust western troops from Berlin.

And it spurred speculation on a possible successor to Dulles, who will be 71 in 10 days.

Mrs. Anne Wheaton, associate White House Press Secretary, indicated in response to a question the leave of absence statement meant there will be no appointment of a new Secretary of State at this time.

Tissue and fluid removed during Saturday's hernia operation were found to be cancerous. The medical bulletin put it this way:

"A small nodular implant on the hernia sac was removed with the excess sac during the course of the operative procedure.

"The fluid evacuated at surgery contained free cancer cells on cytological examination.

"No further surgery is contemplated. In the immediate future, radiation therapy will be used."

Eisenhower issued the announcement through aides at Walter Reed after visiting Dulles for 37 minutes. It was during that visit, he said, that doctors discussed "the existence of malignancy not fully determined at this time as to its extent but certain to require further treatment."

The President added:

"I express the thoughts and prayers of all of us that the results of his operation and the further course of treatment will be successful. In order to allow time for this purpose, the secretary continues on leave of absence. I will, (See DULLES, Page 3)

LOOKING BACKWARD

More Profs Rap Budget

By DAVE JONES

"It makes the tonstand weaver want to frow up," is not a proof reader's error, rather it is a quotation from Dorothy Parker. It means "It makes the constant reader want to throw up," and it was one of many comments from members of the Romance Language Department when asked about the advisory budget for 1959-61.

Prof. A. G. Engstrom said that he felt that Dorothy Parker's comment on one of H. L. Mencken's works which included some baby talk, was the best expression of his opinion on the advisory budget's work.

Prof. N. B. Adams said, "I feel it is most unfortunate and short-sighted. The University has a tremendously good reputation throughout the country and this budget doesn't live up to that obligation. The budgeteers seem to expect more from us than they are willing to pay for."

Prof. Fletcher Green, Kenan professor of history commented: "I am terribly disappointed in the cutting. Instead of looking forward, they are looking backward." When asked for more details Professor Green said that he hadn't had time to study it enough to make specific comments.

"If you are interested in doing things on an intellectual level you have to spend money," said one of the professors in the French Department. "To me," he continued, "the most dramatic, concrete example of this is the library's cuts. I can only hope that the members of the Legislature are more aware and less shortsighted than our governor."

A graduate instructor in the French Department said: "I am afraid I must plead the fifth amendment." When asked for his opinion on the budget, he expressed some doubt as to whether he should speak out since he was not a full time member of the faculty.

Professors Frank Duffey, Lawrence Sharpe and William A. McKnight declined to comment because they felt that they hadn't had an opportunity to study the budget carefully and didn't know anything about specifics.

A graduate instructor in the Spanish Department expressed his concern over the building of a new "Flip Top" stadium in Raleigh when UNC need funds for improvements here so badly. He also said that with the library's cuts there would be no new books available to fill up all of the space that was vacated by the books that were on sale. "Of course the library is well provided for with janitorial help, but that doesn't advance the most important center of new intellectual thought on this campus."

Prof. U. T. Holmes said that since UNC is anticipating "increased registration, the staff must be improved and you just can't do that without research resources, books, materials and assistants, and the Hodges' Budget does nothing for those things. Professors aren't just teachers, they have to have something else. A good library is important in the scheme of things, but our book budget is lower than that of our competitors and we have lots of competition.

Dr. Dobbie Kicks Off On Statistics Talks
