

PRO AND CON — Margaret Starnes as the nagging wife, Mme. Jourdain; James Poteat as M. Jourdain; and Lore Schuller as the saucy maid, Nicole, are shown in a scene from Moliere's "The Would Be Gentleman." The Carolina Playmakers production is scheduled to open Feb. 25 for a five performance run in the Playmakers Theater. Tickets will be on sale beginning Thursday at Ledbetter-Pickard's and at 214 Abernathy Hall. All seats are reserved at $1.50.

GOOD GRIEF, MORE

Profs Attack Budget

By DAVE JONES

"It denies freedom of time or resources to engage in creative or research activities, and if it is left as it is it will modify our status as a true University center," said Dr. Hugh H. Van, chairman of the Department of English, when asked for his impressions of the advisory budget.

"It is true that all of us have impressions based only upon the governor's address and reports in the press. But if my picture is correct, they are asking us to teach more students at the same staff level and they are asking us to maintain our faculty in the competitive market without salary increases," he said.

"If these conclusions are true it (the budget) will modify the character of the University very seriously. Teaching time for the individual student will be cut down. Small classes will become larger," Dr. Holman concluded.

Prof. George F. Horner called the budget, "almost unrealistic." He said that it "simply will not permit the University to operate at the present enrollment and maintain its staff. Everyone is looking for teachers and as a result of the demand, salaries are going up."

Professor Horner also said that when a professor is offered a 40 or 50 per cent increase he is going to leave, local roots and loyalties notwithstanding.

Emphasis was placed on numbers of students in classes by Prof. Lyman Cotten. He said that the present trend to larger classes will cause the teachers to lose contact with the mind of the pupil. "If I had a class of 150, I could never invite the students in for a conference," he said. "I had a class of 10 in modern poetry recently and I felt that the sense of contact was far greater and the students were less willing to come to class unprepared."

Kenan professor of English Richmond P. Bond said, "it impedes our program markedly, in a scholarly and a pedagogical way. It weakens our position in the competitive market. I don't know if the people in the state realize it, but there is much more competition today."

"I feel very badly about it," he continued. "If it goes unchanged we will be very much hampered here. We do more than teach and grade papers. We put in time on committees, boards and research for articles and books and a big book takes years of concentrated effort."

"Obviously the whole thing is inadequate," said Prof. Dougald Mac Millan. "We go through something similar to this every time the budget comes out. I've seen them all since 1914. You've got to convince the legislature with the presentation of the University's case to the proper legislative committees. You must get those persons in the legislature who are favorably inclined toward the University to present your case."

"Any attempt to limit the University's forward progress is a stunning blow," said Prof. Peter G. Phialas. He said the budget hurt it not only quantitatively, but qualitatively as well, and that the school can no longer compete in the market for professors.

Prof. H. K. Russell said, "the University is growing and unless the staff and resources of the library can keep up with the growth, the kind of education he University can provide for graduate and undergraduate students will become more and more impersonal and diluted."

Concerning the library, Prof. Russell said that the budget cuts are a mistake and that it will ultimately be "harder to catch up than to keep up." He also said that there is "a good deal of satisfaction in knowing what a student is interested in and his approaches to problems." However, he said this relationship becomes impossible in larger classes, leaving the student in the position of having to discover things for himself.

In the United States, seven regions handle the operation of the WUS. Sponsoring organizations of the World University Service are Catholic, Protestant and Jewish student groups.

The local Y, through the Campus Chest drive, is the active sponsoring organization on the Carolina campus.

The administration for the World University Service consists of an International Secretariat in Geneva, Switzerland, and 40 branches elsewhere in the world.

Foreign Students Get English Class Tonight

Another English class for foreign students will be held tonight at 6 o'clock in the upstairs lounge of the YM-YWCA Building.

This class introduces to foreign students and their families American folkways, customs and correct grammar. The free class is being sponsored by the Y in conjunction with the UNC English Department.

Instructor for the class is Dee Donroe, who will assist any student needing additional help. In addition to the classroom instruction, social functions and trips throughout the state have been planned.

Students have been asked to bring notebooks, pen and possibly a dictionary to tonight's class.

Chest Drive Goes To Rebels

Carolina students will be underwriting the education of Hungarian students who escaped after the 1956 uprising when contributions are made to the 1959 Campus Chest.

Education of Hungarian students comes under the budget of the World University Service, which is one of the three agencies being supported in the annual Campus Chest drive.

Of the $3,000 Campus Chest goal this year, 40 per cent or $1,200 has been designated for the World University Service (WUS). The two other participating agencies in this year's drive are Goettinger scholarships and the Class for Mentally Retarded Children of Orange County.

The Campus Chest drive has been scheduled for the week of March 1-7. The World University Service went to the aid of Hungarian students in 1956 and set up a special loan fund the next year. Again this year, the WUS will contribute more money to the education of Hungarian students.

In addition to the actual educational aid to Hungarian and other students, the World University Service has sent funds to fight disease, buy food and assist in building housing projects where the need arises.

The International World University Service was started to give relief to universities in post-World War I Europe. After the Second World War, WUS again actively participated in a program to aid refugees, provide scholarships, food and medicine.

The administration for the World University Service consists of an International Secretariat in Geneva, Switzerland, and 40 branches elsewhere in the world.

In the United States, seven regions handle the operation of the WUS. Sponsoring organizations of the World University Service are Catholic, Protestant and Jewish student groups.

The local Y, through the Campus Chest drive, is the active sponsoring organization on the Carolina campus.

Student Party Picks Election Candidates

Twelve Candidates for the Student Legislature were nominated to run in the spring elections by the Student Party in its meeting last night.

A recently vacated seat in the Legislature was also filled in a meeting almost exclusively devoted to elections and nominations.

In Town Men's I Warren Jackson was nominated by acclamation to run for a one year seat. No candidates were nominated to run in Town Men's II.

In Town Men's III Stan Black, Frank Elkins, and Barry Zasler were nominated to run for one year seats. Hobart Steele will run for the six months' seat open.

Those nominated in Town Men's IV for one year seats were Bob Pierce, Don Dotson, and Billy Woodard. Four other candidates will be selected by the Student Party Advisory Board.

In Dorn Men's I Swag Grimsley was nominated to run for a one year seat, with Taylor McMillar running for the six months' seat.

Bob Thompson and Ed Levy were nominated to run for Dorn Men's VI, both for one year seats.

The Student Party decided to endorse Tom Cordle as its candidate for the presidency of the Carolina Athletic Association. Endorsement of a candidate for the presidency of the Women's Athletic Association was postponed until next week's meeting.

Roy Goodman was chosen by acclamation to fill a vacant seat in the Legislature created by the resignation of Mike Shulman of his seat in Dorn Men's III. He will take office at the next meeting of the Legislature.

The Party also chose a new treasurer, as it is usual to have a treasurer serving through both the fall and spring elections. Bob Nobles was elected to this post, which was formerly held by Irwin Fuller. It was also announced that Nobles will serve as campaign coordinator for the coming spring elections.

Outgoing Treasurer Fuller presented his final financial report at the meeting, outlining in detail the condition of the party in this respect. It was revealed that the party spent a total of $275.47 on the fall election. Income and expenses were described as being "both over $1,000."

Delta Delta Delta Works For Charity

Clerks from Delta Delta Delta Sorority will greet customers in Robbins Department store today. Pan Hell charities will benefit, netting 10 per cent of all sales made throughout the day.

Present Time Is Troubled Brooks Hays Asserts

HOMEWORK

Students Give Models

By RON SHUMATE

A group of UNC Air Science students recently donated some of their homework to needy children and orphans.

But the homework did not consist of mathematics problems, term papers or the history of ancient Greece or any such standard classroom assignment.

Rather, each student in Capt. W. E. Moore's freshman Air Science class of the Air Force ROTC was required to build some type of air vehicle. The models ranged from the earliest types of "flying machines" to the recent Atlas ICBM.

The models were entered in a contest and four winners were presented with letters of commendation from professor of Air Science Lt. Col. F. W. Swann. The winners also received five merits, strictly a military award.

After the contest, most of the models were distributed to needy children by the Chapel Hill Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Empty Stocking Fund.

UP Discusses Union, Elections Tonight

Tonight the University Party will discuss two possible Legislative bills, one concerning a state loan for a new Student Union and the other for having more ballot boxes during elections.

The party will meet at 7:15 in Roland Parker I and II.

According to John Minter, party chairman, a self-liquidating federal loan of 2½ million dollars for a Student Union could be secured. This would raise the student block fee $15 per student.

Discussion on ballot boxes will center around placing another one in the naval armory, which would provide two for Town Men's I, another in Y Court (Town Men's II) and adding another in Town Men's III.

David Grigg will explain his bill, presented last week to the Student Legislature, concerning Legislative action on matters dealing with subsidiary organizations.

Under discussion will be its attack by the editor of The Daily Tar Heel.

Perry Nichols, Heck Lecture Guest Tonight

The UNC Law Students Association will sponsor a Heck Lecture tonight, with Perry Nichols, prominent Miami attorney, as guest speaker.

The three hour program, open to the public, will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Institute of Government. The speaker, whose topic will be "The Personal Injury Workshop: From Selection of the Jury through Final Argument," will conduct the lecture with the use of demonstrative and visual aids.

LSA President Joseph B. Chambliss will preside at the program. The speaker will be introduced by the chairman of the LSA Speakers Committee, Robert W. King Jr.

This will be the fourth event in the 1958-59 Heck Lecture Series, which is supported by a fund endowed by George Heck of Glen Head, N. Y., the oldest living alumnus of the UNC Law School.

Nichols, who limits his practice to trial work and specializes only in the plaintiff's side of personal injury litigation, is a Fellow and Director of the International Academy of Trial Lawyers. Past President of the Dade County Bar Association, he was one of four lawyers serving on the Judicial Council of Florida which has re-written the Constitution of Florida dealing with the courts and is still working on future improvements.

Each student bought his model from his own funds. The purpose of the assignment, according to Capt. Moore, was to familiarize the students with the shapes, forms and control systems of air vehicles and with the basic principles of aerodynamics.

The winners and the type of model they built are Lloyd Moore, an X-13 Vertajet; John Summey, a Snark ICRM; Evan King, an F-104 Starfighter, and Jim Carver, an Atlas ICBM.

Judges in the contest were Major William D. Locke, Gen. F. Carlyle Shepard and Lt. Col. Swann. The models were judged on the basis of attention to detail and craftsmanship.

Capt. Moore said the project will probably be repeated next year.

As this will be the last meeting before nominations (Feb. 23 and 24), Minter said that a definite time for the meetings will be discussed. They will also explain some of the issues incorporated into the party platform.

Interviews Scheduled By Marines

Major Charles B. Redman, Marine Corps official selection officer for the Carolinas, will visit UNC Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 23 and 24.

While here, he plans to interview those students interested in obtaining a Marine Corps commission. At present, vacancies exist for both ground and pilot training.

Major Redmond has said that several good programs are offered by the Marines. The platoon leaders class program is available for freshmen, sophomores and juniors, while seniors may participate in the aviation officer candidate course or the officer candidate course. Marine officer training is arranged so as not to interfere with college work.

All students will be required to receive their degree before being assigned to active duty.

While at Carolina, Mayor Redman and the members of the team will be in Y Court daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. All interested students may contact him there. This will be his last visit during the current academic year.

Student Wives Plan Colorful Spring Events

The varied program of the Student Wives Club for the spring semester includes nearly everything from bridge playing to outdoor cooking.

The club, whose membership is open to wives of students enrolled in the University, meets every first and third Tuesday at the Victory Village Nursery.

The program for tonight will feature Mrs. Thell Jernigan, owner of Thell's Bakery, who will give a demonstration of professional cake decorating techniques.

The newly elected officers of the club are Frances Hovdesven, president; Marilyn George, vice president; Jane Brown and Katie Johnson, secretaries; Judy Snyder, treasurer, and Kathy Alexander, program chairman.

All meetings begin at 8 p.m.

"There isn't much time left," said Brooks Hays last night to a UNC audience. The South must meet the racial problem with "sympathetic response."

In his talk, "Challenge to the

Phi Proposal Would Abolish Military Draft

Should the peace-time military draft be abolished in the United States? This is the question to be discussed by the Philanthropic Literary Society tonight at 8 o'clock.

A bill presented by David Matthews, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, would have the peace-time military draft abolished, while maintaining "a comparatively small, professional armed force by means of increased salaries and improved living conditions."

The bill further states that due to the draft, the lives and careers of young American men are highly uncertain, and the turnover is great thereby depriving the armed forces of highly trained specialists. Since experts in technical skills are badly needed by the U. S. armed services in this age of great technical advancement, it is felt that a considerably smaller military establishment than exists at present would be just as effective, if it were composed entirely of experienced and professional soldiers.

Any interested persons have been invited to attend the meeting. The Phi meets on the fourth floor of New East.

Music Series At 8 Features Violin, Piano

Three sonatas for violin and piano by Beethoven, Brahms and Prokofiev will be presented tonight at 8 o'clock in Hill Hall.

Violinist Edkar Elden and pianist William S. Newman of the UNC Music Department faculty will be the performers in the second spring recital of the Tuesday Evening Series. The program is open to the public without charge.

Dr. Alden, head of the string division in the Music Department, teaches theory and is assistant conductor of the UNC Symphony Orchestra. His most recent concert appearance in Hill Hall was in November with the UNC String Quartet.

Dr. Newman teaches music appreciation and seminars in musicology, and is chairman of piano instruction. He and Dr. Wilton Mason opened the Tuesday Evening Series last semester with a two-piano recital.

Newman and Alden have appeared on concert together for the past nine years. They often repeat their Hill Hall concerts in other Carolina communities and in neighboring states.

For tonight's program they have chosen Beethoven's "Spring" Sonata in F Major, Op. 24; Brahms' Sonata in G Major, Op. 78; and Sonata in D Major Op. 94 by Prokofiev.

Student Party Ends

Student Party interviews for nominations for the spring election will conclude this week with Dorn Men's IV and V and Dorn Women's II.

Students who live in these districts may be interviewed Friday in Roland Parker I from 2 to 5 p.m.

Although interviews for Dorn Men's II and III, Dorn Women's I and Town Women's districts were supposed to have been completed last week, interviews will continue throughout the week in these districts.

Interviews Friday

Students in the Infirmary yesterday included:

Virginia Louise Crawley, Ellen Rae Smith, Jerry Sandra White, Sophie Meyers Martin, James Pressley, Roy Millan Wall, George Henry Manasse, Thomas Lee Funderburk, James Edward Fox, David Robert Williams and Margaret Lillian Evans.

Di Meeting

An informal discussion on Women's rules will be the topic of tonight's Dialectic Senate meeting to be held at 8 p.m. in Di Hall, 3rd floor New West.

President Gary Greer announced that parliamentary rules will be suspended to provide a more informal means of communication.

Greer said that he had invited Nancy Adams, chairman of the Women's Honor Council, and other coed leaders to participate in the discussion.

INFIRMARY

Students in the Infirmary yesterday included:

Virginia Louise Crawley, Ellen Rae Smith, Jerry Sandra White, Sophie Meyers Martin, James Pressley, Roy Millan Wall, George Henry Manasse, Thomas Lee Funderburk, James Edward Fox, David Robert Williams and Margaret Lillian Evans.