Khrushchev Eases Away From May 27 German Deadline; Gives West Dark Warning

Whoever Uses His Elbow Will Break It

LEIPZIG, East Germany—(AP)—Premier Khrushchev eased away from his May 27 deadline on Berlin in a free-wheeling talk yesterday and offered lightly to sign a Western-drafted German peace treaty.

He punctuated that with another warning to the West: "Whoever bumps us with his elbow will break it."

The Soviet leader took the floor in high good humor after drinking a series of toasts to peace and trade—in white wine, cognac and red wine—at an impromptu luncheon given by Leipzig's mayor.

He said his deadline for an end to the four-power occupation of Berlin might be postponed, if the West will negotiate sensibly, until June 27 or maybe July 27.

"We are in no hurry," he added, and, for what it was worth, tossed in an old Russian saying: "Never count your chickens until fall."

Khrushchev insisted the deadline is not an ultimatum.

At the same time he reiterated that the Soviet Union will sign a separate peace treaty with Communist East Germany, an eager potential heir to Soviet occupation controls, if the West refuses to sign an all-German treaty. His government has proposed that foreign ministers meet next month to consider the Berlin issue and a German peace treaty.

In light-hearted banter with three British parliamentarians in town for Leipzig's spring trade fair, Khrushchev remarked with a smile: "I didn't come here to talk politics. I represent business circles of the Soviet Union."

That drew the biggest laugh of the day.

"Write out a peace treaty and we'll sign it," Khrushchev jokingly told the Britons, conservative Burnaby Drayson and laborites Ian Mikardo and Arthur Lewis.

That did not mean, of course, that he would sign anything he disagreed with. Despite his amiability, he indicated no real concessions.

There was a hint of apology in another remark: "I haven't said anything new, but repetition is the mother of wisdom."

He added a new point: the Soviet Union will not turn over to East Germany the control of the Western world's military lifelines to West Berlin unless it signs a separate treaty with the East Germans first.

What he did not say was that such a treaty could be signed at any time. The East German communists are clamoring for it in the hope it would give their regime greater status in the eyes of the world.

West Berlin is isolated 110 miles inside East Germany. Last Nov. 27 Khrushchev threatened to let the East Germans take over the road, rail and air routes into the city unless he got an agreement in six months for his plan to convert West Berlin into a demilitarized free city.

The United States, Britain and France and allied West Germany made it plain they intended to stand fast. They still look on the East German regime as a Soviet front. They do not recognize it as a government.

DAVE BRUBECK
... gives his definition of jazz

Brubeck Defines Jazz; Appears Here Today

"I define jazz as an improvised music based on European harmony and African rhythms," says Dave Brubeck, pianist, composer, teacher, and star of the 'Lost Weekend' concert this afternoon.

Phi Backs Government Subsidies

The Phi Society voted confidence in government policies of subsidies for industry and agriculture in its meeting Tuesday night.

The members of the society resoundingly defeated a resolution that the United States reassert the principles of capitalism by gradually abolishing subsidies for industry and agriculture, penalties for success, and other hindrances of free enterprise.

The meeting was attended by members of the Chapel Hill High School Debate Squad and their coach. Members of the Debate Team asked questions of speakers and remaining afterwards for informal discussion.

In introducing the bill of the evening, Rep. David Matthews denounced the movement of the U. S. government toward socialism through subsidy programs for private enterprise. He cited the Soviet Union as an example of what happens when there is "inequitable" distribution of income, attributing its spectacular gains to its lack of penalties for success, such as the graduated income tax.

Rep. Bill Jackson scored the advocates of "old guard Republicanism" and their "outworn" theories. Rep. Stan Black listed three primary aims of government: satisfying national defense needs, maintaining relatively full employment and smoothing out the business cycle. He said subsidies and the graduated income tax were in line with these stated policies.

The farm problem was laid at the feet of the farmers by Rep. Glenn Johnson, who said the private producer should stand or fall by himself. Rep. Ron Pruitt pointed out the tariff as a form of subsidy blocking free trade which should be eliminated.

In the voting, the bill went down to defeat in a vote of both the members of the Phi and of all those present in the hall.

Critic Glen Johnson declared Stan Black Speaker of the Evening for his logical presentation.

It was announced that next week's bill will be for the unification of the United States and Canada into a single nation.

University Day, Carnival Coincide

In conjunction with Consolidated University Day, the N. C. State College Union Social Committee will sponsor Carnival Weekend on April 17-18.

The Carnival Weekend opens with a Carnival Dance at 8:30 p.m., April 17, with music supplied by the Duke Ambassadors. The carnival will end at midnight on Consolidated University Day, April 18.

Booths for money-making projects, the Carnival Dance, a Consolidated University Dance, a Carnival Queen and a Consolidated University Queen will be the highlights of the weekend.

Organizations of the participating schools—N. C. State College, UNC at Chapel Hill and Woman's College—are eligible for entry in the attractions of the carnival.

Applications and rules for the Carnival Weekend are being sent to organizations on the campuses of the three schools; organizations not receiving this information by March 15 are asked to contact the chairman of the College Union Social Committee at State.

Campus Chest Still Short Of Goal

Campus Chest contributions have been coming in slowly during the week. Through early Thursday, $848.36 had been collected toward the goal of $3,000.

Solicitors in dormitories and among faculty members are working toward reaching the goal before the Campus Chest drive officially ends Saturday.

The annual drive is the only campus-wide solicitation for charities allowed at UNC.

The budget this year includes allocations for the World University Service, the Goettingen Exchange Scholarship Program and the Orange County Class for Mentally Retarded Children.

If the $3,000 goal is reached, $1,200 will go to the World University Service to aid foreign students. Another $1,200 will go for the Goettingen scholarships for Carolina and German students. The remaining $600 will be turned over to the mentally retarded children's class.

In the selection of the three agencies to benefit from the drive, the Campus Chest Board chose organizations that aid students. The Board has emphasized the "students helping students" idea in its drive.

Kemp Goofed; Didn't Know About Brubeck

By KEN WHEELER
Kemp goofed. It might have been the first time, but he really goofed. He failed to know a star will be here.

The Daily Tar Heel discovered the fact when a reporter was dispatched to Kemp's record cubbyhole to investigate the background of one Dave Brubeck, appearing this afternoon in Memorial Auditorium.

Tar Heel staffers agree that it marks the first time that the music pedagogue of the campus failed to dig out the albums of a coming performer and plaster the walls of UNC with advertising material.

Whatever the reason, Brubeck will be here and Kemp will, for sure, utilize these last few hours before the jazzman's appearance to move those jazz albums.

Support Voted For Original Budget Request

Aycock, Friday Stick To First Budget Aims

By NEIL MURPHY
Chancellor William B. Aycock announced Thursday that he and President William C. Friday intend to appear before the Joint Appropriations Committee of the State Legislature on March 18 to "support our original requests" for the budget.

Aycock went on to point out that both the University and the State Board of Higher Education were in full agreement on the items included in the capital improvements budget. This budget includes improvements to the University for a 10 year period.

"We made our recommendations and we're standing on them," J. Harris Purks, Chairman of the State Board of Higher Education, said Wednesday. "Our recommendations were identical with those of the University on capital improvements."

This means that Carolina's proposed Student Union Building which was not recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission will be requested by Purks, Friday and Aycock.

President Friday and Chancellor Aycock do not plan to attend the regular meeting of the Board of Higher Education on March 11. The open meeting was described by Aycock as "just the usual regular meeting."

Aycock pointed out that at the Joint Appropriations Committee meeting the University would support its own requests for the operations budget and that the Board of Higher Education would support theirs.

"We are going for our own original requests on the operations budget and the Board of Higher Education will support its recommendations," said Aycock. The requests of the University are higher than those recommended by the board.

"They will support their operation budget and we will support ours. We are in agreement on the capital improvements for the next 10 years," Aycock stated.

Furtado Appoints 8 To Various Committees

Student Body President Don Furtado announced eight new appointments today to student government committees.

"These appointments were made after a great deal of consideration of the positions and applications. As always, it was difficult to make a decision, but it is my belief that the appointees will attempt to do all in their power to meet the demands of the various tasks," Furtado stated.

David Leffer was appointed to the Student Audit Board. He joins four other members who are responsible for governing the accounting and fiscal policy involved in the $1,750,000 handled annually by the Student Activities Fund Office.

New appointees to the Elections Board are Stewart Priddy, Gay Wilson, Jose Lopes, Don Black and Bill Norton. This 15-member committee is responsible for the preparation and administration of the campus elections.

Bill Miller and Troy Blanton were appointed to the committee set up last week by the Legislature to investigate the feasibility of establishing a recreation and picnic area in Victory Village.

Foreign Policy Topic

Students are invited to hear Michael Harrington, New York free lance writer, discuss United States foreign policy at 6:45 tonight in the upstairs dining room of Lenoir Hall.

Harrington will be at the home of Miss Anne Queen, afterwards, to talk with interested students.

Speaking for the spring Y conference this weekend, he will arrive here this afternoon.

"The World . . . Policy and Perspective" is the theme for the conference which begins Saturday. Students may register today in the Y.

B. A. School Given Grant

A major stimulus to the faculty of the School of Business Administration was announced here today with the establishment of the Drexel Research Professorship at the School of Business by the Drexel Furniture Company.

A total of $100,000 has been contributed by the Morganton Company to the Business Foundation of North Carolina, a private corporation established by leading North Carolina businessmen in 1946 for the purpose of assisting the Chapel Hill School of Business Administration in the development of a comprehensive program of business education, research, and service.

Annual income from the Drexel gift will be used to enable a School of Business Administration faculty member to devote full time to basic research. The Drexel Research Professorship will be in the nature of a distinguished professorship in the research field.

In commenting on the announcement Maurice W. Lee, Dean of the School of Business Administration, cited the Drexel Research Professorship as a major contribution to the School both from the standpoint of the research it will make possible and the encouragement it will give to outstanding faculty performance.

A former president of the Business Foundation, Mr. R. O. Huffman, Drexel President, was given special mention by Dean Lee, who described the furniture executive as one of the state's forward looking business leaders. "Mr. Huffman's identification with higher education in North Carolina, particularly in the area of business and economic study and research, continues to be an inspiration to those of us who are concerned with the economic development of the South," Lee stated.

A recent publication of the School of Business Administration entitled "Business and Economic Research at Chapel Hill" describes more than 80 research projects now being undertaken by members of the School of Business faculty. Much of this research has been carried on by faculty members who have major teaching responsibilities. The Drexel Research Professorship will enable one or more faculty members to undertake a full time, intensive research program.

Carolina Handbook Has Several Positions Open

Several positions on the Carolina Handbook staff are now open. Editor Sue Campbell announced Thursday.

Interviews for the positions of editor, assistant editor, section editors and office staff for the 1959 edition will be held at the beginning of the week.

Interested students have been asked to fill out an application blank, leave it in the YMCA office and sign the appointment list for an interview. The deadline for returning applications is Tuesday morning.

The Carolina Handbook has been a publication of the YMCA since 1891, and it is the University's official orientation guide for all new students: freshmen, transfer students or graduate students.

From the first edition of 16 pages the handbook has been expanded to the present 150-page edition with sections dealing with all phases of campus life.

In 1957 the student government made an appropriation to help support the publication. During 1958, as a member of the Publications Board, the handbook operated with a budget of $3,600.

Anyone having questions concerning the Carolina Handbook should contact Sue Campbell, editor, at 8-484 in the afternoons or 8-9148 after 7 p.m.
