Student Party Readies For 'Big 4' Nominations

By STAN BLACK

The Student Party meeting Monday night will have some elements of an old-fashioned political convention.

Candidates for SP's nomination of the "big four" student government offices have been lining up support during the past weeks for this meeting.

The SP meeting has been set for 7 p.m. Monday in Roland Parker I and II when the party will name candidates for president, vice president, secretary and treasurer of the student body in the April 7 elections.

In the race for the presidential nomination are Ralph Cummings and Norman B. Smith. Cummings is now vice president of the student body. Smith is chairman both of Student Legislature's Ways and Means Committee and of the Committee on State Affairs.

Equally interested in the SP "big four" nominations are two prospec-five candidates for vice president. Jim Crowover and Ed Levy are expected to seek this nomination.

The position of secretary of the student body will probably go to either Martha Morgan or Ann Lucas.

Thus far, Erwin Fuller appears to be the only active candidate for the SP nomination for treasurer of the student body.

Another nomination to be made Monday night is the Student Party candidate for secretary of the senior class.

Two candidates for editor of the Yackety-Yack, Jerry Adams and Mike Smith, will appear before SP to seek the party endorsement. Both Adams and Smith were present at last week's SP meeting. At that meeting, they were asked if they would consider running as co-editors for the position. The two will have made some decision by the SP meeting Monday night.

Poet Frost To Appear Here Fri.

Words of wisdom from the dean of American poets will be offered UNC students Friday when Robert Frost returns to Chapel Hill to give a public reading.

Frost will speak at 8:30 p.m. in Hill Hall, reading some of his poems and commenting on life in general.

The English Department will sponsor his talk, and Prof. and Mrs. Clifford P. Lyons will act as hosts to Frost during his stay in Chapel Hill.

Frost, who will be 85 years old on March 26, will be returning to his farm in Ripton, Vt., after a winter stay in Florida. He spends two months each year at Amherst, Mass., lecturing and advising students at Amherst College.

State Beats Carolina For ACC Title

Tar Heels Still Go To NCAA Tournament

RALEIGH — "Our boys tried their hearts out, but they were just defeated by a better team tonight." So spoke Carolina Coach Frank McGuire as he accepted the ACC invitation to play in the NC-AA eliminations immediately after State College had beaten his Tar Heels 80-56 for the Conference championship.

There was no doubt about the fact that the Wolfpack wanted the big one as they led the whole way in a game that had virtually everything. For State mentor Everett Case, the smashing victory of his team in the finals more than made up for the two regular season defeats that Carolina had pinned on his squad.

The winners were led by a terrific individual performance on the part of senior guard Lou Pucillo who threw in 23 points in his last collegiate appearance.

Other State double-figure men were Bob MacGillivray with 18 and John Richter who had 15.

The fans in attendance at the Coliseum got a little something extra for their money when the lights went out with less than six minutes left remaining in the second half. A little over a minute later when they came back on the clock showed 5:50 left in the game and the question of elapsed time had to be settled before action could continue.

More electrical "atmosphere" came less than 2 minutes later; this time the clock at the scoreboard went out of order.

The trouble with Carolina last night can be summed up in a word: "State." The Tar Heels did not play as well as they have on occasions this year, but the Wolfpack was tremendous.

The aggressive play of the winners was the key to victory as they got off 73 shots at the basket compared to Carolina's 47 and hauled in 22 more rebounds.

In the early stages of the second half the Heels made their run for he lead and came within two of tying it up when Lee Shaffer hit a technical foul try to make the score 42-40 State at the 15:11 mark.

For Carolina, the key play of the game came with 10:11 remaining and the Tar Heels 4 points down. At this juncture the two officials momentarily disagreed on a call as to whether the infraction was a charging or a blocking foul. Referee Charley Eckman prevailed and MacGillivray converted a three point play to give State a margin of seven rather than have Harvey Salz on the foul line for Carolina.

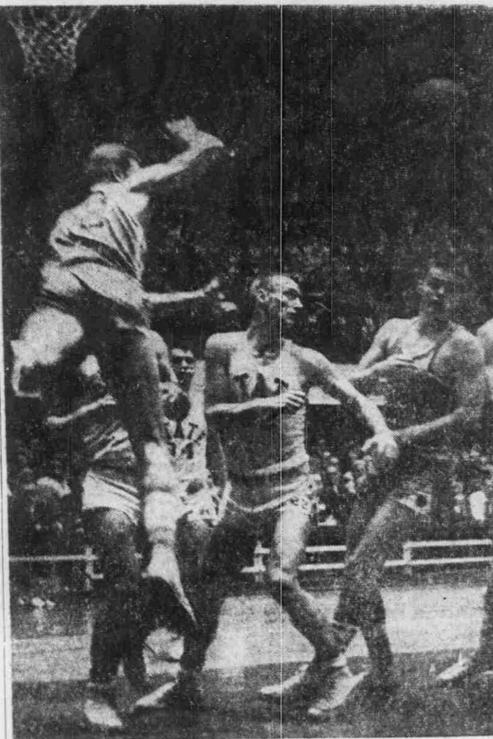

Leading scorers in the losing Tar Heel effort were Dick Kepley with 14 and Shaffer with 11.

State took command of the opening half right from the horn and never were headed. Richter and Pucillo both hit on layups to give the Wolfpack a quick 4-0 lead.

Carolina came within 1 point of tying the score twice but always fell behind before they could pull even. At the 13:25 mark Shaffer hit on a jump shot to cut the State margin to 11-10. Four minutes later Doug Moe made good on a pair of free throws and again Carolina was within one, this time at 18-17.

Khrushchev Demands Withdrawal

BERLIN. — Soviet Premier Khrushchev came to Berlin Saturday and demanded the withdrawal of Allied troops from this former German capital.

The Kremlin leader spoke at a torch-light rally in East Berlin before a crowd of more than 100,000.

He declared "Order must be brought to Berlin."

Then he went on to define that order as acceptance of the Soviet proposal to transform West Berlin into a so-called demilitarized free city.

Khrushchev also renewed his demand for the signing of a World War II peace treaty that would give recognition to East Germany as a state.

"We are waiting for an answer from the western powers to our proposals," Khrushchev said. "We hope the answer will be sensible."

Khrushchev came here from the trade fair city of Leipzig, where he spent four days.

A cavalcade of more than 20 black limousines sped Khrushchev and his party to East Berlin along a 140-mile stretch of heavily guarded autobahn. Tommygunners were posted at the highway bridges.

Accompanying Khrushchev to the giant rally on Stalinallee, East Berlin's show street, were his East German hosts, Communist Party boss Walter Ulbricht and Premier Otto Grotewohl.

Khrushchev looked tired on his arrival for a three-day visit in East Berlin. Bareheaded and wearing a light gray topcoat, he was not his usual bouncing self on the flag-decked speaker's platform.

He spoke in a hoarse voice for only 10 minutes before the bored-looking crowd.

Before leaving Leipzig, Khrushchev warned the West of the peril of a new war and declared the Soviet Union never would permit the liquidation of communism in East Germany.

He told 2,000 trade unionists from East and West Germany that a small incident in the explosive Berlin crisis could trigger World War III.

Carter And Watkins Give Recital Tuesday

Joel Carter and Glenn Watkins, both of the UNC Music Department, will present a recital of songs by Schumann, Foulenc, Bacon and Hanson in Hill Hall Tuesday at 8 p.m. The concert is open to the public.

Featured on Tuesday's program, the third in a series sponsored by the UNC Music Department, is Robert Schumann's song cycle, "Dichterliebe." The set of 16 songs was composed in 1840 to poems from Heine's "Buch der Lieder."

Ernest Bacon, director of the music school at the University of Syracuse, is the composer of dramatic, choral and orchestral works. Dr. Carter, a baritone, will sing four of his songs set to poetry by Robert Burns and Walter Whitman. Dr. Watkins, pianist, will accompany Carter during the program.

"Le Bestiaire" was composed by Francis Poulenc to six poems from "The Book of Beasts" by Apollinaire. Written in 1919, the work was originally scored for voice and chamber orchestra. Each song describes some creature from the animal kingdom.

Carter and Watkins have chosen an opera aria as the final selection on their program. "Oh, tis on earth defiled" is from Howard Hanson's opera, "Merry Mount," based on a story by Nathaniel Hawthorne and produced at the Metropolitan in 1934.

Dr. Carter, chairman of voice instruction in the UNC Music Department, directs the Chapel Hill Choral Club and the UNC glee club. Dr. Watkins, assistant professor in organ and theory, joined the University faculty last September. He was formerly associated with Southern Illinois University.

Interfraternity Council Calls Deferred Rush Impractical

Deferred rush is impractical from a financial standpoint and is detrimental both for freshmen and the University.

In a statement of reasons for opposing the delay of rush from the fall to the spring semester, the Interfraternity Council listed seven reasons for its view that "deferred rush is impractical and undesirable."

The IFC's statement said, "The possible benefits of deferred rush are greatly outweighed by the damage that would be done to fraternities."

The IFC's views on deferred rush were incorporated in a statement released Saturday, "Since this matter affects fraternities more acutely than anyone else, we feel that fraternities should make the decision for or against deferred rush, not an outside group."

Heading the lists of reasons against deferred rush was the belief that fraternities could not bear the financial burden. In the statement, the IFC has estimated that expenses during the five-month wait under a deferred rush system would be shared by one-third to one-fourth fewer persons. This would mean that the bill per member would be raised one-third to one-fourth.

In addition, the financial burden would adversely affect fraternities with mortgages or those that might want to undertake new construction or additions to their houses.

The IFC statement further pointed out that dirty rush would be difficult, if not impossible, to control under a deferred rush system.

Not only will deferred rush have a detrimental effect on fraternities, but the freshmen themselves will lose a number of benefits the IFC believes.

The freshman would not have the special attention from such fraternity programs as the "Big Brothers" and study halls. The "Big Brother" orients the freshman to Carolina and helps him feel at ease in his "home away from home." The study halls are incentives for the freshman to make his C average for fraternity membership.

The freshman would also lose other special benefits in a shortened, weakened pledge training during the second semester.

In addition, the freshman would be discriminated against if silence were imposed for a full semester.

The University itself would be adversely affected, the IFC statement charged, because the dormitories would have no relief from crowded facilities until the second semester.

Underlying much of reasoning of the IFC against deferred rush is the voluntary aspect of pledging. Since freshmen are free to join or not to join, the IFC believes the matter of rush should be left to fraternities which are affected by the system used.

The IFC's statement was drawn up by a special committee, headed by Walker Bionan.

PHOSPHORUS for the sundial so people can tell the time at night... that's an idea, but the senior class gift to the University probably will be something a little different. To decide on just what the class gift will be, members of the senior class Gift Committee are now getting suggestions from seniors. Members of this committee are seated, left to right, Mary Montgomery, Cami Pilcher, Betsy Sojourner, Lee Arbogast and Harley Shuford, chairman; and standing, left to right, Lou White, Rudy Edwards, Bob Carter and John Whitaker.

Senior Class Looking For Gift Suggestions

The suggestion box in Y Court Monday through Friday this week is for seniors who have ideas for a senior class gift to the University.

From these suggestions, the senior class Gift Committee will make the final decision of what gift the class of '59 will leave.

This year, the senior class has between $400 and $600 to spend on the gift.

In past years, senior classes have given such things as a trophy case in Woolen Gymnasium, a globe for the library, the loud speaker system in Memorial Hall, a rostrum for Memorial Hall, a punch bowl for Graham Memorial, stone benches by the Old Well, records for Graham Memorial and several portraits.

Members of the Gift Committee who are responsible for the gift selection include the following: Harley Shuford, chairman; Lee Arbogast, Betsy Sojourner, Cami Pilcher, Mary Montgomery, Lou White, Rudy Edwards, Bob Carter and John Whitaker.

Uses No Program

"No Program?" Many a ticket-holder is heard to ask the usher at a Roger Williams concert.

There's no economy drive in the printing department — the reason is simply that even Williams doesn't know what his program will be from show to show, day to day. He prefers to "feel out" the audience, savor its response and arrange his program as he goes, providing his listeners with the style and kind of music to which they are most responsive.

Williams' versatility and a repertory that ranges through all categories of music make it possible for Williams to present a polished and balanced concert — virtually

"ad lib." Williams will appear here in Memorial Hall tonight at 8 o'clock. Carolina students will be admitted to the concert on presentation of identification cards. Student wives may purchase tickets for $1. Townspeople may buy tickets at the door for $2, but only after 7:45 p.m.

The concert is part of Williams' 12-week coast-to-coast tour. In addition, he has a schedule of recordings and television commitments. His records are no sideline for him. In only a few years he has sold more recordings than any other pianist.

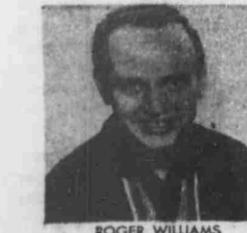

His well-known recording of "Autumn Leaves" is an example of his popularity in the record field.

"Till," "Almost Paradise," "Near You," "Songs of the Fabulous Fifties" or the "Fabulous Century" are some of his other more well-known records and albums.

A pair of guitars and bass will back up Williams during parts of the concert. Williams will also use his miniature piano, "Sebastian," during the program.

COOL sounds emit from the sax of Paul Desmond while leader Dave Brubeck looks on from behind the piano. The Dave Brubeck Quartet was featured during the Lost Weekend. Their concert was followed by a dance in Woolen gym which starred the Gladiolas and the Shadows. Photo by Bill Brinkhouse
