

High Schoolers Mob Basketball Players

By KEN WHEEER
 "I touched Doug Moe!" quipped Moe's basketball teammate Hugh Donohue following the mobbing of Moe by some 20 high schoolers at the Monogram Club during lunch Saturday.

One eccentric youngster, starting a Moe scrapbook, managed to secure his apple (minus two bites), his plate (thoroughly washed), and nearly took his lemon, but finally decided it was a bit dirty. She also managed about five autographs.

The group made the rounds, signing York Larese, Moe and Harvey Salz, followed by the entire team as each member entered the dining room.

Salz, pulling the smooth move of the day, pointed out Joe Quigg, telling the youngsters, "There's Joe Quigg over there. You remember him, don't you? You know, the 1957 national champs and all that?" When they started to leave, he halted them: "Hey, Pete Brennan's coming in a minute!"

One high school boy terribly confused the issue by getting the autographs of only Don Walsh and Ken McComb, freshman stars, leaving the varsity players for the mobbing girls.

Larese seemed thoroughly confused by the entire proceedings of Moe's number one fan. "What you going to do with his apple?" he asked.

"Put it in my scrapbook," she replied.

"Whatta you mean, you gonna spread it all over?" he quizzed.

Foster Quits At Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis. — Bud Foster quit Saturday as basketball coach of the University of Wisconsin after a quarter century of service, thus beating his alma mater to the expected punch. He then accepted a position on the faculty.

The 52-year-old Kansan, who was dean of Big Ten basketball coaches, had been operating on a one-year reprieve since last season with the understanding that he produce a winner or else. He didn't.

Resignation Accepted

The university board of regents, acting on the recommendation of the athletic board, accepted Foster's resignation Saturday on the eve of the Badgers' final game of their worst season in history.

Foster was named professor of athletics and director of grants-in-aid and related programs at the university. His annual salary of $11,450 will be continued in his new post.

No Successor Yet

No immediate mention was made of a successor, but there is some sentiment for John Erickson, the first full-time assistant coach Foster ever had. Erickson, 30, a resident of Rockford, Ill., was hired last year when the athletic board loosened its purse strings in an effort to hoist Wisconsin out of the basketball depths.

Dr. Conrad A. Elvehjem, president of the university, said that in submitting his resignation to the athletic board Wednesday, Foster did so "in the hope of seeing an improvement in the future of Wisconsin's basketball."

"There have been no pressures from within the university for Foster's resignation," Dr. Elvehjem asserted.

Delany Breaks Record; Scores 31st

NEW YORK — Ron Delany shattered his own world indoor mile record with a fantastic 4:01.4 clocking and Al Lawrence an Australian from the University of Houston, lowered the 2-mile record with an equally remarkable 8:46.8 performance Saturday night in the Knights of Columbus Games.

Delany had the scare of his 23-year-old life in beating out Istvan Rozsavolgyi by a couple of feet after trailing until the last five yards.

But Lawrence, a radio-TV student from Sydney, had an easy time. He went to the front at the start and stayed right there.

So Bill Dellinger's indoor record of 8:50 lasted only a little over a month. Dellinger, America's No. 1 hope for the 5,000 meters in the 1960 Olympics, was not in the race. But it was the same Lawrence who forced him to a world indoor record three miles 13:37 a couple of weeks ago.

Lew Stieglitz of the U. S. Navy was second, almost a full lap behind.

Delany not only shattered his own two-week-old record of 4:02.5 but scored his 31st straight indoor mile victory and 36th in a row on boards overall. It was four years ago Saturday night in this same K. of C. meet that he started the streak.

SORRY - NO HIGH PRESSURE HERE

Every now and then, some stranger asks us how we can get by in this high-pressure age, and still have our customers feel like guests. "Shux", we say, "it's not that we don't like money. But our high-pressure salesman just doesn't happen to be in today."

Plain truth is, we haven't had a high pressure salesman in years, but we hate to be thought eccentric.

In our shop, we're just so darned busy finding books for people who really want them that we can't waste time twisting your arm.

So we hope you'll drop in when you need a peaceful half hour. We like to see your homely face around the joint — and if you really want the pressure put on for a sale, maybe one of the customers will oblige.

They are the most obliging customers in the world, you know.
