

WEATHER
Sunny and warmer. High temperatures low 60's.

The Daily Tar Heel

THE BUDGET
The presentation yesterday should have brought some support. See page 2.

VOLUME LXVII, NO. 120

Complete in Wire Service

CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, MARCH 20, 1959

Offices in Graham Memorial

FOUR PAGES THIS ISSUE

Dave Jones Fails To Win Selection Board Endorsement

The Bi-Partisans Selections Board endorsed Harold O'Tuel and Ron Shumate as co-editor candidates and Davis Young as a candidate for the editorship of The Daily Tar Heel.

Dave Jones, the other candidate for editor, was not endorsed by the board in their meeting Thursday afternoon.

The board selected the team of Shumate and O'Tuel because of their experience with The Daily Tar Heel and other publications.

Shumate has worked on the paper as acting news editor, night editor, and acting editor.

He has also served as reporter and columnist.

His other work has included feature writer for the UNC News Bureau and feature editor of the Charlotte College newspaper and his high school paper.

Harold O'Tuel has written for the Goldsboro News Argus; The Speaker of the House; a national trade magazine; and his high school paper and yearbook.

For the past two years he has been Publications Board chairman. He is a legislator and a past member of the Carolina Quarterly.

The Bi-Partisans Selections Board also endorsed Davis Young because of his journalism experience.

Young worked on The Daily Tar Heel as reporter in 1957 and as feature editor from April to October, 1958-59.

He was newspaper director of the Carolina Symposium from December 1957 to March 1958. During the summer of 1958 Young edited the Summer School Weekly. While editor he did all of the layout, advertising, proof reading, and a great deal of news and sports coverage.

Dave Jones was unavailable for comment as to whether he would continue to run despite his failure to receive the Bi-Partisan Endorsement.

The committee consisted of one representative of each political party; one member of the paid Daily Tar Heel staff, elected by that staff; one member of the non-paid staff, elected by that staff; the chairman of the University faculty; and a member of the school of journalism.

Rusty Hammond, The Daily Tar Heel paid staff member was elected by the board as its chairman.

Brogan Names Disunity As Segregation Disaster

By RON SHUMATE

"One of the great disasters of the segregation controversy in the United States is national disunity," Prof. Denis W. Brogan said Thursday night in Hill Hall.

Prof. Brogan, concluding his series of three lectures here, stated that in the heat of the controversy Americans may "lose sight of the unity of the United States."

In speaking of the lack of voters in America, Prof. Brogan said the average citizen is "colder to indulging in more political decisions than in any other country known to me."

He asserted that Americans vote less than most other countries because of the larger number of elections in the United States (local, state, federal and primary elections).

"But the average American is a better citizen because he takes more time in making all the decisions he has to make than do people in France and England," Prof. Brogan said.

He stated that "many Americans are still living nostalgically in a past in which they owe almost no loyalty to the Federal government. Rather, their sense of loyalty is to the state government."

The one side of American character that remains unchanged by the rapidly changing complexion of the world is the "elaborate organized charity for all human ills," stated the British political scientist.

He explained that in France and England the people feel that the problem of their fellow-man's troubles and ills is up to the state, rather than the people themselves.

Prof. Brogan listed one of the advantages of American citizens in the modern world as being the fact that "Americans are still not associated with the name 'empire.' The name has been applied to the United States, but it has not stuck securely."

Across the nation this scene is being duplicated on college and university campuses as job recruitment interviews begin to hit their yearly peak.

February and March find placement officials at their busiest, arranging for company recruiters to visit the campus to screen prospective employees among the spring and summer graduates.

Job openings and salaries are slightly "up" and placement officials throughout the nation have expressed "cautious optimism" that last year's recession effect is improving.

Joe M. Galloway, director of UNC's Placement Service for the past 11 years, agrees with the national survey which foresaw a two per cent rise in this year's starting salaries.

"The number of interviews at present is just about on par with this time last year," Galloway comments. "Companies are open to hiring slightly more individuals, but they still are being selective."

The UNC official adds that the tight job situation last year—in sharp contrast to the abundant job years of 1955-56-57—brought a changed attitude among students applying for jobs.

In his annual report submitted to Chancellor William B. Aycock last fall, Galloway said: "Placement this year was more difficult than in 1957, but probably more realistic."

Recruiters come seeking graduates to fill jobs as accountants, business trainees, chemists, physicist, salesmen, personnel specialists and in many other fields.

Among the North Carolina companies whose recruiters visited Chapel Hill during the past month were American Enka, Broyhill Furniture of Lenoir, Cone Mills and Burlington Industries, both of Greensboro; Home Finance Group of Charlotte, Chatham Manufacturing Company of Elkin, Fieldcrest Mills of Spray, Ernst and Ernst, public accountants, and Piedmont Publishing Company, both of Winston-Salem.

A company representative usually spends one or two days on the campus in Chapel Hill, interviewing an average of 14 applicants daily on half-hour intervals.

Although the actual interview between company official and the applicant is short, much ground work has preceded. This includes a form filled out by the employer to give an idea of job qualifications and requirements, and the studying of company literature by both placement officials and the student himself.

For the use of the interviewer, the applicant has filled out a data sheet which gives his background and activities as a UNC student, grades and some faculty rating. The data, plus a transcript of sheets, are available to the recruiter before the interview.

The Placement Service's responsibility does not end with the campus interview, for it keeps close tabs on the job negotiations and hirings, which are completed usually either by letter or by a visit to the company, and it records information about the final placement.

Some attempt is made to guide the student toward suitable job interviews and possibly to divert him from an area to which he is obviously unsuited, Galloway or the assistant director, Mrs. Mary Barber Holmes, talks with each student when he initially applies.

Activities scheduled in Graham Memorial today include: Symposium, 4:30-5:30 p.m., Grail Room; Publications Board, 5:45-7:00 p.m., Grail Room; GMAB, 1:30-3 p.m., Grail Room; Traffic Advisory Board, 2:30-4 p.m., Roland Parker I; Women's Orientation, 1-5 p.m., Roland Parker II & III; Sophomore Class officers, 2-4 p.m., Woodhouse Conference Room; Men's Orientation, 4:15-5:30 p.m., Woodhouse Conference Room; Dance with combo, 8-12 p.m., Rendezvous Room.

Shumate, O'Tuel Enter Editor Race

BUDGET HEARING—Shown are the principals in Wednesday's budget hearing in Raleigh. (l. to r.) Representative Clyde Harris, who presided at the Joint Appropriations Committee's hearing, President Friday, Chancellor Aycock, Vice President Carmichael, Senator William Copeland, a member of the Advisory Budget Commission, Chancellor Blackwell, and Chancellor Bostian.

Pres. Friday 'Encouraged' By Committee Response

President William C. Friday reported yesterday that he was "encouraged" by the response of the Joint Appropriations Committee in Raleigh Wednesday.

Friday explained that he has not been in touch with any legislators since shortly after the meeting where he, Vice President William Carmichael and Chancellors Aycock, Bostian and Blackwell presented an appeal for the reinstatement of the University's budget.

"I should like to express our appreciation to the students, faculty members, deans, administrators, trustees, and friends of the University who attended the hearings yesterday," Friday said.

"We have received favorable comments on the presentations made yesterday, particularly those of Chancellor Aycock and Vice President Carmichael and we are encouraged by the interest and attention shown by the Committee members," he said.

The crowd in attendance at the hearing was estimated at two hundred persons.

Commissioner of Agriculture L. Y. Ballentine said that he could not recall a larger turnout for a budget hearing. Ballentine has been serving the State Government in Raleigh since the early '40s.

Chancellor William B. Aycock said he "wouldn't know" anything of the reaction of the legislators to the presentations.

"President Friday speaks for all of us on the legislative reaction. He is quite a good judge of it," affirmed Aycock.

The Student Party announced yesterday that Bunky Jester would be the party's candidate for social chairman of the senior class.

Bunky, a junior from Yardley, Pa., is the newly elected president of the Stray Greeks.

She is also active in Angel Flight, Splash Club and the YMCA.

The SP slate includes George Grayson for president, Dave Evans for vice president, Martha Morgan for secretary and John Crotty for treasurer.

See SP, page 3

See UP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See UP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See UP, page 3

Run As Co-Editors; Ups Field To Three

"The Daily Tar Heel ought to be an educational paper" declared editorial candidates Harold O'Tuel and Ron Shumate who announced yesterday as candidates for co-editorship of The Daily Tar Heel.

The announcement by O'Tuel and Shumate brings the number of candidates up to three, as they are opposed by Dave Jones and Davis Young who announced earlier.

The last time a co-editor candidate offering was presented to the student body, Louis Kraar and Ed Yoder won without opposition in 1955.

The candidates explained that it was the paper's job to fully present the information on the campus on pages one and three and to present differing ideas on page two.

"We feel quite strongly that much must be done to secure columnists who have a different point of view from that of the editor," the candidates said.

Both candidates are juniors. O'Tuel is a business administration major, a Morehead Scholar, and has served as Chairman of the Publications Board for the past two years. He was instrumental in bringing about the changes in the Publications Board discussed last night by the Student Legislature.

O'Tuel has also worked on the Goldsboro News Argus, has written for Speaker of The House, a trade magazine, and did much writing for high school publications. He is a past member of the staffs of the Carolina Quarterly and has served for three years in the Student Legislature.

Shumate, a transfer from Charlotte College, where he was feature editor of the student paper, is a journalism major. He has worked on The Daily Tar Heel in the capacities of night editor, acting news editor, reporter, columnist, and served as acting editor when the present editor was away from town.

He has also worked as a feature writer for the UNC News Bureau, and currently is contemplating work.

See CO-EDITORS, page 3

See CO-EDITORS, page 3

See CO-EDITORS, page 3

See CO-EDITORS, page 3

See CO-EDITORS, page 3

See CO-EDITORS, page 3

See CO-EDITORS, page 3

See CO-EDITORS, page 3

See CO-EDITORS, page 3

See CO-EDITORS, page 3

See CO-EDITORS, page 3

See CO-EDITORS, page 3

See CO-EDITORS, page 3

See CO-EDITORS, page 3

See CO-EDITORS, page 3

See CO-EDITORS, page 3

PROF. DENIS W. BROGAN

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

Brooks Cites Student Party Year Activities

Several projects completed by the Student Party legislators in the past semester were cited by John Brooks, SP chairman yesterday.

"The Student Party has demonstrated during the past semester that it is concerned about the student's welfare and can accomplish needed legislation even when it is in a minority in the Student Legislature," said Brooks.

"While in a minority," he continued, "the Student Party legislators introduced and got passed five times as much legislation as did the opposition."

"More important than the amount, however," he added, "is the significance of what the SP legislators presented."

He then listed the following completed SP projects.

The establishment of a chaplain; the adoption of a recommendation to the campus to henceforth have a See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

UP Discusses Platform Intentions

The University Party, in a statement released Thursday, stated that the intent of a platform must be realized before the planks can be enumerated.

The UP stated that the intent of their platform is to "again unify this campus, to give student government a place in all segments of the campus, and above all, to realize that our power in student government is limited."

The party further stated that "we cannot drastically innovate changes over the world. It's time to talk sense. The University Party is truly moderate against radical idealism."

The party also said that they are "liberal when suggestions, discussions and the implementation of improvements and expansion of ideas can be realized yet within a rational concept."

On the subject of women's dorm regulations, the UP advocates a See UP, page 3

See UP, page 3

See UP, page 3

See UP, page 3

See UP, page 3

See UP, page 3

See UP, page 3

See UP, page 3

See UP, page 3

See UP, page 3

See UP, page 3

Jester Is Nominated

The Student Party announced yesterday that Bunky Jester would be the party's candidate for social chairman of the senior class.

Bunky, a junior from Yardley, Pa., is the newly elected president of the Stray Greeks.

She is also active in Angel Flight, Splash Club and the YMCA.

The SP slate includes George Grayson for president, Dave Evans for vice president, Martha Morgan for secretary and John Crotty for treasurer.

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

See SP, page 3

RON SHUMATE

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

HAROLD O'TUEL

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way of thinking of himself as a citizen of the world."

He further stated that the basic responsibility of the American citizen is to "combine his patriotism (or national pride) with the new way