Minter Says Unity Important To Student Government System

Unity is the most important need in student government today, University Party Chairman John Minter said Monday.

This unity is of "segments of students from the negligent, propagandizing crusades of a faction of our 'student leaders' who have been in operation for the past three years," he said.

Outlining his party's plans for achieving unity, Minter referred to the UP's platform, which includes the following plans and recommendations:

A more flexible policy toward women's dormitory regulations is promised by the UP. The party is urging a system of collective late minutes which would eliminate campuses for one or two minutes violations. The party also wants dorm fines lowered. The UP is calling for the redistricting of Legislature seats so that an accurate picture of the interest of the campus is reflected in that governing body.

The party has pledged to investigate a means of removing the election of The Daily Tar Heel editor from partisan politics.

Concerning the judicial system, the UP would improve the present courts rather than dissolving some or combining certain of the courts.

The University Party states it will increase support to the IDC so as to work for a bigger and better dorm social program, an expanded dorm visiting agreement program, additional social and physical facilities and increased dorm services.

The UP favors an investigation of the National Student Association, which the party believes may not be representative of the students on campus.

Urging the immediate acquisition of a new student union, the UP will promote even a partial self-liquidation plan if necessary to get the new building here.

On the subject of date tickets, the party says it will work toward the availability of reasonable priced tickets for all athletic events.

Shumate, O'Tuel Win SP Endorsement

SP Chairman Praises Furtado, Smith, Party

Student Party Chairman John Brooks yesterday issued a statement summing the SP program of the past year and pointing to the role of Norman B. Smith, SP nominee for president of the student body, in making the party program a success.

"The student government has made many significant contributions this year under the SP administration," Brooks began. "Don Furtado established the Committee on State Affairs under the leadership of Norman Smith this past fall for the purpose of supporting the proposed University budget requests from the N. C. Legislature. This committee prepared an excellent presentation of the University's problems in a book let for distribution to the state legislators and arranged for each legislator to be visited during the Christmas holidays.

"Even now the committee is continuing its contacts with Raleigh in an effort to rescue the money needed for UNC to be a quality school.

"Also under the leadership of Norman Smith, the Student Legislature established a committee to investigate the self-liquidation of dormitories policy and to make recommendations on behalf of the student body concerning the problem of contemplated increased room rents for the purpose of building new dormitories."

This committee recommended that a policy of self-liquidating new dorms be followed only to the extent that no further room rent increases were involved. Norman B. Smith presented this proposed policy in a report to the Visiting Committee of the UNC Trustees.

In its annual report the Board of Trustees responded: "The Committee visited with and interviewed representative student leaders on several occasions. We were both pleased and impressed with their maturity and sincerity of purpose. They evidenced a keen interest in and appreciation of the more crucial problems now confronting the University. We found a strong and well-functioning student government."

The committee's dormitory building policy that is currently being pursued encompasses the recommendation made by the student committee, according to Brooks' statement.

Brooks continued, "Other significant contributions of this year's SP administration have been: (1) extension of the UNC Attorney General's staff to cover campus code violations; (2) the installation of hear-here phone booths in several dorms on an experimental basis; (3) the opening of study rooms; (4) the establishment of a dorm visiting agreement as pledged in last year's SP platform; (5) the opening of a Scuttlebutt in the new dorm area; (6) the placement of a student member on the Merchant's Association Board of Directors.

"(7) the codification of existing student government statutes; (8) the investigation of the needs of women's dorms for study rooms; (9) the revision of composition and policies of the Publications Board; (10) the establishment of an International Student Council; and (11) the formulation of accounting procedures for the Student Audit Office which handles over $1,000,000 annually."

Three More Announce Candidacy

Three more candidates have filed with the Elections Board to run for office in the April 7 elections.

These are: Kay Boertz, Wayne B. Venters and Roy H. Park Jr.

Running for chairman of the Women's Residence Council is Miss Boertz, the only person who had filed for that position through Monday afternoon.

Venters is an independent candidate for the Student Council. He did not seek endorsement by the Bi-Partisan Selections Board.

Park will run as an independent for Legislature from Town Men's II. Park has been previously endorsed by Student Party, but he declined that endorsement and filed as an independent for the Legislature seat. The names of these three candidates were released Monday by Hank Patterson, chairman of the Elections Board.

YWCA Picks Officers

Sophie Martin will head the YWCA next year. New Y officers were elected last week in coed residences.

The other officers are as follows: Nan Robinson, vice president; Harriette Duwelle, recording secretary; Margaret Ray, executive secretary; and Julie Redhead, program chairman.

Two run-offs will be held tonight at 11 o'clock in coed residences for the offices of treasurer and membership chairman.

Candidates for treasurer are Mary Sue Hannah and Nancy Smathers. Lou Johnson and Linda Rehm are running for membership chairman.

Univac 1105 Operations Lectures Slated April

By AL CLAYTOR

Do you want to learn how to use the new Univac 1105 computer?

The Research Computation Center will present a series of six lectures for that purpose.

The lectures, April 6-17, will aim at presenting techniques for using the new computer to faculty members and students.

The computer is scheduled to be operating in the new Phillips Hall addition Aug. 1.

The non-professional computer user, with no more than the training offered in the lectures, may solve a wide variety of problems in his own particular area.

At the completion of the first five lectures, attendees should be able to prepare most arithmetically-oriented problems. He will also have introduced briefly a large-scale data processing language for the 1105 "Aimac."

The final lecture will be devoted to a discussion of the statistical routines now available for the equipment for the processing of data.

Information will be given on the structure of the core of the Univac 1105, the Era-1103A computer, and the use and purpose of the "USE" compiler.

The first lecture series will be followed with a second series of lectures to be given for those who want to become more familiar with the actual structure of the machine.

Lectures are scheduled to be held from 3 to 5 p.m., on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, April 6, 8, 10, 13, 15, and 17—April 6 and 8 in Carroll Hall, Room 106, and April 10, 13, 15 and 17 in Gorrard Hall. Lectures will be given by Prof. John W. Carr II, director of the Research Computation Center, and members of the staff.

Persons planning to attend have been asked to notify Mrs. Nancy Kost, telephone 7-4701.

Politicians Limited

A maximum length of space is being placed on statements to The Daily Tar Heel from the two campus parties and candidates for election April 7. No statements from now through elections may run over 12 inches.

Daily Tar Heel Editor Curtis Gans said this is being done because of the limited space in the newspaper for other campus stories.

Gans also referred to a letter signed by 28 members of the Daily Tar Heel staff appearing in today's paper endorsing Shumate and O'Tuel as the one good choice for the voters.

Gans charged Young's presentation speech to the Party as being inaccurate in some areas, and lacking completeness in others. Accuracy, he said, should be the first concern of a good newspaperman.

Peter Young, speaking in behalf of his brother, denied a charge made by Gans that Young and his supporters were circulating a rumor that "Shumate not only stuttered talking, but stuttered writing."

Young said such a charge was not part of their campaign tactics and completely denied the accusation. Explaining some of Davis Young's lack of completeness and alleged inaccuracy in presenting himself as a candidate to the party, he said the speech had run too long in earlier timing trials and had been drastically cut.

After hearing short speeches from supporters of both sides, the endorsement moved to a secret ballot resulting in the endorsement of Shumate and O'Tuel.

Two Endorsed For Yack Editorship

Two rising seniors have been endorsed for co-editors of the Yackety-Yack.

Bob Austin and Tom Overman received the endorsement of the Bi-Partisan Selections Board Monday.

Austin has worked on the Yack staff as sophomore section editor and as a proof reader. He was business manager of his high school yearbook and newspaper.

At the University he has worked on the Student Traffic Advisory Committee, the Campus Chest and is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Although Overman has not worked on the Yack staff, he was editor of his high school yearbook. His other experience in journalism has been: sports reporter for the Raleigh News and Observer and sports editor of his high school newspaper.

Max Gardner Award Won By State Prof

A professor at North Carolina State College is the recipient of the 1959 O. Max Gardner Award.

Prof. Gertrude M. Cox, director of the Consolidated University's Institute of Statistics Headquarters at State College, was presented the award at a dinner Sunday night at Woman's College in Greensboro.

The annual award is made to a member of the faculties of the Consolidated University, who, in the judgment of the board of trustees, has made the greatest contribution to the welfare of the human race during the academic year.

The award carries with it a gift of cash from the income of $25,000 which the late Gov. O. Max Gardner placed in trust.

A UNC faculty member, Dr. Warner Wells, received the award in 1957.

Govt. Loans Available For Students

Students interested in obtaining loans from the U. S. Government have been requested to turn in applications by Friday, April 10, to the manager, Student Loan Funds, Steele Hall.

"Special consideration" will be given to students with a superior academic background who express a desire to teach in elementary and secondary schools and students whose academic background indicates a "superior capacity or preparation in science, mathematics, engineering, or a modern foreign language."

Applicants not in priority categories will be considered if funds are still available after loans are approved for the priority applicants.

The loans were made available under the National Defense Education Act.

Senior Class Will Solicit Teachers

For the first time in the history of the University, the senior class alumni committee will solicit senior spring practice teachers before they leave the campus.

Soliciting is being held through Wednesday.

Because of this early soliciting, the Class of '59 hopes to get a high percentage of the class to join the Alumni Association.

Seniors have the advantage of joining at the reduced rate of $1.

Those who will be soliciting the practice teachers include Sue Ballantine, Lucy Forsyth, Charlene Bass, Sara Adams, Martha Turner, Lew White, Barbara Lewis, Susan Saunders, Eunice Simmon, Kay McGavran, Sue Stanford, Jack Secrest, Bill King, Jeff Hare and Hamp Lefler.

Fuller Says Experience Important To Treasurer

Erwin Fuller, Student Party candidate for treasurer of student government, said Monday the treasurer has a responsible position.

He stated that the treasurer serves as administrator of a student government budget of more than $120,000 and his position is worthy "of sincere interest and dedication."

Fuller emphasized that experience is important and beneficial because the finances are "complex matters set in an intricate and complicated structure."

The treasurer deals with difficult problems which Fuller says cannot be understood in "a period of a few weeks or a few months. . . no matter how qualified and competent that person may be."

"My experience during the past three years with the Audit Board, the Finance Committee of the Student Legislature, the Budget Committee, and other groups concerned with student finances has given me a sound understanding of the problems with which I would be dealing as treasurer and has enabled me to formulate some definite ideas concerning procedures and actions I feel should be initiated and instituted for the betterment of student government and an increased general understanding of the financial structure," Fuller said.

He commented that the foremost achievements possible in this realm would be the clarification and codification of the financial legislation, procedures and informal agreements.

This could be done by working with the Attorney General's staff, the Audit Board and the Legislature's Finance Committee. The accomplishment would promote increased clarity and understanding and uniformity of practice.

Fuller also noted that a treasurer must have a detailed knowledge and understanding of the financial problems and must serve as an executive student body.

"Hence he should possess knowledge and a representative of the age, experience and contact in realms other than solely finances. My work with the Consolidated University Student Council, Committee on State Affairs, Student Council, Campus Chest, Baptist Student Union and the Professional Interfraternity Council has given me experience and insight in various areas which I feel I could effectively employ in relationships with other student leaders, both on and off campus, with the faculty and with the administration as a representative of the University of North Carolina student body," he stated.

Fuller is a business administration student majoring in business economics. He is also a member of Delta Sigma Pi, professional fraternity in business administration and commerce.
