Administration Abolishes All University Fraternities

Policy's Enactment Is Two Years Away

By SITRUC SNAG
 Fraternities have been abolished at the University of North Carolina.

So came the word from Dean of Student Affairs Fred Weaver, who announced that there would be a two year waiting period so that fraternity men could adjust to new dormitory surroundings.

Weaver added that he thanked various student leaders for their assistance in bringing this decision, and singled out Daily Tar Heel editor Curtis Gans for his fine work in bringing the destruction of UNC fraternities.

Gans, when reached for comment said, "I set out to get 'em, and we got 'em."

Housing Director James Wadsworth replied to a question about what the University was going to do with the new surplus of dormitory residents created by the University edict, by saying that there were already plans underway to building a sixteen story dormitory equipped with bar so that these fraternity men would not feel too bereft.

He added, "In the meantime, we will just have to take some money from the huge amount appropriated for faculty salaries to build temporary structures for these new refugees."

He explained that the two year waiting period was a blessing in that it would give the University time to provide room in its budget for this new influx. He warned, however, that a room rent increase, the eleventh in as many years, might be the result.

Ashe Exum, IFC president, comments that he was happy to hear the University decision.

"Not wanting to slight editor Gans, I would like to point out that this was the IFC's idea all the time. We just felt that many problems had to be worked out before this move could be successful," Exum said.

He added, "This move will eliminate the worst fraternity problem - finances. It will also eliminate the second worst fraternity problem - rushing. In one move the University has settled the pressing problems of the fraternities."

Student Body President Don Furtado commented, "I was for it all along. I just didn't think it was feasible. I'm glad the University took such a courageous action."

DTH Strikes Back

Today's Daily Tar Heel features two front pages as a special service to all who continually ask for page one play. We regret that this can not be a regular service of The Daily Tar Heel since page one is demanded more than any other part of this rag with the possible exception of 'Peanuts'.

Anything on this page (yeah, the one you're reading now) is false (except the ads) . . .

Right now, if you're looking for sports, see page three; if you're looking for news (?) see the legitimate page one; if you're looking for something to relax you, go back to bed; and if you're looking for a good paper - you're reading the wrong rag anyway.

Year's First Panty Raid Made Here By UNC Coeds

AP NEWS RELEASE

The first "panty raid" here this year was made Tuesday night, but for the first time in the long history of the University the raiders were coeds.

Officers reported that several dozen coeds (mostly Tri Deltas) strolled up Cameron Avenue to the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity house at midnight Tuesday. The quiet evening of the first day after spring holidays was interrupted with loud shouts from the girls of, "We want short shorts!"

As a result of the incident, several coeds were arrested, and all other girls at the DKE house will suffer penalties for being out after coed closing hours.

Several DKEs were also arrested and charged with inciting a riot and with cooperative participation in the panty raid.

The raid was organized by Tri Delt Katie Stewart, officers said. Miss Stewart is being held in Chapel Hill jail without privilege of bond.

Also jailed was Mary Margaret Brown, who officers said was "yellin' louder than all the others put together."

Officers commented that the raid never would have occurred if several DKEs had not lured the Tri Deltas with promises of a "successful" panty raid.

Charged with inciting the riot was DKE John Whitaker. The Tri Deltas said Whitaker called the sorority house just before 11 p.m. Tuesday and told the girls that local policemen would be in another part of Chapel Hill at midnight, the time he said the coeds should make a hurried raid.

Just before midnight, another DKE, Bob Borden, was supposed to call the police and report a panty raid at the ADPI house. But Borden was so excited and so busy pressing a pair of men's unmentionables that he forgot to call.

The DKEs stayed inside the house until the coeds arrived, and then the boys flocked onto the balcony, carrying the called for apparel.

From the shorts that were confiscated by officers, the names of Howard Holderness, Jimmy Patrick and Bob Walker were found. Officers said they thought another pair belonged to "Bucky" Shuford, but only the "Shuf" was legible.

The most unusual pair of shorts, officers said, was a white pair trimmed in lace, red sequins and small seed pearls. A large red heart was sewed on the back. From the word, "Tom," written on the shorts in sequins and pearls, officers were able to discover the owner, Tom Rand.

Rand's shorts were found in the possession of Miss Brown.

When local policemen were collecting the DKEs' shorts, they took half a dozen pairs of an extremely large size. Because of the size, officers said they knew the owner couldn't be anyone else but Walker Blanton. Blanton, however, eluded arrest and was still at large early today.

Three coeds, Mari Barnes, Leslie Crutchfield and Bea Newman, were reprimanded by officers for fighting over a pair of shorts belonging to Tim Burnett.

Hurricane Zelma Aims For Chapel Hill Area

By RUSHIN ROULETTE

Hurricane Zelma is scheduled to hit the Carolina coast at approximately 6:59 tonight, according to hurricane authorities.

The weatherman say that Zelma is heading toward Chapel Hill traveling 110 miles per hour and should hit here at 8 p.m.

Oscar K. Sigaford, head weather forecaster at Satola, Fla., where Zelma originated, warned that if the hurricane does not change her course, she will strike Chapel Hill at the precise moment that the unseasonal blizzard, moving down from Greenland will hit.

The blizzard is the worst the nation has ever known and some scientists believe it to be the beginning of a new ice age.

Weatherman Sigaford was not certain just what sort of weather conditions will result from the force of the two pressure areas colliding. The town of Chapel Hill has gone into action to prepare for the disaster.

The Intimate Bookshop is offering free copies of "Peanuts" to the first 20 people blown into the shop; Kemp is having a hurricane-blizzard sale; the Rath is staying open all night so that people might find refuge in the catacombs; Milton is having a sale on raincoats (marked down from $42.99); and Antonio is offering Hailstone pizza (reservations are a must!).

Harry is not making any preparations. He feels that his customers probably won't notice the weather anyway.

A notice from the Dean of Women's office stated the correct procedure for coeds to follow.

The notice said that in case of strong winds all coeds must remember to sign out before leaving their residence. No coed should fly through unlighted parts of the campus unescorted.

Any woman student who does not have travel permission is instructed to present written permission from her parents before leaving her residence. (No telephone calls or telegrams accepted.)

When returning to her residence each coed must sign in, provided the residence is still there.

The office could not comment as to whether or not the combination hurricane-blizzard could properly be called a sporting event.

That office will release a statement later today giving their decision. If it should be termed a sporting event, coeds will be given permission to wear bermudas.

In a statement yesterday afternoon, Don Furtado, student body president, said that he is planning to bring the whole matter up before the Student Legislature for consideration.

Weatherman Sigaford praised Chapel Hill and the University for their far-sighted preparations.

CRAZY? - Quite obviously, but this young man is a new candidate for editor of this scandal sheet (sponsored by us April Fools). The staff found his picture and decided that since he would be going into the job like most editors leave, he undoubtedly would be the best editor this rag ever had.

Former IFC President Yates 'Fingers' NSA Socialist

Former IFC President Tacker Yates announced yesterday that he had found a "Socialist" in the United States National Student Association.

Yates fingered Michael Harrington, noted Socialist Youth Leader as the person who was present at the N. S. A. Congress at Delaware, Ohio last summer.

Yates added, "Harrington's membership proves that N. S. A. is subversive. I'm sorry, I couldn't get and former Student Body president at Notre Dame, was taken aback by Yates' accusation.

Harrington, looking white as ever, commented to The Daily Tar Heel's New York Bureau that he was not affiliated with N. S. A. "Too tame," was Harrington's comment about the N. S. A.

The Socialist Youth Leader went on to say, that he considered N. S. A. a reactionary organization, and that his presence there last summer was to add a little life to the Congress. "I was disappointed not to see one of my fellow travelers," Harrington commented.

Robert Kiley, president of N. S. A. Kiley's offer.

Pasternak Is Here

Boris Pasternak, Nobel fiction award winner, will be at the Intimate Bookshop at noon today to autograph copies of his controversial novel, Dr. Zhivago.

Pasternak, sponsored by the Carolina Forum, slipped out of Russia at an undisclosed date for his appearance on campus.

Due to time limitations imposed by Pasternak's itinerary, prospective purchasers of the autographed books are asked to be prompt.
