Crownover Bill Defeated, Passed In Same Session

By DEE DANIELS

The controversial Jim Crownover bill achieved the distinction Thursday of being defeated and then passed by the Student Legislature.

After lengthy and earnest debate on the pros and cons of the bill which encourages legislators to meet with their constituents and requires the submission of written reports concerning such activities to the speaker of the Legislature, the bill was defeated due to a lack of a two-thirds majority vote. The vote was 22 for and 18 against.

Speaker David Grigg had ruled that the bill required a two-thirds vote to pass on the grounds that it involved amendments to the by-laws and therefore would require the approval of the Legislature.

Gordon Street (UP) challenged the chair's decision saying that the bill itself makes no changes in the by-laws.

The body voted 20 to 18 to overrule the decision of the chair and therefore the bill passed according to the original vote of 22 to 18.

The solons also passed a bill, introduced by Dave Jones, (SP) to allow legislators moving from their districts to retain their seats for two regular meetings following their disqualification. This action will provide a period of time for the vacancies to be filled without diminishing the size of the Legislature.

A move for reconsideration of a bill, authored by Jones, to increase the 1959-60 NSA delegation appropriation by $85 was defeated.

Last Run Of Play Tonight

Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee's "Inherit the Wind" will be presented by the Carolina Playmakers for the last time tonight at 8:30 in the Forest Theater.

Lloyd Bortelmann, Fred Sitten, John Sneden, Douglass Whitehill, Robert Ketter and Sally Pullen star in the leading roles of the dramatization of the famous Tennessee evolution trial.

Thomas Patterson, assistant professor of dramatic art, directs the large cast. Craven Mackie and Sally Greene will assist Patterson. John Stockard, graduate assistant in the department of dramatic art, designed the complex settings of the courtroom and the street of a Southern town. Lighting is by Jim Armacost. Costumes were designed by Irene Smart Rains.

Tickets for "Inherit the Wind" will go on sale at the Forest Theater box office at 7 p.m.

National Honor Society Initiates B. A. Students

Seven UNC students and a Durham business leader were initiated into Beta Gamma Sigma, national scholastic honor society, here this week.

George Watts Hill Sr., Durham banker, insurance executive and civic leader, was inducted as an honorary member of the Alpha of North Carolina chapter.

Student initiates, all juniors or seniors, in the School of Business Administration are Michael O. Hill, Raleigh; Ernst B. Kemm, New York City; James G. Lane Jr., Rich Square; Malcolm H. McLean, Lumberton; Clifton D. Mann, Newport; William J. Moore, Charlotte; and Randolph E. Morrisett Jr., Greensboro.

McLean was elected chapter president. Other new officers are Clifton Mann, secretary, and Michael Hill, treasurer.

After the initiation in Carroll Hall, the society members attended a banquet at the Carolina Inn.

Dr. William M. Whyburn, vice president for graduate studies and research in the Consolidated University, talked to the group about the new electronic computer being located on the University campus.

3 Bills Passed By Solons; Others Sent To Committee

By DAVE JONES

Four bills were considered, three passed and five sent to committee at Thursday night's session of the Legislature. This brings the number of pieces of legislation considered in this assembly to 27.

Special orders brought immediate consideration to a bill written by Representative Jim Crownover (SP) requiring the Men's, Women's and Student councils to allow any defendant who so desires to have a public trial.

Proponents of the measure pointed out that the Student Constitution states that no rights enjoyed under the U. S. or North Carolina Constitutions be abridged. They maintained that denial of the right to a free and open trial was an abridgment of a constitutionally guaranteed right.

The bill by Representative Dave Jones (SP), defeated last week, to increase the NSA appropriation by $85 was the subject of a move to reconsider.

Proponents of reconsideration stated that new information, particularly in the area of what the student body president thought about the measure, had become available. Reconsideration failed.

After the failure of the motion to reconsider a request was made from the floor to have President Gray's letter on the bill read. The letter was then read.

Under new business was the announcement of the appointment of Fred Lavery to the Carolina Athletic Council and Dave Jones to the Carolina Quarterly. These appointments were approved without objection.

Bob Covington's appointment to fill the seat vacated by Sherman Kennedy in Dorm Men's VI was announced. The appointment will be voted on next week.

Also to be voted on next week are the appointments submitted by Student Body President Charlie Gray. The session next week will

Fencers To Feast

By BOB PEEBLES

The UNC Fencing Team is having a dinner tonight at 7 o'clock in the Club Room of the Carolina Inn. The dinner, announced by team captain Carroll Raver, is being held for all members of the team and those affiliated with it.

The dinner will be the finale of an undefeated season for the Tar Heel swordsmen. The epee competition last night completed the intramurals and the season for the team.

The team was represented in the National Intercollegiate at Annapolis this spring, and compiled its undefeated record in three outings with VMI, Citadel, and Florida, and a three-way meet with VMI and AMA at Chapel Hill.

Coach Peebles Barrow is looking forward to another good season next year with all of the team returning.

Outstanding members of the team this year were: in sabre, Mike Collins, Dave Matthews and Jim Proctor; in epee, Bob Peebles, Bob Finley and Clarence Simpson; in foil, Carroll Raver, Charles Luchs and Guy Ellis.

Anyone planning to attend the dinner has been asked to contact Carroll Raver at 8-9080 or room 402 Winston Dorm.

Y Cabinet Completed

Jack Raper, YMCA president, completed his cabinet yesterday with the appointment of Tucker Renfrow as director of the YM-YW television program and Bill Hamill as editor of the Y News Letter.

Renfrow, a junior radio and television major, will direct a television program similar to the Y sponsored "Dimensions" series. Hamill will edit a Y activities news letter.

be a special session because the by-laws do not call for a meeting during the last two weeks of the semester.

Under new business there were six bills introduced. The open trial bill was considered under special orders. The others will be considered next week.

Charlotte Is Toured

Members of Delta Sigma Pi, professional business fraternity, toured 11 Charlotte businesses Monday and Tuesday as a part of the fraternity's program to get a "closer affiliation" with the commercial world.

Monroe Landreth, regional director for the fraternity, Tom Belk of Belk Brothers and Henry Heitman, professional chairman for the fraternity, planned the tour and set up the scheduled visits.

Some of the companies toured were: Belk's Buying Service, Belk's Department Store, First Union National Bank, Lance Company, Sealtest Dairies, Douglas Aircraft, Esso Standard Oil, Celanese, WBTV Radio and Television Station, Wachovia Bank and Trust Company and Douglas Municipal Airport.

Monday, the group was the guest of the First Union National Bank for lunch. During an evening dinner where they were guests of the Charlotte Alumni Club, Mayor James S. Smith, of Charlotte, welcomed the members to the city.

Also present to speak to the group was the Maid of Cotton for 1959 and Ed Thomas, postmaster of Charlotte.

The Wachovia Bank and Trust Company held a luncheon for the fraternity members Tuesday in the Mecklenburg Room of the new Wachovia Bank Building. Joe Robinson, senior vice president of the Charlotte office, spoke to the group and a tour of the bank followed.

The blastoff of the 28-foot rocket — which appeared to run smoothly — came at 2:28 p.m. (EST).

The two-stage Polaris, shaped like a bottle, poured out a puffy stream of smoke as it climbed.

It was the second appearance of a polaris at the cape in three weeks in the navy's accelerated and sometimes trouble-plagued program to make the missile operational by 1960.

A serpentine smoke trail in the rocket's wake split in two after about 50 seconds. This apparently was burnout of the first stage and ignition of the second.

The smoke trail continued for a minute and a half before the second stage also burned out. In the meantime, the first stage left a curlicue of smoke in the sky as it began tumbling earthward.

The solid propellant missile logged a highly successful flight April 20, overcoming a series of failures up to that time.

Five Building Projects Costing $3½ Million

By PHIL RIGDON

Money granted to the University by the 1957 state Legislature has begun to make its mark on the campus. Five building projects costing $3,457,000 are now under way.

The addition to Phillips Hall, which will house the Univac 1105 computer, will be ready for use by February 1960. The addition covers 77,903 square feet and will contain 27 laboratories, eight classrooms, two lecture halls and a library and reading room.

The Legislature appropriated $1,200,000 to construct and equip the addition. The computer, valued at $2,500,000, was given by the National Science Foundation and the Department of Commerce. The computer will occupy 10,000 square feet. J. Arthur Branch, University business manager, said it will arrive here within two weeks.

The addition to Peabody Hall, the School of Education, will be completed by May 1960. The Legislature appropriated $985,000 for its construction. This addition will contain 15 classrooms and a com-

Students have been asked to contribute any textbooks published since 1945 and any standard books (such as Dickens) to this drive. Books may be placed in boxes in the dorms or brought to the Y.

Jury Deliberated Hour; Gray Considering Bill

The Men's Honor Council Thursday night convicted Steve Gershenson of cheating and placed him on indefinite suspension.

The jury deliberated an hour before reaching its verdict, and the council debated 15 minutes before sentencing the defendant.

The case is under appeal to the Student-Faculty Council, according to Curtis Gans and Norman B. Smith, Gershenson's counselors. The appeal is based on procedure, question of assumed guilt, questions of new and disallowed evidence and question of insufficient evidence.

Among the procedural violations that were questioned included the fact that the defendant was unable to be present at the first presentation of the prosecution. Gershenson was denied the right to face his accuser.

According to Gans, neither the defendant nor the defense counsel have seen the material evidence used against Gershenson, except in the excerpted form containing the alleged incriminating evidence.

The council denied a request made Thursday night by Student Body President Charlie Gray that the trial be held at a later time. Gray's request came following action of Student Legislature on a bill providing for public trial if a defendant requested such a trial.

Gray did not sign the bill Thursday night, and is still considering it. He stated Friday that he refused to sign the bill "mainly because hasty action often turns out to be regrettable action. I did not have time to study the effects or wording of the bill, which I intend to do before signing any piece of legislation."

Gray said that while he agrees with the principle of the bill, "there are a few provisions which, in haste, were omitted. Gray asserted that he feels these provisions are 'essential to a change of this sort.'"

Gray concluded by saying that his statements for or against the bill will be released "after further study."

Chancellor Aycock will have to rule on the validity of the appeal of Gershenson's case. The Chancellor's ruling will determine whether or not the defendant will have a hearing before the Student-Faculty Council.

Gans said that two points of procedure will also be challenged to the Student Council on the basis of their constitutionality.

Thursday night's trial lasted about four hours and was interrupted several times due to the passing of the bill, and to the request by Gray.

Smith Award Winner Named

Jeremiah Andrew Robertson of Greensboro has been named winner of the $1,600 Marvin B. Smith Jr. Memorial Scholarship at UNC for 1959-60.

The Smith Memorial Scholarship provides $1,600 covering a four-year tenure, subject to maintenance of high standing by the recipient as a student at the University. Payments of $400 are made annually.

The scholarship was established in 1946 in memory of Marvin B. Smith Jr., Class of 1926, by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin B. Smith Sr., his sister, Alyce, and brother, Harold, of Burlington.

Since Mr. Smith had already established himself as a leading businessman in the textile industry at the time of his death, the award is made annually to an outstanding North Carolina graduating high school boy who plans to educate himself for a business career.

Awarded on the basis of scholastic ability, character and promise of success, the winner must also be particularly dependent on his own efforts to secure his education.

Bill Davis Is Elected Chairman

Bill Davis was elected Friday afternoon to succeed Harold O'Tuel as chairman of the Publications Board.

The board is the supervising body of the finances for all University publications under student government. The board's authority extends to budget supervision and contract negotiations, but not to the actual content of the publications.

Another officer of the board is John Minter, who was re-elected chairman Friday.

Dr. Olin T. Mouzon was re-elected to a two-year term as adviser. The other adviser to the Publications Board is Kenneth Byerly, who has another year to serve of his two-year term.

Davis is also business manager of the Yackety Yack, a position he will hold next year for the second consecutive year. He was recently elected Ugliest Man on Campus.

Kappa Epsilon Prexy

LuRuth Sutton has been elected president of Kappa Epsilon, honorary pharmaceutical fraternity for women.

In recent elections, the other new officers of the fraternity include: Barbara Beil, vice president; Dotie Reeves, secretary; Sylvia Bonner, historian, and Helen Dunlap, pledge mistress.
