

HIGHEST HONOR OF TRI SIGMA

Therapist Receives Award

Miss Margaret Moore, faculty member of the UNC School of Medicine, has received the Emily Gates Alumnae Achievement

MARGARET MOORE
... receives Emily Gates award

Award from the Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority.

This annual award is the highest honor bestowed to one of its members by the Tri Sigma Sorority. This organization is a collegiate social sorority and a member of the National Pan Hellenic Conference.

The award was made at the 25th national convention in St. Louis last week.

Miss Moore, a native of Greensboro, received her undergraduate education at Madison College in Virginia where she was a member of Alpha Upsilon chapter of the sorority. She then studied physical therapy at the Walter Reed Army Hospital and received a graduate degree in this same field at the Medical College of Virginia.

Prior to coming to Chapel Hill in 1952, she served as a captain in the U. S. Army, taught physical therapy at the University of Wisconsin and the University of Colorado and was educational consultant for the American Physical Therapy Association.

Her first position with the University was that of chief of the Department of Physical Therapy of N. C. Memorial Hospital, which was opened in 1952. Two years ago the School of Medicine began a four year program which led to a degree in physical therapy. At that time, Miss Moore was named director of the curriculum in physical therapy and was made an assistant professor in the School of Medicine.

She has held offices in the American Physical Therapy Association, and is a member of the N. C. State Examining Committee for Physical Therapists. She also served on the Scholarship Committee of the National Foundation (for Infantile Paralysis). She is the author of numerous articles that have been published in scholarly scientific journals.

Med Professor Leaving For Study In Britain

Dr. Kerr L. White of the University of North Carolina has

DR. KERR L. WHITE
... leaving for London

year's study and research in Great Britain and Europe.

Dr. White is associate professor of medicine and preventive medicine at the UNC School of Medicine.

He will leave this month for London where he will work with Dr. J. N. Morris at the Social Medicine Research Unit of the Medical Research Council of Great Britain. Also while there, he will spend some time at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine and will visit a number of other medical schools in Great Britain.

Dr. White also will visit France, Switzerland, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden and Denmark. In these countries he will be visiting Departments of Social and Preventive Medicine and Outpatient Clinics in various medical schools. Particular attention will be paid to clinics that treat ambulatory patients with chronic diseases.

Later in the year he plans to spend two or three weeks in the Soviet Union visiting several medical centers and cardiovascular (heart) research laboratories.

Dr. White will be accompanied by his wife and two daughters.

Lady Leaders Arrive For Leadership Drill

Women leaders from throughout North Carolina arrived Sunday on campus for the opening of the eighth annual Leadership Training Workshop.

Registration was held Sunday night from 7 to 9 p.m. in Whitehead Dormitory. The workshop officially opened at 9 a.m. Monday and ends with a closing banquet Thursday night.

The N. C. Council of Women's Organizations is sponsoring the gathering in cooperation with the UNC Extension Division. Mrs. Aubrey Mauney, Kings Mountain, is Council president, and Mrs. Corinne Justice Grimsley, Raleigh, is vice president and workshop chairman.

Citizenship responsibilities are by four assistant directors of the Institute of Government here.

Speaking on North Carolina's civil and criminal courts on Wednesday and Thursday are Royal Shannonhouse and Roy Hall.

Another Institute of Government assistant director, Clyde Ball, leads the sessions on parliamentary practices.

Other morning courses are effective speaking, taught by Dr. Lucia C. Morgan of the UNC Department of English; and organization leadership, coordinated by Mrs. Harold Walters and Mrs. Andrew Scott, Chapel Hill.

Resuming classes at 2 p.m., the women chose from three courses: Dr. Morgan's speech class; "Toward Mental Health," by Dr. Charles R. Starling, UNC psychiatrist; and "Nuclear Warfare—What Can You Do About It?," by Mrs. Norton Pearl of Battle Creek, Mich.

Mrs. Pearl is director of women's activities for the U. S. Office of Civilian Defense and Mobilization.

All delegates attend a late afternoon class on "Current Issues in World Affairs," taught by Dr. S. Shepard Jones, who is Burton Craige professor of political science at UNC. He teaches from 3:15 to 4:15 p.m., Monday through Wednesday.

The N. C. Council of Women's Organizations will hold its annual meeting on Thursday afternoon.

Major night events scheduled are open house at the home of Chancellor and Mrs. William B. Aycock on Wednesday; and the banquet on Thursday, to be addressed by Dr. Ellen Winston of Raleigh, State Commissioner of Public Welfare.

Religion Head Is In Demand

Sky Pilot Busy Circuit-Ridin'

The chairman of UNC's Department of Religion is perhaps the most sought-after circuit preacher in the state.

Right now Dr. Bernard L. Boyd is booked solid through December for Sunday "extra-curricular" speaking engagements which will be made in every corner of North Carolina and in many other parts of the United States.

Boyd has one date pending as far ahead as September of 1960. A sermon he is to preach this December in Elkin was set two years ago. And openings for the spring and summer of 1960 are going fast.

... has full schedule

He has done this circuit type preaching for a number of years, filling in for vacationing ministers, or for other special reasons. He is frequently a speaker at church seminars and conferences.

Boyd's July, August, and September itinerary runs something like this:

July 26 he is to give the 10 o'clock sermon at the Effland, N. C., Presbyterian Church and then hurry to the 11 o'clock services at the nearby New Hope Presbyterian Church. Later that evening he will speak to the Westminster Fellowship, student Presbyterian group.

Then on August 2, Boyd will be at the Presbyterian Church in Camden, S. C.

The following two Sundays he will deliver the sermon at the Eagle's Mare, Pa., Community Church in that resort town.

August 23 he will be preaching at the Centenary Methodist Church in Winston-Salem.

The last Sunday in August, Boyd will conduct a Sunday school class at the University Methodist Church in Chapel Hill.

September 4-6 Boyd is to be the special lecturer for the annual series of Bible lectures at the Quincey, Fla., Presbyterian Church.

He will appear before the Men's Bible Conference September 12-15 in Lubbock, Texas, before beginning regular fall semester classes, although his teaching will not curb his outside preaching activities.
