

Montreal Conference Goal For Two Profs

Two faculty members and a former staff member of the School of Medicine have left to speak before the ninth International Congress of Pediatrics in Montreal, Canada, which began last Sunday.

Dr. E. C. Curnen Jr., professor and head of the Department of Pediatrics, is chairman of a panel on "Viruses of Acute Communicable Diseases."

Dr. Judson J. Van Wyk, associate professor of pediatrics, speaks on "Etiological Factors in Simple Sporadic Goiter."

Dr. R. W. Winters talks on "Genetic Studies in Vitamin D Resistant Rickets and Familial Hypophosphatemia." Last year Dr. Winters was a fellow of the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis here with a joint appointment in both the Departments of Pediatrics and Medicine.

The meetings are scheduled to conclude Saturday.

CHAMBERLIN ATTENDS CONGRESS

Dr. Harrie R. Chamberlin of the Carolina School of Medicine will attend the International Congress of Pediatrics in Montreal, Canada July 19-25.

Dr. Chamberlin will lecture at the congress on "Benign Congenital Hypotonia." He is assistant professor of pediatrics.

In 'Reluctant Debutante'

Playhouse Spotlights Horton

Popular actor and comedian Edward Everett Horton is currently starring in "The Reluctant Debutante", fifth production of the Durham Star Playhouse, which opened Tuesday night at the Rialto Theater.

42 Students Attend Annual Drama Session

Forty-two high school students from 11 states and the District of Columbia arrived here Sunday for the 13th annual Junior Carolina Playmakers session.

The five week course will include studies of acting, voice and diction, and production. The students will give an opportunity for practical application of stagecraft skills.

Instructors for the course are Playmakers personnel.

vote taken of the Council by secret ballot was required for conviction on an Honor Code violation. In regular session, only a two-thirds vote of the jury is required for conviction."

This action was taken by the Summer School Student Government Board because of a feeling that a lack of knowledge of Honor Council administration existed among summer school students.

"The signers of the petition, calling for the initiative on the question of a jury in summer school Honor Council trials, sincerely believe in trial by jury as granted by the regular session legislature of the University. The members of the Student Government Board are prepared to enact a bill providing for a jury in summer school trials if a majority of the voting members of the student body should vote yes in Wednesday's referendum.

"The Board will meet in special session tomorrow to take action on this matter should you, the members of the student body, choose to have jury trials this summer.

"We cannot over emphasize the importance of this issue. Consider this most important matter seriously before you vote, for the Honor System is the very basis of the "Carolina Way of Life."

Both Patterson and John Minter corrected a statement in the last issue of the UNC News which quoted Minter as saying that a bill had passed the Summer School Executive Board which allowed a jury trial for any student specifically requesting one.

Patterson also stated that Minter at that time was not speaking as a representative of the summer school student government.

Dewey Sheffield, chairman of the elections board, ending a plea for a strong turnout, said:

"If you vote yes, then you vote to instruct the summer school executive board to enact legislation providing for a jury system, as is the case in regular school session. If you vote no, then you register your approval of the current system now employed, where the council decides the guilt or innocence by a unanimous verdict and decides punishment by a majority decision."

mentally starring in "The Reluctant Debutante", fifth production of the Durham Star Playhouse, which opened Tuesday night at the Rialto Theater.

Horton is making his second appearance with the local theater group. He starred last year in "White Sheep of the Family."

An actor who has enjoyed a career of over 50 years in the theater, Horton still is as active as any trouper. His Durham appearance is one of several in summer stock theaters all over the country this season.

"The Reluctant Debutante" plays nightly, Tuesday through Sunday at 8:30, with 3 p.m. matinees scheduled for Wednesday and Saturday.

School Of Medicine To Be Site Of Speech

Dr. Karl F. Meyer, director emeritus of the Hooper Foundation of the University of California Medical Center, will speak at the School of Medicine Friday at 3 p.m.

Dr. Meyer is considered among the top 10 leading bacteriologists of the world. His subject here will be "Certain Aspects of Plague and Psittacosis (parrot fever)."

Dr. Meyer is world famous for his research in epidemiology and control of plague, parrot fever, botulism, brucellosis, leptospirosis, equine encephalomyelitis and other diseases of animals transmitted to man.

Durham To Be Site For Study In Sociology

Research in "social issue perception in the Negro community" will soon be undertaken in Durham by sociologist Ernest A. T. Barth.

Dr. Barth, who taught in the first summer term at Carolina as visiting professor in sociology, is an assistant professor in the Department of Sociology at the University of Washington.

Specializing in social differentiation, he has done a similar study in Seattle on the leadership structure in the Negro community and another on social issues in the Jewish community. His study in Durham will deal mainly with patterns of issue perception among Negro leaders.

Barth received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University at Chapel Hill, completing the latter in 1955.

ADVICE

Waste not, want not
Is the maxim I would teach;
Let your watchword be Dispatch,
And practice what you preach,
Never let your chances,
Like sunbeams, pass you by,
For you'll never miss the water
Till the well runs dry.
