Artist's Work Up For Grabs—Leaving Town

Gayle "Chuck" Hoskins, one of the organizers of the University Art League, is preparing to abandon his studio here.

Hoskins, who recently completed work on a Masters degree in Art, plans to leave this setting to paint another atmosphere.

A graduate of the University of Florida, Hoskins studied art in New York at the New York Art League. He taught in Henderson last winter at the Henderson Art League.

Hoskins' paintings, which come in all sizes, consist of figure studies, landscape and abstracts. He has already sold countless examples of his talent to people in Chapel Hill and has been one of the more prolific artists in town.

A graduate student here for the past two and a half years, Hoskins' Sutton Building studio currently houses over a hundred paintings which he hopes to sell before departing.

"Chapel Hill has been good to me. It's a wonderful place to work. I hope to sell my present stock and begin anew somewhere else, although I haven't decided just where I'll go."

"If I am sane, then the rest of the world should not be permitted spice to the conversation."

George Bernard Shaw
