21 Quiz Winner, Van Doren Ready To Accept Subpoena

NEW YORK, (AP) — Charles Van Doren's lawyer said today the big-money television winner will accept a subpoena to testify at a Congressional probe of fixed quiz shows.

The lawyer, Carl J. Rubino, denied Van Doren has been dodging the subpoena and notified federal authorities he'll set up a date with his client for tomorrow. Added Rubino:

"He could not evade a subpoena which he did not know had been issued... if the committee wants to serve him, I'll arrange it. I'm making no secret of the fact that Charles Van Doren knew nothing about the subpoena. He first knew about it last night. He didn't know one was issued and he hasn't been avoiding on."

The subpoena was issued last Friday, yesterday, Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark), chairman of a House subcommittee conducting the TV probe, accused Van Doren of evading it.

The House inquiry now is in recess until Nov. 2 and the subpoena presumably will call for Van Doren's appearance then.

Van Doren, a Columbia University English instructor, dropped from sight last week when the subcommittee first sought testimony at the Washington inquiry. But Rubino said of his disappearance:

"He had no thought of evading anything. He just became distressed when NBC took him off the air summarily last Thursday. He was

DTH Staff Member Posts Bond In Hit And Run Case

M'Lou Redden, a Daily Tar Heel staff member, was found guilty of hit-and-run driving by the Chapel Hill Recorder's Court Tuesday. Her lawyer, John Manning, immediately put in an appeal for the December term of Superior Court in Hillsboro.

She was released on a $250 bond. She was driving a staff truck of the Daily Tar Heel office Sept. 21, when she hit Deputy Sheriff Avery C. Maddry in front of the police station.

The main issue of the case was whether or not she knew that she had hit the man, Judge William S. Stewart ruled that she knew that she had hit him or that she should have known it.

The prosecutor was Roy Cole.

disturbed and just went off. He telephoned me last night and I told him that allegedly there was a subpoena out for him. I heard it over TV."

In Washington, however, Harris challenged Rubino's statement that Van Doren had not been evading a subpoena.

He said the committee last Saturday advised the attorney that a subpoena had been issued. On Rubino's contention that Van Doren did not know of this until today, Harris said:

"That's trying to beg the point." He pointed out that the committee sent Van Doren a telegram last Wednesday inviting him to appear and that although it had been widely publicized, the committee had

'Carousel' Production Rights Hard To Come By: Red Tape Great

How did the Carolina Playmakers acquire the rights to present Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Carousel?"

The first step came last spring after it had been decided to produce the famous musical drama. Production rights had to be obtained before any work could be done.

Rodgers and Hammerstein employ a team of attorneys, Reinheimer and Cohen, to handle the licensing of their shows. A letter was written to them by John Parker, business manager of the Playmakers, asking for the rights to present "Carousel."

Reinheimer and Cohen sent the Playmakers a questionnaire for a license. The license had to be obtained before the contracts could be signed.

The Playmakers had to answer such questions as the nature of their organization, the place in which "Carousel" would be presented and the dates, the capacity of the theatre, the admission price to be charged. They also had to state what musicals they had produced in the past three years and the royalty paid for each.

The questionnaire was filled in and returned and a license was obtained, stating the royalty fee being asked by Rodgers and Hammerstein. There is no set royalty charge for an R&H show. Royalty charges depend upon the nature of the organization presenting the show and the expected box office receipts.

This policy enables many university and community theatres to produce the popular Rodgers and Hammerstein shows.

The entire royalty fee had to be paid before the contracts could be signed. The contract, a legal document, states specific provisions for the production.

All musical scores and scripts had to be purchased from the Williamson Music Company, a firm owned by Rodgers and Hammerstein.

Tickets are now on sale at 214 Abernethy Hall and at Ledbetter-Pickard. All seats are reserved at $2.00. "Carousel" curtain time is 8:30, Oct. 23, 24 and 25.

Archbishop Of Capetown To Speak On Racial Problems

Most Reverend Joost de Blank

South Africa's most controversial figure, the Lord Archbishop of Capetown, will address students and townfolks this evening at 8:30 in Hill Hall. The talk is under the auspices of the Di-Phi.

Famed for his outspoken and uncompromising opposition to the apartheid (racial discrimination) policy of the government of South Africa His Grace, the Most Rev. Joost de Blank, Lord Archbishop of Capetown and Metropolitan of South Africa will speak on the racial policies of South Africa in his address here.

His Grace will be introduced to his Chapel Hill audience by Chancellor William B. Aycock. Aycock will be introduced by Robert Pace.

Dress Will Identify Visiting Archbishop On Street, In Church

The Anglican Lord Archbishop of Capetown is a man of many different attires.

Three things at once identify Joost de Blank as an archbishop: the episcopal ring, the pectoral cross and the scarlet vest. For street dress, he may wear the ordinary black suit worn by any priest or bishop or he may wear the frock coat and gaiters of English Court usage.

He is normally attired in cope and miter for church services. These are the traditional vestments for bishops of the Anglican and Roman Catholic Churches.

For public occasions such as his address here on the campus, he may wear street dress or he may wear a bishop's cassock and zucchetto. The zucchetto is a skull cap of red.

As Lord Archbishop and Metropolitan, His Grace is the head of the Anglican Church in all of South Africa. He is addressed as "Your Grace" entitled to a 19 gun salute, and is generally greeted by having the episcopal ring kissed.

David Mathews will preside at the address.

The Archbishop's Tar Heel schedule includes a luncheon at Duke University and a tour of Liggett & Myers Tobacco in Durham this afternoon. Arriving in Chapel Hill, His Grace will make a brief tour of the campus.

He will pontificate and preach at a Solemn Eucharist at the Chapel of the Cross at 5 p.m. He will make a public address in Hill Hall, 8:30 p.m., and be honored at a reception at Graham Memorial following the address.

Hosting the Archbishop in Chapel Hill will be Dave Mathews of Winston-Salem, president of the Di-Phi, and Robert Pace, a Chapel Hill resident and member of the National Council of the American Church Union of the Episcopal Church. The Archbishop is in the United States under the auspices of the American Church Union.

One of Joost de Blank's first acts after his election and enthronement as archbishop-metropolitan in South Africa was to become co-chairman of the Treason Trials Defense Fund.

This fund provides legal aid for those citizens of South Africa who are accused of treason for opposing the apartheid policy.

Services Held At 5:00 In Chapel Of The Cross

The Lord Archbishop of Capetown will preside and preach at the Holy Eucharist today at 5 p.m. at the Chapel of the Cross.

The Wednesday afternoon service which is usually held at 5:30 has been scheduled for 5:00 due to the participation of His Grace in the Eucharist.

Music for the Service will be provided by the combined choirs of the Chapel of the Cross and St. Philip's Church in Durham.

Ministers of the Eucharist will include the Lord Archbishop-Metropolitan attended by Robert Pace, Robert Foxworth, Anthony Dees, Patrick Browder and Fred Roper; the Right Rev. Robert E. Gribbin, Locum Tenens of the Chapel of the Cross, attended by H. C. McAllister Jr. and Hobart T. Steele Jr.; the Rev. Clarence Parker, celebrant of the Eucharist, the Rev. Alan Reddick, deacon of the Eucharist, and Thomas Garner, sub-deacon of the Eucharist; and acolytes Mike Sprinkle, William Smith, Tommy Kehayes, David Mundy and Walter Hooper.

Cobb Charters Bus

For the first time in UNC history, a bus is being chartered by a dorm for transportation to a football game.

Swag Grimsley, president of Cobb dorm, made the announcement Tuesday that a bus has been chartered exclusively for Cobb students for transportation to the Wake Forest game.

The bus will leave Cobb at 11:15 Saturday morning for the game. Expenses will be $2.25 for the bus and $2 for a ticket to the game. The bus will return to Chapel Hill right after the game is over.

Director's Conference Held Here

Industry training directors from North Carolina and Virginia will hold their annual fall conference here Friday and Saturday to discuss such areas as problems of older workers, new labor law and executive mental health.

The two-state chapter of the American Society of Training Directors will begin its gathering here Friday morning in Carroll Hall. President Sidney March will welcome the group at 9:30 a.m., following registration.

Dr. LeBarron Mosley of Roanoke, Va., staff psychologist with the Veterans Administration, will speak on "The Executive and Mental Health."

Other Friday speakers will be Martin Bauman of Glasgow, Va., training director for James Lee and Sons Co., and Ralph V. Metz of Covington, Va., training director for West Virginia Paper and Pulp Co.

A Friday night dinner at the Carolina Inn will feature a talk on "Implications of the New Labor Law," by Dr. John Barringer Jr. of Blacksburg, Va. He is a professor of business administration at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Chapter members will hold a business session Saturday morning and hear two more talks before adjournment.

English Club Lecture

"Chaucer and Gower: Biographical and Literary Relations" will be the subject of a talk to be delivered before the English Club Friday, 8 p.m., by Dr. John Hurt Fisher, English professor at Duke.

Dr. Fisher has recently returned from England, where he did extensive research on the two major fourteenth century poets, Geoffrey Chaucer and John Gower. He received his Ph.D. at the University of Pennsylvania and served on the faculties of Yale and New University before coming to Duke in 1955. The lecture Friday night will be in the Library assembly room and is open to the public.

NC High School Press Institute Held In Chapel Hill Saturday

Three hundred high school newspaper and yearbook editors, with their faculty advisers, are expected in Chapel Hill Saturday for the 18th annual N. C. Scholastic Press Institute.

The full day's program includes lectures, panels, demonstrations and "buzz sessions" on how to improve high school publications.

Student officers this year are Dick Ranson of Charlotte, president; Mike Waters of Charlotte, vice president; Mary Womack of High Point, secretary; Marguerite Harris of Roxboro, treasurer. Faculty adviser for newspapers is Mrs. Robert Young of Durham. Advisers for yearbooks are Miss Gordon Freeman and G. Leslie Brown of Charlotte.

The Institute is sponsored each October by the School of Journalism, the Extension Division of the University, The Daily Tar Heel and the N. C. Department of Public Instruction. Walter Spearman of the School of Journalism is director.

Among the professional newspaper and yearbook speakers are Harrie Keck of the Observer Printing House in Charlotte, Vincent D. Ambrasio of Delmar Studios in Charlotte, Roy Thompson of the Winston-Salem Journal, C. A. Paul, columnist for the Greensboro Daily News, Holley Mack Bell, associate editor of the Greensboro Daily News, Mrs. Margie Bartlett of Bartlett Creative Services in Charlotte and J. A. C. Dunn of the Chapel Hill Weekly.

Staff members of the School of Journalism assisting with the program include Dean Norval Neil Luxon, who will welcome the students; Kenneth Byerly and Jack Adams, who will conduct a panel on "How to Make High School Newspapers Readable"; Stuart Sechrist, who will discuss makeup; and James Mullen, who will discuss advertising. The Daily Tar Heel staff members include Editor Davis Young, Feature Editor Mary Alice Rowlett, columnist James Harper, sports writer Rusty Hammond and News Editor Ed Riner.

High School students presiding over discussion groups are Genie Ball of Charlotte, Susan Doak of Chapel Hill, Sally Seibert of Salisbury, David Nance of Charlotte, Barbara Hinkle of East Mecklenburg, Larry Sawers of Greensboro, Elaine Morris of Albemarle, Patt Betts of Greensboro, Mary Womack of High Point, Tom Cameron Jr. of Raeford, and Edward Clayton of Roxboro.

W. C. Burton of Reidsville, columnist for the Greensboro Daily News, will address the concluding banquet on Saturday night in Lenoir Hall. He will speak on "If I Work for a Newspaper, What Do I Get Out of It?"
