Enrollment Increase Causes Inadequate Student Union: 200% Growth Since 1931

By MARION HAYS

The student union here has been a topic of discussion for some time because of its inadequacy.

Recently, representatives from the student unions of all the southern states had a general meeting at State College.

Angus Duff, president of this union, was told by representatives from Florida State University who have visited most of the unions in the south, that UNC's was the most inadequate they had seen.

The purpose of a student union is to act as a center of college community life. Through its various boards, committees and staff, it provides a cultural, social and recreational program aiming to make free time activity a cooperative factor with study in education.

Its goal is the development of persons as well as intellects.

Between the time Graham Memorial student union was started and completed the enrollment increased 80 per cent. Since its completion in 1931 the student body has more than doubled.

Student Union Too Small

Now with an enrollment of almost 8,000 the student union is far too small to fulfill its purpose. It covers approximately 21,000 square feet.

Student government president, Charlie Gray, through discussions with Chancellor William B. Aycock and his cabinet, is trying to carry out the plea of the student body and Howard Henry, GM director, for a new student union building.

The proposal for the new and larger building, aside from having to pass through various committees and boards, must be approved by the chancellor before being presented to the State Legislature.

Henry and the student body are in high hopes that the proposal will pass the 1961 legislature.

Only Four Recreation Rooms

Recreation in Graham Memorial, better known as GM, is provided for in four rooms: a game room, a billiard room, the Rendezvous dance room and a photo dark room.

Henry explains that there are only four billiard tables, far too few to meet the demand; he further stated that due to lack of space the two ping-pong tables have been moved to the front porch so that pictures for the year book may be taken in the game room.

James Hammond is second in command of the area known as Defense Accounting and Auditing, Defence Contracts. Stanley Hargrey is supervisory accountant in the office of staff management. He has also had experience on the operating staff of the general accounting office as well as in staff management.

Dr. Richard Calhoun is a professor of Personnel Relations in the Business School here at Carolina.

For the numerous and varied organizations on the campus there are only seven rooms in GM which may be used for meetings. Consequently, many of these organizations must turn to any available room, namely class rooms.

Crammed into their inadequate spaces are the offices of The Daily Tar Heel, the Yackety Yack (yearbook), the Carolina Quarterly, (literary magazine), the Student Activities Fund, Graham Memorial Activities Board, Publications Board, the student government president, the director of GM and the president of GM.

Free movies are offered to the students by GMAB but must be shown in Carroll Hall due to the lack of space.

The main lounge must be used as an auditorium to present the Petite Musicales and the Petite Dramaticues.

More Space Required

It has been suggested that the new union building provide larger accommodations for the organizations listed earlier, as well as more lounge.

The present lounge is used for music-listening as well as reading.

Henry states that this problem could be solved in the new building by having a music-listening lounge complete with a record library, a reading lounge for those

Federal Commerce Men Speak At AKPsi Dinner

Two officials from the Accountant General's office in Washington, D. C., and a professor from the Business Administration school here spoke at an AKPsi dinner Wednesday night.

AKPsi, a commerce fraternity, had the dinner at the Tower Restaurant on the Chapel Hill-Durham Highway.

He has also had experience on the operating staff of the general accounting office as well as in staff management.

Aycock Says Student Union Has Priority

Chancellor William B. Aycock has promised students that a new student union will receive top priority in requests to the Advisory Budget Committee in December.

Charlie Gray, student body president, reporting a meeting with the Chancellor's Cabinet, said that the request will include plans for a new student union with 120,000 feet of space. An undergraduate library would house 30,000 square feet of the union.

"With lots of hard work by the students this year and next, we hope to make this new student union a reality," said Gray at a Wednesday afternoon press conference.

Gray again urged all students to write to their parents encouraging them to vote in the bond election Oct. 27.

He announced a new scholarship fund financed by surplus funds from last year's Student Government operations.

The Visiting Committee of the Board of Trustees will be on campus Oct. 30. "Any student who has any matter to present to the visiting committee," said Gray, "may get in touch with the Student Government office before Friday, Oct. 30. We will gladly accept any suggestions from the student body."

David Grigg, student government vice president, is heading a committee of students familiar with the honor system in a complete evaluation of the system. The committee will accept student suggestions.

able constitutional changes. No action will be taken until the Judicial Review Committee survey has been completed.

Results of a study of the fraternity parking problem will be announced next week.

The probable outcome of a study of the Carolina traffic problem will be a list of fees that students will be required to pay for violations. According to Gray, these fees will go into a fund used to improve the traffic situation at Carolina.

"I want to strongly urge fraternities to keep in mind the scholastic eligibility rule which goes into effect at the end of this semester," said Gray.

"I hope the fraternities will take the initiative to stress scholarship so that no one will be punished for not being able to meet this rule."

Extra fire extinguishers will be put in the dorms soon, and the president urges students not to destroy this equipment installed for their safety.

Gray mentioned his hopes for a racial assembly with other deep South schools later in the year. The assembly program will offer discussion of ways for Southern institutions to adjust to the race problem.

DTH Editorial Comment Embraces Wide Range Since Century's Turn

"It is a genuine pleasure to note the movement that has been started for a University Glee Club." So stated an editorial in the Oct. 24, 1900 edition of The Tar Heel (several years before it became The Daily Tar Heel.)

Between the turn of the century and the present, topics for editorial comment in the campus newspaper have ranged from football games to the Honor System.

Fifty years ago on Oct. 20 the Tar Heel remarked, "That V.M.I. should have beaten Carolina is a source of keen regret to all of us here at the University."

In 1919 Thomas Wolfe, one of the most distinguished of ex-Tar Heel editors is found commending Carolina students for good sportsmanship at a football game.

And on Oct. 23, 1928 the practice of forcing Freshmen to join a group called the Chessmen was questioned.

Daily Tar Heel editors were not completely absorbed with football during the Roaring Twenties. The Oct. 22, 1927 editorial page carried a "Paraphrastics" column which noted, "The Greeks once worshipped gods, but now they worship gawky freshmen. There were other editorials on fraternity rush and on optional class attendance."

On Oct. 22, 1929 the editor lamented the disappearance of personal contact between students and professors.

A year later, the editor criticized the Dialectic Senate for a resolution.

On Oct. 22, 1937, the Daily Tar Heel again returned to the subject of football and informed its readers of a clash between the head cheerleader and the Monogram Club.

Five years later a world war had sobered the editorial columns and the Oct. 22, 1942 edit page was devoted to urging the students to help win the War.

Turning to more recent issues, a year ago today Daily Tar Heel editor Curtis Gans was asking for the abolishment of permanent Honor Council jurors.

Local Leaders Asking Bond Issue Passage

How do you feel about the Bond Issue Election? If your name is Charlie Shaffer, UNC's Director of Development, you have this to say: "The outcome of the Bond Election on October 27 will determine in large measure whether or not the University at Chapel Hill will be able to provide classroom and living quarters for the increased enrollment that is expected in the next few years.

"Crowded classrooms and three-men dormitory rooms originally designed for two greeted the 7,959 students that arrived on campus this fall.

CHARLIE SHAFFER
Director of Development

"The years to come will offer no relief for those pursuing a higher education unless the people of the State vote for a better North Carolina on October 27. I am confident they will help education and assure a better North Carolina as they have done so many times in the past."

EXPRESSION

This was indicative of expression from both student and administration leaders concerning the Capital Improvements Bond Issue Election to be held statewide next Tuesday.

Today's issue of The Daily Tar Heel contains a special section devoted to the Bond Issue, showing the needs of a growing University in a progressive State.

Today's press run totalled 14,000 papers, the largest number of Daily Tar Heels ever printed on one day. They are being mailed out to parents, Trustees and various other citizens across the state.

Comments poured into the paper's office early in the week concerning the Bond Issue.

They included: "The press of the state is supporting the statewide bond issue—by overwhelming editorial consensus. This reflects the confidence of the people, as shown through the press, in the worth of the plan to aid education, the mental institutions and the other vital functions of the state," according to University News Bureau Director A. G. Pete Ivey.

Ivey added, "A vote for the Bond Issue is a vote for the University, and a vote for the University is a vote for all of the others."

Daily Tar Heel Editor Davis B. Young called the Bond Issue election "one of the most crucial elections of its type ever held in the State."

Young went on, "more of the future of this University hinges on the outcome than anyone realizes. The paper is delighted to be able to lobby for its passage through this special issue."

Student Body President Charlie Gray said, "Student Government, working through the efforts of the Daily Tar Heel and with the assistance of the statewide Committee of Sixty, proudly presents this special issue of the paper.

"We hope that it will in some way, show the voters of North Carolina the deep interest shared by the students of the University of North Carolina in the passage of the State Bond Issue Election, which will be held October 27.

"We also hope that the articles and comments in this paper will help acquaint the people of this State to the necessity of the capital improvements contained in the Bond Issue and encourage them to cast an affirmative vote," Gray concluded.

Statement

Dear Parents:

The editor of the Daily Tar Heel and his associates have set forth on these pages splendid statements concerning the bond issues which you will vote on at the polls on Tuesday, October 27. We invite your careful reading of these stories.

Your vote FOR these bond issues will provide for a better North Carolina and for a better University. Please vote YES on all nine bond issues on October 27.

2 Nurses Named As Officers

Two UNC students of nursing were elected to state offices in the state convention of the N. C. Student Nurses Association in Raleigh Tuesday.

Alice Forester, a junior from Winston-Salem, was elected as first vice president of the state association, and Carolyn Pearson, a junior from Greensboro, was chosen as district five representative to the association's executive council.

The voting was accomplished by secret ballot after nominating speeches were heard from the candidates. The elections followed the business meeting at the Sir Walter Hotel.

Some 40 members of UNC's Nursing School attended the convention, seven of them as voting delegates.

The association divides the state into seven districts; Carolina's district is comprised of Duke, Watts, Lincoln and UNC.

As first vice president Miss Forester will be in charge of preparing programs for next year's convention as well as the state's part at the national convention to be in Miami, Fla. in April.

This is the third consecutive year that a UNC nursing student had had a state office in the association.

New Delegate System Pleases UP's Patterson

"I was extremely pleased with the success of the new delegate system employed in the University Party nominating convention Tuesday night," UP Chairman Hank Patterson announced Wednesday.

"I believe the delegate system provided for a more representative and efficient selection of candidates," he continued. 240 delegates were present.

Freshmen class officers will be nominated at the UP nominating convention Monday night, 7:15, in Carroll Hall. The party platform, currently being formulated by the UP executive board, will be debated at this meeting.

Yack Pictures

Members of the Germans Club and the Dance Committee are to have their pictures taken for the Yackety Yack today through Friday from 1 to 6 p.m. in the basement of Graham Memorial.

Also, fraternity and sorority members who didn't have class pictures taken may have them made this week.

These pictures will appear only in the fraternity and sorority sections and not in class sections.

Extension: juniors, first, second, and third year dental students and dental hygiene and pharmacy students may have their pictures taken for $1 (late fee) this week.

(The DTH regrets the error yesterday when last week's schedule was published by mistake.)

Di-Phi Debates Bills: Induct New Members

The Di-Phi Society inducted new members Tuesday night.

New members were Helen North, Mary Jeanne Reid, Ingeborg Kaden, Mike Apter, Norman Brooks and David Price. In order to qualify for membership a student must attend three meetings, make a speech at one of them and considered at the meeting, but one of them, advocating a revision of U. S. foreign policy, was referred back to the committee for amendment.

The second resolution concerned the social equalities of women with men.

Rep. Gary Green, who introduced the measure, observed that since women were accorded equal rights with men in business and politics, their rights should quite naturally be extended into the social field. To be specific, it should be "the socially acceptable and laudable role of women to ask men for dates," he said.

Dates Set For Honor Council Interviews

Women interested in running for Honor Council must sign for interviews today in the Council Room, second floor Graham Memorial.

Interviews will be tomorrow 2-5 p.m. and Monday and Tuesday 1-4 p.m.

Honor Council elections will be Tuesday, Nov. 17. Three seats are open. Those interested may contact Sandy Trotman, chairman of Women's Honor Council for further information.

Two resolutions were to be con-

Rep. Helen North pointed out disadvantages that would result if women assumed equality with men in the social field. She said that women might have to become bread-winners, pay alimony and customs of chivalry would no longer exist.

The resolution was defeated by both representatives and visitors.

2:00 a.m. Closing

Two o'clock in the morning may be the closing time of the University Library in the near future.

Charlie Gray, student government president, said that if there is enough student interest the plan may go into effect.

He said that a 1 a.m. or 2 a.m. closing time would give students a chance to study late, using library reference materials.

Gray made the announcement after a consultation Friday with Dr. Jerrold Orne, librarian, and with the Student Government Library Committee.
