Britain Supports France In Nuclear Test Explosion

United Nations, N. Y., Nov. 5 (AP)—Britain supported today the French contention that an atomic bomb test explosion in the Sahara would cause no harm to the people of Africa.

David Ormsby-Gore, British Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, told the 82-nation political committee that even those opposed to the test had no objection to France catching up with other nations in having atomic arms.

Britain was the first of the nuclear powers to support the French stand. A U. S. spokesman said he could not comment on what position his country would take. The Soviet Union was expected to support a resolution submitted by 20 Asian-African nations urging France not to conduct the test.

The British delegate declared the main issue was whether an A-bomb test such as intended by France would harm the inhabitants of the surrounding area. He said Britain had special interest in the question because it is still responsible for many African peoples who have not yet attained their independence. Then he added:

"We have taken every step, on their account as well as that of other nations, to satisfy ourselves that the measures to be taken by France will insure the safety of all concerned."

Air Force Honors Kenan Professor

Kenan Professor Alfred T. Brauer of the University, one of the nation's foremost mathematicians, was recently honored by an article in the Air Force Office of Scientific Research Report.

The article pointed out that the professor's recent research amplifying approximation techniques with respect to particular kinds of algebraic equations are of particular value to various Air Force groups.

Dr. Burton Jones, chairman of the Mathematics Department, commenting on the article, said, "Dr. Brauer is one of those rare individuals who has been able to combine successfully teaching and research."

Dr. Brauer is a student favorite on campus, and Dr. Jones added, "he pours his heart and soul into his classes."

The article stated, "Because of a present-day utilitarian concern for numerical solutions for problems, professor Brauer's detailed investigations have attracted a great deal of interest. This has been true also because of the suitability of many of his techniques for use with modern computing equipment."

The results of his research appeal in the context of characteristic equations for matrices and probability theory, the article stated. "In that context they are readily transferable to general equations and particularly suited to the solutions of certain applied matrix problems."

He said France had made clear it would test an ordinary atomic bomb and not an H-bomb. He said Britain had conducted a number of A-bomb tests in Australia and the people in the nearest town, 62 miles away, had not been endangered. In the French test area, he added, the nearest Nigerian territory is 900 miles away.

Bridge Lessons

The objective approach to bridge was used in the free bridge lessons given Thursday night in Roland Parker I, Graham Memorial.

Malcolm Clark, coordinator, is giving the lessons every Thursday night, 8 p.m., with the object in view of preparing "average" bridge players for the spring intercollegiate. The classes are not for rank beginners.

The emphasis was on bidding, shown by blackboard work. Most of the time will be spent on theoretical discussion, with the seminar approach.

INFIRMARY

Students in the infirmary yesterday include:

Carolina Meets Miami In Orange Bowl Tonight

By ELLIOTT COOPER

Christian Existentialist 2nd Wesley Lecturer

Christian existentialist Dr. Carl Michalson, professor at Drew University, will speak today, 8 p.m. in Hill Hall. His topic, "Injustice, Neurosis and Unbelief," will include references to Marx and Freud.

The guest speaker for the second annual Wesley Lectures, Dr. Michalson will give another lecture Sunday on "Christianity and the Meaning of History" in Hill Hall, 8 p.m. His talk will deal with the historical structure of human life in relation to that of Biblical faith.

After the Friday night lecture, there will be an informal reception for him at Wesley House. A brief discussion period will follow.

Michalson is a professor, editor and author. Since 1943, he has taught systematic theology at Drew Theology School. He has served as visiting professor at Tokyo Union Theological Seminary, Perkins School of Theology at S.M.U. and Aoyama Gakuin University.

A graduate of Drew, he earned his Ph. D. at Yale and has done post-graduate work at Tubingen, Germany and Basel, Switzerland.

Editor of "Christianity and Existentialism," Michalson included a chapter of his own with the writings of other well known authorities on existentialism.

"Faith For Personal Crises" published in 1958 was a Religious Book Club selection. Other writings include his most recent book "The Hinge of History," and chapters in "Modern Protestant Thought," "Faith and Ethics" and "20th Century Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge."

DR. CARL MICHALSON

He will lecture to Dr. Maurice Natanson's Philosophy 104 class (Philosophy in Lecture). His topic will be "Sin and Sainthood in Jean Paul Sartre."

Michalson will meet with the Community of Lay Scholars for a luncheon and seminar Saturday afternoon. The community is a group of students from Carolina, Women's College, Duke and Wake Forest who are interested in theological study.

Members of the faculty will meet informally with Dr. Michalson Saturday evening.

A Sunday luncheon upstairs in Lenoir Hall is being planned for interested students who wish to talk with Dr. Michalson.

Michalson reportedly is the leading interpreter of existentialism in America. His contribution to "Christianity and Existentialism" was the "liveliest chapter" according to Time magazine. In it he attempts to answer the question—What is existentialism?

Michalson describes it—"a shocking sensualism, an erotic realism, a tearful and throbbing meeting of skin against skin."

"One who murmurs in his beer, 'I wish I were dead'" writes Michalson, "would only be really existing if he were at that moment quaffing poison."

fard who is 500 yards behind his teammate. Bouffard, the Hurricanes' 200 pound junior fullback, is averaging close to four yards per carry over the 52 attempts he has made. This figure is not boosted by long runs since 19 yards is the most he has gained on any single try so far. He has also not been thrown for a loss yet.

The other two members of the Miami backfield will probably be Jimmy Vollenweider and Bob Rosbaugh but sophomore Ron Fritzsche could alternate with either at one of the halfback spots. Both Fritzsche and Rosbaugh are currently averaging better than five yards a carry.

From a defensive standpoint the top lineman on the Miami eleven would appear to be right guard Jack Novak, a 209 junior who has been credited with making 32 tackles, 11 more than runner up Jim Crawford.

One of the major factors that has hampered Miami's success this season has been the fact that Gustafson has had to use as many as twenty soph in the lineup during a game. Last week against Kentucky the Hurricane sophomores came up with three glaring errors which the Wildcats converted into an equal number of touchdowns.

Carolina Coach Jim Hickey is expecting to see a multiple offense thrown against his squad tonight. Among the many variations which the Hurricanes run from is a spread formation which Curci likes to use in passing situations.

Heels Work Out

The Tar Heels worked out in the Orange Bowl immediately after arriving here yesterday afternoon. After tonight's game the Carolina players will get some time off before flying back to Chapel Hill tomorrow evening.

Hickey has said that he plans no lineup changes in the first string so the team that took the field last week against Tennessee should be the same one that will start this evening.

Fullbacks Don Klochak and Bob Elliott are the leading Tar Heel scorers going into this eighth contest of the season. Both are tied with 18 points and rank with halfback Wade Smith as the team's top ball carriers.

For the third straight week Carolina will be without the services of halfbacks Gib Carson and Rip Shusser. These are the only two injuries on the team, however, so the Tar Heels should be in almost top shape for the game.

UNC Advisor To Represent Chancellor

Dr. F. C. Shepard will be the chancellor's personal representative at a meeting of university and college presidents at the Air University, Maxwell AFB, Alabama, Dec. 9 and 10.

While attending this conclave the university officials will consider ways and means for strengthening the working partnership between the Air Force and all schools participating in the Air Force ROTC program.

Lt. Gen. Walter E. Todd, Air University Commander, arranged the conference to provide the opportunity for the formation of a standing group of institutional representatives. Such a group would be on call to consult with key Air Force officials on Air Force ROTC problems before they become acute, and to assist in formulating mutually satisfactory solutions and guidelines for the future development of the program.

Tentative agenda for Dr. Shepard's visitation includes a welcome address by Gen. Todd and a keynote address "The Role of the Air Force ROTC in the Future Plans of the Air Force" by the Honorable James H. Douglas, secretary of the Air Force.

Legislature Is Adjourned

The weekly meeting of the Student Legislature was stalled tonight by a motion from Bob Nobles (SP) to recess until 9:30 p.m.

At 9:30 p.m. an attempt to achieve a quorum requiring the presence of twenty-six members failed, and the body was adjourned for the duration of the evening.

IDC Trial

One student has been tried by the Interdormitory Council Court for violation of quiet hours.

Court clerk James W. Kinney stated the student, unnamed by law, was charged with violating the quiet hours in Mangum dorm on Oct. 26. By an unanimous decision the court found him not guilty.

The trial was Wednesday night.

More Pledge Class Officers

A sorority and two fraternities have announced their pledge officers for the year.

Officers for the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority pledges are Elaine Livas, president; Minnie Barnes, vice president; Shirley Slaughter, secretary-treasurer; Julie Latane, activities chairman; Mary Turlington, scholarship chairman; Jeanne Huntley, social chairman, and Ellen Brown, devotional chairman.

Pledge officers for Sigma Chi fraternity are Carter Strickland, president; Howdy Marsh, vice president; John Bailey, secretary; John Sheriff, treasurer; Olin Siker, social chairman, and Don Crowley, sergeant at arms.

Stanley Coker has been elected president of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity pledge class. Other officers are Rob Cheek, vice president; Fred Wedler, secretary-treasurer; and Skip Skogund, social chairman.

BA School Dean To Fill Education Post

Maurice W. Lee, dean of Business Administration, has been elected to the Board of Trustees of the Joint Council on Economic Education.

He will serve on the Board with 64 other distinguished representatives of education, labor, business, agriculture and research organizations. He replaces Dean Arnold Perry of the School of Education as the University representative to the national organization. Dean Perry has been a trustee for the past three years.

The Joint Council on Economic Education is a non-profit, non-partisan educational organization founded 10 years ago to encourage the more effective teaching of economics at all levels kindergarten through college.

The Joint Council's nationwide program works through a network of 30 affiliated but autonomous state and regional councils.

The program is financed by grants from the Ford Foundation and the Committee for Economic Development.

An all-student cast for "A Little to the Left," a new comedy by Brock Brower to be presented by the Carolina Playmakers Nov. 18-22, has been announced by Director Thomas M. Patterson.

In producing a new play by a new playwright, the Playmakers are following a long tradition. Brower, the author of "A Little to the Left," was a special student last year in the Dramatic Art Department. His topical comedy is about a fantastic revolution in a make-believe Central American country of Costabona.

Robert Elston of London, England, joins the Playmakers for the first time to portray Harry Dilby, a Cockney top sergeant. Elston was graduated from Cambridge University in England where he was active in drama. He received a doctorate degree from Cornell and is now doing post doctoral work in biostatistics here.

Francis Moran, a representative of the Associated Banana Corporation who attempts to buy the revolution, will be played by Gordon Clark. This is his first year with the Playmakers, but he has had extensive work in drama in high school and at Campbell College.

Field Marshall Alfonso Fernando De Malagona, leader of the revolutionary army of the Free People's Republic of Costabona, is being played by Charles Nisbet III, a veteran Playmaker. Nisbet recently appeared in "Carousel" and has been in several major productions.

Allan Theis Hayward will appear as John Moran, a Harvard sophomore whose high ideals lead him to join the Costabona rebels. John's pal, Pedro, the son of the Costabona bank president, will be portrayed by Bill File.

The tough female war correspondent who parachutes into the jungle headquarters of the rebels is played by Mary Lawrence.

Costabona's Dictator Carlos Sogura is played by Glenn L. Vernon. This is Vernon's first appearance with the Playmakers. He was formally director of speech and drama at Holmes Junior College in Goodman Mississippi.

JULIANNE MORAN (Marilyn F. Zschau of Raleigh) looks in amazement at her son John (Allen Theis Hayward of Oradell, N. J.) as he sits dejectedly in prison in the Carolina Playmakers production of "A Little to the Left."

Marilyn F. Zschau will play Julianne Moran, John's mother and wife of the banana tycoon. At present Miss Zschau is studying voice with Walter Golde, preparatory to a career in opera and concert. She was recently seen as Nettie in "Carousel."

Bob Merritt will play the part of Malcolm Malcolm as itinerate writer. Merritt has appeared in "The Would-Be Gentleman," "Mime Show," and "Sisters Gogmagog" on the Playmakers stage.

Minor roles of guards and soldiers will be played by Bob Thornburg, John Harris, Jerry Walker, Terry Carmody and Bill Smith.

"A Little to the Left" will be presented Nov. 18-22 at the Playmakers Theatre. Tickets go on sale to the general public Nov. 12 at 214 Abernethy Hall and at Ledbetter-Pickard.

Season Ticket holders may exchange their coupons for reserved seats beginning Monday.

DTH Favors Van Doren's Joining Carolina Faculty

The Daily Tar Heel is of the opinion that the administration of the University of North Carolina should extend to Charles Van Doren an invitation to join the faculty of its English Department. The paper believes that one mistake does not and cannot condemn a man permanently.

He is respected as a brilliant scholar and has demonstrated by his soul-searching confession before the Congressional subcommittee that he is not devoid of integrity.

The Daily Tar Heel believes his addition to the English Department would eventually make the University proud of its decision.

Four administrators have commented on this opinion as follows: Chancellor William B. Aycock: "The University Administration does not express an opinion on the qualifications of a potential faculty member without first examining all of the available information concerning his qualifications. At the present time, I do not have before me enough information to express an official opinion."

Dean of Admissions Charles Bernard: "I certainly do not advise offering Mr. Van Doren a job on the UNC faculty. I feel he was in complete collusion and he certainly is not the type person we would want on the faculty."

Dean of Women Katherine Carmichael: "I regret that Mr. Van Doren seems to have failed to fulfill his obligation to himself and to the American public. I think that any decision concerning him should be entirely up to the English Department."

Assistant Director of Admissions Ed French: "I feel that Mr. Van Doren has been made a scapegoat and is no more guilty than others involved in the affair. However, he is the holder of a famous literary name and that makes his error all the more poignant for those of us in the educational field. As of an offer to teach here, I think that he should be judged purely on his qualifications as a teacher and not as a TV personality."

Dr. Hugh Holman, chairman of the English Department, was not available for comment.

Pushing stethoscope and driller aside, members of Alpha Epsilon Delta, honorary premed and pre-dental fraternity, will hasten with their dates to the Sigma Nu Hut for a Saturday evening party long planned for.

Cheese flowed and music mingled at La Pizza Tuesday night as Joyner Dorm had its first annual pizza party.

Over 100 residents of Joyner attended the four-hour fete. The Keynotes, a local barbershop quartet of UNC students, headed the entertainment docket.

"As usual, the party was a big success," said Dorm President Ben Taylor. "We'd had more men out for a party, but seldom has so much pizza been eaten by so few."

Tonight's the night when the printer's ink, AP copy paper, and Tar Heel fly. "The Daily Tar Heel Must Go To Press" party for staff members begins at 7 p.m.

Go East, young man, East Carolina. Saturday the Sigma Nu's will play intramural football with their East Carolina brothers. After a party, they'll attend the nighttime homecoming game en masse.

It's a Zete tradition to give a party for all new pinees. So Saturday night Josie Ehringhaus, a St. Mary's girl, and Bo McDonald, Zete junior, will be honored at Poopie's Pad with a combo party featuring "The Shadows."

The UNC and Duke chapters of Theta Chi will go picnicking Saturday in Durham, an annual affair. Later they'll return to Chapel Hill for a buffet supper.

REPORTED IN BREVARD

Phony Magazine Salesman Soliciting In Pharmacy's Name

A phony magazine salesman who is soliciting in the name of the Pharmacy School has been reported at Brevard.

The father of one of the pharmacy students from Brevard wrote his son that a young man, who called himself Smith and said he was in the UNC School of Pharmacy, had been selling magazine subscriptions there.

The son said that he knew the pharmacy student well. He said his parents had been killed in an accident and that he was working his way through Pharmacy School. The Smith boy is not in the Pharmacy School according to Dr. E. A. Brecht, dean.

This is the fourth instance in a two year period that this has happened. The phony salesman has worked the Chapel Hill area twice, in Salisbury, and now in Brevard.

"The School of Pharmacy," Dr. Brecht said, "has never authorized the use of its name for such purposes. Also, no student of the School of Pharmacy is engaged in selling magazine subscriptions. Any person selling magazine subscriptions who claims to have any connection with our school is giving false and misleading information."
