Packed Program Is Being Planned By Chipman

The 35th annual N. C. Press Institute will meet at UNC and Duke University, with James B. Reston of the New York Times a main speaker at the sessions Jan. 21-23.

Don Chipman of Winston-Salem, president of the North Carolina Press Association, has announced a packed program which will include also Senator Sam J. Ervin and columnist Leo Aikman of the Atlanta Constitution.

A tradition in North Carolina journalism, the Press Institute was begun here in 1925 at the invitation of President Harry W. Chase and UNC Extension Director Russell Grumman.

In 1935 Duke University began to be co-host with the University and the "Duke Dinner" has been an outstanding event of the three-day session.

UNC entertains at a luncheon at the Carolina Inn on Friday, Jan. 22, as well as at a reception at the Inn at 5 p.m. January 21.

The annual reception in honor of prize winners on various daily and non-daily newspapers is the first event on the Press Institute schedule at 5 p.m., Jan. 21. The awards winners will be honored jointly with Senator Ervin. Senator Ervin is the main speaker at the actual awards ceremonies at 9 p.m., Jan. 21 in Carroll Hall auditorium.

In accordance with arrangements which began 23 and 25 years ago, the UNC and Duke planners of events, in cooperation with the N. C. Press Association planners, include The University Extension Division at Chapel Hill, the School of Journalism and the News Bureau, and the Office of Public Relations at Duke University.

H. Clifton Blue of Aberdeen is chairman of the program committee for the Press Association.

GM Contest On Decorating Is Wednesday

The annual Christmas Decorating Contest is being sponsored this year by the GMAB House Committee. Judging for the event will take place Wednesday afternoon, and a trophy will be awarded for the best display on campus.

All fraternities, sororities, and dormitories are eligible for the award, committee co-chairmen Stewart Priddy and Wendy Hobson have announced.

Established Last Year
The House Committee was established last year to incorporate the functions of the Receptions and Decorations, Polls, and Special Events Committees. Any GM activity previously handled by these committees is now planned by the House Committee.

Operating on an increased budget this year, the committee is planning a series of student-faculty receptions for the spring, as well as the traditional lawn concerts. Bridge lessons and painting classes are also being planned.

Conducting Poll
The committee is also conducting a poll on the reasons for the apparent student apathy toward non-fraternity activities. This is the first of several polls to be conducted this year on various issues.
Miss Hobson is a junior from Charlottesville, Va. A Pi Phi pledge, she is majoring in Latin.
Priddy is a sophomore physics major from Lumberton.

Only Three Escapees Still Out

Three Others Caught By State Police In Kentucky

IVY BLUFF, N. C. (AP) — Only three fugitives—two of them bearing distinctive identifying marks—remained at large today, five days after they and 17 other felons cracked North Carolina's tough Ivy Bluff Prison.

Also missing are 10 of the 22 prison weapons taken in the spectacular escape Tuesday. The weapons include a sub-machinegun, 6 revolvers and 3 rifles.

Three Captured Friday
Three convicts were captured Friday night in Harlan, Ky., when, like rats in a maze they became lost and drove their stolen car in circles, attracting attention of the police. The three were Wiley Cummings, 35; John R. Kilbourne, 34; and Johnny Lee Miller, 27.

"Their big mistake," said Kentucky State Police Sgt. James Cox, "was getting onto the wrong highway and coming here. This is a mighty easy town to get lost in at night if you're a stranger."

Still free were James Cleveland McNeill, 28, Negro; Willie Bradford Shaw, 36, Negro; and Woodrow Stewart, 30, white.

Descriptions of Convicts
The FBI said that Shaw, a 6-foot, 210-235 pound life terner, has a 5 inch scar from the corner of his mouth to his left ear. Stewart, who was serving 18-20 years for highway robbery, has an irregularly shaped burn scar from the center of his head to his right ear. No hair grows on the scar. Stewart is 5-9 and weighs about 140 pounds. McNeill, serving 15 years for assault, housebreaking and escape, is 5-11 and weighs 185.

At Martinsville, Va., today, Charles W. (Yank) Stewart, the 52-year-old, was still loose, P. 3, Col 3

Dr. Harold Meyer Appointed To Youth Fitness Committee

He Will Participate In Formulating Plans For May 1-7

A University recreation authority, Dr. Harold D. Meyer, has been appointed to a national committee formulating plans for Youth Fitness Week, proclaimed by President Eisenhower for May 1-7.

Dr. Meyer was asked by Shane McCarthy, director of the national Youth Fitness Council, to participate in the planning. Emphasis in the project is on the need and availability of programs relating to the fitness of our present generation of youth and those to come.

In addition to this assignment, Dr. Meyer is continuing his leadership in recreation for the aging, and will address gatherings in Richmond, Va. and Washington, D. C. during the next 10 days.

Dr. Meyer will speak Tuesday before the Virginia Governor's Conference on the Aging. This is the State of Virginia's preparatory meeting for the White House Conference on the Aging, to be held in Washington in January 1961.

Pocket-Size Quarterly Appears

Sales Begin Tomorrow for All-Carolina Publication

The all-Carolina Quarterly, in its new, pocket-size format, goes on sale Monday at prominent local newsstands and at Graham Memorial.

Because of the heavy pre-publication interest shown in the new Quarterly, students are urged to obtain their copies quickly, the supply being limited.

Critical Article
Featured in the new Quarterly are a previously unpublished letter of Ezra Pound and a critical article on Pound by Charlotte's famed Harry Golden, subject of a current Broadway play.

For the first time in the Quarterly's history, all of the fiction and poetry entries are those of Carolina students.

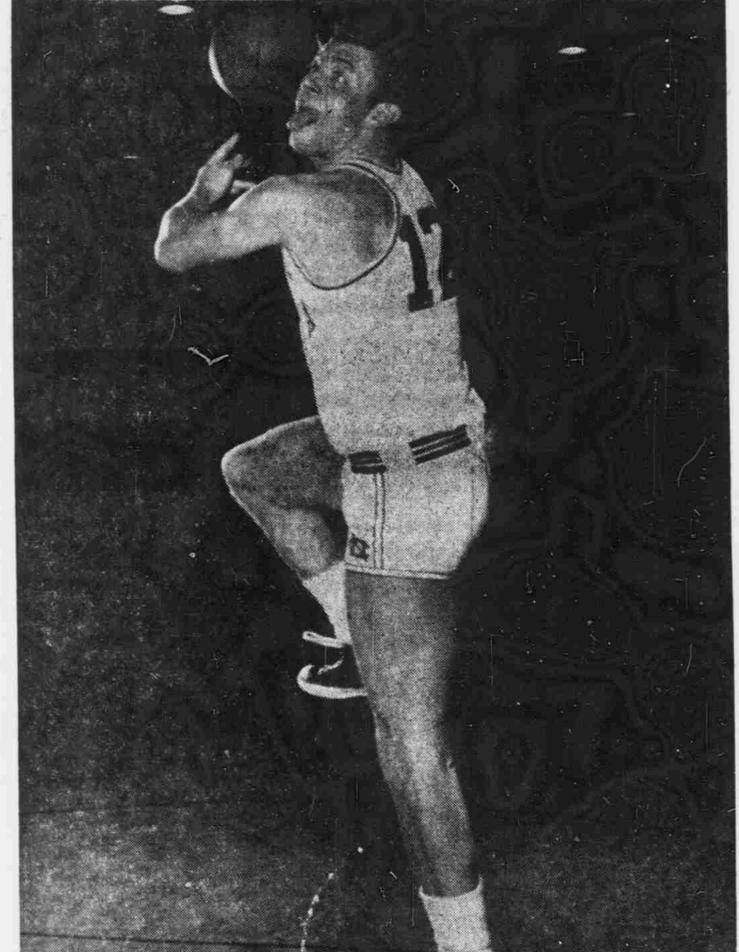

Leading off the fiction supplement is Howard Wheeler's satire: "Bureau-Cat on the Prowl;" or "It's Never Too Late to Prey." Wheeler is a sophomore majoring in English.

Fiction Supplement
Also in the fiction supplement is a character study of a fraternity man by Chuck Nisbet, graduate student in the Dramatics Arts department and a prominent Playmaker. Nisbet did honors work last year in the Creative Writing Department.

Parker Hodges, Ralph Dennis, James Conaway and Robert Fleissner are the Carolina poets represented.

Other Critical Articles
Rounding out the first issue are critical articles on Salinger's last New York story, "Seymour," and Faulkner's new novel, "The Mansion." The articles were written by members to the English faculty.

The cover was done by Bob Shannon, a senior majoring in creative arts.

HERO — Big Lee Shaffer is shown here grimacing as he hooks a shot in the basket. Lee led the Tar Heels to victory over Kansas State last night by scoring 24 points. Lee hit from almost every conceivable angle in helping Carolina remain on the unbeaten list. The Tar Heels now have won three in a row. In the first game of last night's doubleheader Kansas dumped N. C. State 80-58. Carolina's next hoop action will be in the Kentucky Invitational Tournament, Dec. 18-19.

Information For Rides Available

A ride bureau will be established Monday through Friday of this week by Alpha Phi Omega, service fraternity.

Students wanting rides home for the Christmas holidays and students who have rides available may turn in information at a desk to be maintained in Y lobby, 10 a.m.-1 p.m. each day this week.

APO brothers will then classify the information and inform students where rides are available.

Ride information will now be available at three places on the campus: The Daily Tar Heel, the Y-lobby bulletin board, and the APO booth in the Y-lobby.

"The fraternity's aim is to provide a needed service directly to the students by providing a thorough listing of rides and riders for the holidays," said project chairman Ted Seawell.

Exhibition Of Abstract Prints Being Shown In Planetarium

An unusual exhibition of abstract prints, done by a prominent Dutch artist-musician who lives in Springfield, Mass., are currently on exhibit for public viewing during December at the Morehead Planetarium's North Art Gallery.

Nardus Lessing is the creator of the monotypes, which express different moods in color, line and composition. Use of the complete spectrum of colors and intense freedom of movement are two characteristics of his work.

Lessing's creative method is also an unusual one: painting the themes on glass and then transferring them to paper by pressing it against the glass. Japanese prints inspired his interest in creating monotypes, and he previously has done still lifes, landscapes and figure studies.

A native of Amsterdam, Holland, he graduated from the Royal Dutch Conservatory and attended the Art Academy of The Hague. His teachers included Schluter and Jan Francken.

Dr. Brauer To Speak

The Chicago District Dental Society will have Dr. John C. Brauer of UNC as guest speaker for a Dec. 15 meeting at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago, Ill.

Dr. Brauer, dean of the Dentistry School, will discuss "Auxiliary Personnel in the Economy of Dental Practice." His talk will follow a workshop on auxiliary personnel at the society's regular monthly meeting.

Iran Preparing For President's Arrival Mon.

Arches Being Erected On Tehran Streets To Pave Path

IKE, SHAH TO CONFER

Eisenhower Will Speak To Joint Session Of Parliament

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN
Tehran, Iran, (AP)—Welcome arches are going up and police say they are looking for the greatest outpouring of Iranians in Tehran's history for President Eisenhower's arrival Monday.

This capital has a population of about two million. Police say they expect most of these citizens will try to get a glimpse of the visiting President.

Fifteen Arches Going Up
Fifteen arches are being erected along the streets the President will pass from the airport to the Shah's marble palace. Public statues are being festooned with bunting in the colors of the United States and Iran. Huge portraits of the Shah and Eisenhower are being erected on the fronts of public buildings.

Some buildings boast strings of colored electric or neon lights in Iran's green, white and red, and America's red, white and blue.

The President will arrive from India at 8:35 a.m. (12:05 a.m. Est) for a six-hour visit before flying on to Athens on his 22,000-mile peace and friendship mission.

Ike To Confer With Shah
The President will hold private talks with the Shah and will address a joint session of Parliament.

Eisenhower's visit gives the city a double holiday. Sunday, a normal working day in Moslem Iran, is Army Day. This celebrates the day Soviet troops withdrew from northern Iran 12 years ago.

Appropriately for the Eisenhower visit, the main reason the Soviet Union obeyed a U.N. directive to get out was Washington's commitment to support Iran with military force if necessary.

The President is expected to reiterate the U. S. pledge to help defend Iran against attack when he appears before parliament.

Note Of Cheer Added To GM

Party-Goers Decorate; Huge Wreath Featured

A festive note of cheer has been added to Graham Memorial by those who attended the Christmas Decorating Party Friday night.

A huge wreath, 38 feet in circumference interlaced with green lights, is suspended over the main entrance and is the focal point of the decorations.

Five red spotlights cast a warm glow over the back columns, giving the illusion of five great candles when viewed from a distance.

A large Christmas tree has been erected in the main lounge, gaily decorated with multi-colored lights, hundreds of strands of tinsel and numerous other ornaments.

The mantles in the main lounge are covered with greenery and topped by tall candles.

Another brightly decorated tree greets visitors entering by the South door.
