Bourguiba May Be Algerian Key

PARIS—President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia, a stocky North African leader with a toothpaste ad smile, may be the key man in bringing together the Algerian rebels and President Charles de Gaulle.

Bourguiba has walked a diplomatic tightrope on Algeria since he began harboring the rebel "provisional government" two years ago.

Since then his problems have increased and he is anxious to see them solved.

Hemingway Treated For Hypertension

ROCHESTER, Minn.—The Mayo Clinic revealed Wednesday it is treating world-famed novelist Ernest Hemingway, hospitalized since Nov. 30 under an assumed name, for hypertension.

Hemingway's condition "is regarded as satisfactory," the clinic said, and he is able to take strolls about Rochester.

But the clinic would not speculate on when the Nobel-Prize winning author could be released from St. Mary's Hospital, where he is registered under the assumed name of George Saviers.

Russia Fails To Recognize Laos Rule

WASHINGTON—Russia has told the United States it will not recognize the new pro-American government of Laos and intends to continue support of the Communist-led Pathet Lao rebels.

U. S. officials said today the Soviet stand was emphasized by Russian Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov during his 40-minute conference Tuesday with Secretary of State Christian A. Herter.

Hockey Game Set For Carolina's Toronto Exchanges

Toboggan rides and a hockey game await the 25 University of North Carolina students who will journey to Toronto University, Ontario, Canada, January 27 for the second half of a student government exchange program between the two schools.

The Tar Heels, selected by interviews with a student government selection board, will be the guests of 24 similarly selected Toronto students who visited UNC in the fall.

Coming during UNC's semester break, the Canadian trip will extend over the weekend. The Carolina students will leave for Toronto by chartered bus at noon, Jan. 27 and head for home the following Monday.

N. Y. Stopover

A stop-over in New York City on the return trip will leave just enough time for students to get back for the first day of the new semester.

The exchange program, begun in the fall of 1959, is partially financed by the student government of both schools.

Carolina delegates and their hometowns follow:

Eichmann & Political Misconceptions

Political Speeches Split The Spotlight

A lecture on political misconceptions and a talk on the Adolph Eichmann Trial will split the Carolina spotlight tonight.

Dr. Earle Wallace will deliver the Last Lecture on "Misconceptions in Politics" at 8 p.m. in Carroll Hall and Dr. Rashi Fein will speak on "The Trial of Adolph Eichmann" at 7:30 p.m. in Gerrard Hall.

Dr. Wallace, assistant professor of Political Science, is giving the last in this semester's series of last lectures, sponsored by the Student Government. The lecturers are requested to present the speech they would choose if they knew it would be the last they could make before dying.

Misconceptions which Dr. Wallace will discuss include these oft-repeated assertions:

1. "Democracy everywhere comes with a 'made in America' stamp."
2. "Government is a necessary evil and its continued growth must be opposed at every step."
3. "Most of the ills of society are the result of bungling and greed on the part of the politicians."
4. "The non-partisan, 'independent' voter is the salvation of Democracy."

Moral Issues

Dr. Fein, associate professor of economics, will discuss the moral issues involved in the Israeli trial of the ex-Nazi leader, charged with the death of millions of Jewish victims in war concentration camps.

APO's Will Run Book Exchange During Exams

Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, will operate a book exchange during exams in Y-Court.

Students who bring books for sale will set their own prices and APO will sell them.

Books may be brought to Y-Court Jan. 23-27, 11 a.m.-1 p.m. Actual sale of the books will take place Feb. 1-8, 9 a.m.-3 p.m. in Y-Court.

Student Government has been working with APO on this project to provide students with a more satisfactory way of selling textbooks.

U. Of Georgia Students Accept Ruling With Detached Calmness

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — The lesson for Wednesday was "human behavior" and psychology professor Milton Hodge found himself in the dual role of teacher and student.

He sat at his desk waiting patiently while his students straggled in and took their seats.

Sharply at 9 a.m. the classroom door was closed, Hodge picked up his attendance list and began reading the roll.

"Charlayne Hunter," he finally called.

"Here," was the clear reply. With that announcement 175 years of segregation came to an end at the University of Georgia.

Similar Scene

Across the campus a similar scene was unfolding at the biology lab, where Hamilton Holmes, another Negro, was reporting for classes for the first time.

Students accepted the integration with detached calmness.

There were a few jeers and shouted insults, but for the most part the two Negroes were accepted into the college routine without incident.

Political Intern Posts Available For This Summer

The Political Studies Program announces a competition for five to seven Politics Internships for this summer.

Each intern is placed in the office of a United States Senator, Congressman or on the staff of a congressional committee, and receives a stipend of $500.

Interns work for a period of ten weeks (approximately June 1-August 15) and must live in a student rooming house selected by the Program.

Juniors, exceptionally well qualified sophomores and graduate students may apply. They must have sufficient and appropriate course work in political science and approximately a "B" average.

Anyone interested should see Dr. Matthews, 207 Caldwell Hall. All applications must be completed on or before February 5.

DRIVE-INS LEND SUPPORT

CARBONDALE, Ill. (UPI) — Local businessmen got added support Tuesday in their drive to have Southern Illinois University relax its ban against letting students drive cars. Latest to side with the group was the operator of a local drive-in movie.

UNC Greeks Sell Algerian Coupons To Assist Refugees With Food, Medical Supplies

RACHID BENOUMEUR, an Algerian refugee studying at U.N.C., is one of the major forces behind the Algerian coupon drive.

Panhellenic, IFC Combine In Sale Of Coupons At 25c Per This Week

The Panhellenic Council and the Interfraternity Council are selling coupons this week to raise money for food, medical care and scholarships for Algerian refugee students.

Money obtained from selling the coupons at 25 cents each will be used by the International Student Conference to help the financial problems of students who have fled Algeria to Tunisia and Morocco because of the colonial war.

Marjorie Crane of Alpha Gamma Delta, Bill Riley of Phi Delta Theta and Chip King of Phi Gamma Delta are coordinating the sales for the ISC and World University Service.

The Panhell began selling coupons last week, and the IFC began this week. The sale is campuswide, and it will continue until all coupons are sold.

Refugee Students

Two Algerian refugee students are studying at UNC now. They are Rachid Benuameur, a comparative literature student, and Bachir Ould-Rouis, a public health student.

Each has a National Student Association scholarship.

Unlike these men, most of the refugee students are trying to continue their education with little or no means of support.

The governments of Tunisia and Morocco are helping with what they can, but more is needed according to the INS, a confederation of 70 national unions of students including the NSA.

Most Algerians

Most of the Algerian refugee students live four or more in a room and receive little or no medical care. Typical subsistence level for a number of the students is estimated at $3.50 a month.

A doctor who cares for many of the refugee students in Tunisia has said, according to ISC, "There is a complete lack of medicine for intestinal disorders, for care of eyes and otology (ear diseases) and this lack is all the more dire in a country where dysentery and trachoma (contagious eye disease) are common."

Yearly Inspection Of AFROTC Unit Today, Friday

The Air Force ROTC unit at the University will undergo its annual inspection by the Air University on the 12th and 13th of January. Conducting the inspection will be Major Frank C. Herron of the Air University.

"Each AFROTC detachment is inspected annually to assist detachment personnel in solving problems that may have arisen during the year," commented Major William Locke, the detachment's Executive Officer.

"The inspectors will personally brief our personnel on latest AFROTC developments, techniques, and procedures, and will make sure that the detachment's procedures are in accordance with command directives."

Legislature Holds Special Session Tonight At 7:30

A special session of the Student Legislature has been called for 7:30 tonight on the fourth floor of New East, according to Bob Sevier, speaker of the Legislature.

Sevier stated that the revised Student Government Constitution has just returned from the Rules Committee and that the special session will make further considerations on the constitution.

The revised constitution has been in the rules committee, headed by Joe Oppenheimer, since December 8.

Another bill concerning the freshman scholarship awards will also be up for consideration.

The next regular meeting of the Legislature is scheduled for February 2.

Dr. Mason Directs 'Traviata' Opening Here Saturday Night

BY NANCY BARR

When the first notes of Verdi's "La Traviata" soar over the audience Saturday and Sunday nights, much of the success of the opera will be due to its director, Dr. Wilton Mason.

The UNC production of "La Traviata" will feature the University Symphony and University Chorus under the direction of Dr. Mason, as well as New York City Opera star Phyllis Curtin, who will sing the title role of Violetta.

Besides directing the opera, Dr. Mason has helped in publicity and ticket sales, making it possible for students to purchase $1 or $2 tickets at the Memorial Hall doors the nights of the productions.

Tickets are available all week in Hill Hall.

Mason Designs

A series of innovations designed by Dr. Mason will modernize the "La Traviata" sets in the UNC production. Instead of using the usual heavy, period decor, Dr. Mason has dispensed with most of the scenery and has substituted in their places raised platforms and a series of modular units.

The platforms and units will be used functionally throughout the four acts of the opera.

The gray cube-shaped units will merely suggest props and scenery. For example, one unit will be used for a bed in one act and a sofa in another.

"We hope that this simplification," Dr. Mason says, "will throw the emphasis of the production where we feel it belongs—on Verdi's great music, which is, after all, the thing which brings life and conviction to this old story."

Scenery and Props

Because of this simplification, most of the scenery and prop effects will be achieved by lighting, he said. "Through different light concentrations and spotlights following the principals, the scenery become superfluous."

Another modernization in the opera due to Dr. Mason is the use of modern dress. "The opera was presented in modern dress in Verdi's day and has become a period piece solely due to the lapse in time from then to now," he said.

Since the chorus appears on stage only twice during the four acts, and both of their scenes are gala parties, the chorus members will wear modern evening dress consisting of formal gowns for the girls and tuxedos for the men.

Song In Italian

The opera will be sung in the original Italian, again through another one of the director's innovations — phonetic sound sheets.

Although the words on the sound sheets look like garbled foreign language, when they are pronounced as they are written, clear Italian words are formed.

Designed with this intention, English speaking singers are insured of always singing on clear vowel sounds.

Dr. Mason says of the phonetic sheets, "Among other things, this has virtually amounted to a semester's instruction in Italian."

Carolina Protests...

... NCAA In Effigy

Some 200 UNC students, protesting the probation placed on their basketball team, burned the NCAA in effigy Tuesday night.

The burning and hanging took place in front of Winston Dorm directly in front of Woollen Gym, where the crowd from the Wake-NC basketball game was dispersing.

The dummy had hung from a dorm window since the announcement that morning that the NC team, winner of the 1960 Dixie Classic and at present the number 7 team in the nation, could not compete in the NCAA playoffs this year.

There was no evidence of violence, with some cheering and a few freerackers thrown into the fire.

Carolina Blazers Sold Wednesday

Carolina blazers will be fitted and sold next Wednesday, 10 a.m., 5:30 p.m. in Roland Parker Lounge, Graham Memorial.

Sponsored by the Society of Janus, this is the third blazer sale of the season.

A representative of Robert Rollins, Inc. of New York will fit coats to the customer's individual style and size.

Blazer Sale Chairman Dave Alexander noted that this would be the last opportunity this school year to purchase this official school blazer.
