KENNEDY HOLDS CONFERENCE ON RUSSIANS

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy, U.S. Ambassador to Moscow Llewellyn E. Thompson and other top echelon advisers held another White House conference Saturday on how to deal with the Russians.

A spokesman said the discussion was "more or less an exploration of views" and was not intended "to reach decisions or chart policy."

CASTRO 'CONCERNED' ABOUT FIGHTING

HAVANA—Premier Fidel Castro has rushed to central Cuba, where a band of insurgents in the Escambray Mountains are inflicting heavy casualties on his inexperienced militia, a high army source said Saturday.

The source said Castro left Friday night for Santa Clara with his field commanders after Maj. Dermidio Escalona reported he was "gravely concerned" because his militiamen were suffering between 20 and 30 casualties daily in guerrilla fighting.

KHRUSHCHEV TIGHTENS LAWS

MOSCOW—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has urged "more severe laws against drunkards, speculators and parasites," the government newspaper Izvestia said today.

Izvestia reported Khrushchev's Feb. 11 speech during his tour of the province of Voronezh, in which he claimed that the Soviet Union "ranks second in the world with regard to its economic potential and leads the world in the field of culture."

STRIKE SNARLS WEEKEND TRAVEL

NEW YORK—A "wildcat" flight engineers walkout touched off by a strike against Pan American World Airways was halted Saturday after snarling much of the nation's weekend air travel for more than 18 hours.

Thousands of would-be passengers were stranded or forced to find alternate transportation in both domestic and overseas travel.

TERMINAL SEGREGATION FORBIDDEN

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—All methods of racial segregation in Birmingham's terminal station have been ordered "obliterated" by a three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. District Court of Appeals, United Press International learned Saturday.

The court reversed a district judge's ruling Friday which upheld the Birmingham terminal's practice of allowing Negroes in interstate travel to occupy a white waiting room but segregating Negroes traveling within the state.

INDONESIANS ATTACK AMBASSADOR'S HOME

JAKARTA, Indonesia—A mob of Indonesian demonstrators shouting "hands off the Congo" attacked the U.S. ambassador's residence here Saturday, smashing windows, destroying furniture and lighting a huge bonfire in the front yard.

Rock-throwing Indonesian students also attacked the Belgian Embassy, breaking windows and ripping down the flag in demonstrations they said were aimed at avenging the "assassination" of Patrice Lumumba.

Refuses To Talk Politics, But...

Exiled Peron Still Getting The Vote

MADRID (UPI)—Exiled dictator Juan D. Peron declines to talk politics from his Madrid headquarters, but he continues to get out the vote in Argentina.

He last demonstrated this power in this month's off-year elections for one seat each in the Argentine Senate and Chamber of Deputies.

Peron's followers obediently followed his instructions to cast blank ballots, and about 242,000 of the 1,500,000 votes cast were blank.

Less Than Last Year

The Peronista total, however, was 100,000 less than last year's election count of blank votes.

Observers said it was obvious many Peron supporters voted for Alfredo Palacios, pro-castro Socialist candidate who won a seat in the Senate.

It was still uncertain whether this group has given up its allegiance to Peron for good.

One trend that has been established in Argentina, however, is a return to the Socialist fold by many left-wing voters who supported Peron when he first came to power.

Peron Willing

Peron is willing to talk to newsmen but carefully avoids any specific comment on Argentine politics in order not to create problems for the Spanish government.

He also is never precise on his estimate of his chances for a comeback.

"We are in no hurry," he says. "If it is not today, it will be tomorrow, or the next month, or within a year."

People Favor

Peron claims that 70 per cent of the Argentine people favor his return, or at least a return of his doctrines.

He said the last national elections showed a two million-vote preference for the Peronistas.

In the February by-election, it was noted, the voting was confined to Buenos Aires, traditionally not a Peronista stronghold.

Most of the dictator's strength is in the provinces, especially Buenos Aires Province.

Its biggest concentration is in the so-called Peronista belt around the capital, a district of heavy industries and the homes of industrial workers.

Peronistas Demonstrate

Peron supporters did not limit their backing to the ballot box in the recent voting.

KIM NOVAK

Bands of them roamed the streets of Buenos Aires staging demonstrations. One group stoned the building of an opposition newspaper, shouting "We are Peronistas, not Reds or Fascists."

Peron's life in exile, by contrast, is quiet.

He arrived in Spain Jan. 29, 1960, for what appeared to be a temporary stay of two or three months. But he has no apparent plans now to leave.

Comes To Seville

He came to Seville, southern Spain, from Ciudad Trujillo, the Dominican Republic, his last exile home. From Seville, he moved to a summer resort near Malaga, and then last spring came to Madrid, where he has an apartment in one of the most expensive quarters of the city.

Peron never is seen in night clubs. He often goes to the theater or to a movie, and he spends three hours a day walking—"It keeps me fit."

Writes To Supporters

He spends his days in correspondence with his supporters. Occasionally, he receives visitors in his apartment.

Four aides came here with Peron. Only one, his pretty blonde secretary Isabel Martinez, remains with him.

The first to leave was Alberto Campos, a leading figure of the underground Peronista board. Campos is believed in hiding somewhere in Argentina.

Friend Leaves

John Del Re, an Italian-American photographer described as a "personal friend" was left for an unknown destination.

Americo Barrios, whose real name is Luis Maria Abramonte, is reported to be in Montevideo, Uruguay.

Barrios, Argentine writer and former director of the Peronista party organ Democracia, was sent to Montevideo by Peron to heal a break in the party ranks in Argentina, just across the River Plate from Montevideo.

Peron Elected

Peron was elected president of Argentina in 1946 and was ousted by a three-day revolt of the armed forces in September, 1955.

He was granted asylum aboard a Paraguayan gunboat in Buenos Aires harbor and later lived in exile in Venezuela and the Dominican Republic.

Churches Support Integrated Theatres

Two separate church groups recently expressed their anti-segregation feelings to the managers of the picketed Carolina and Varsity theaters.

The Baptist Student Union passed a resolution last month, favoring integration, and sent copies to the local theater and restaurant managers.

Chapel Hill's Community Church circulated a theater integration petition among its congregation last Sunday and sent copies of the petition to the theater managers.

The BSU's resolution expressed appreciation and continued support to those Chapel Hill concerns which had already integrated and urged other businesses to follow their lead.

Resolution Claims

The resolution claimed that "Christian tradition" compelled the group to "support actively all endeavors" which led toward recognition of racial equality.

Last Sunday was Brotherhood Sunday in most of the churches in the country.

The Community Church took that opportunity to pass a petition among its congregation reading, "I request the managers of the Chapel Hill theaters to open their movies to all on an equal basis."

159 Sign Petition

One hundred and fifty-nine people signed the petition.

The vote was not an official vote of the congregation, but according to the chairman of the church's board of officers, it was a "consensus."

Friday 'Encouraged' By Action Of Budget Commission

By JIM CLOTFELTER

President William Friday of the Consolidated University told the Daily Tar Heel yesterday that he was "encouraged by the action of the Advisory Budget Commission."

Friday was referring specifically to the Commission's action in recommending that the General Assembly appropriate $3.2 million to raise faculty salaries at the three member schools of the C.U.

On February 9 the Commission's $1.5 million biennium budget was presented to the legislature.

Gov. Terry Sanford addressed the legislature later that day, saying that he would ask more for education than the Commission recommended.

He is scheduled to speak to the legislature later in the session.

The Commission's recommendations also called for $13.2 million (out of $33.2 million requested by the C.U.) to be appropriated for capital improvement expenditures at the three schools.

Friday said that the capital improvement recommendations were "good . . . They fit into the long-range program of the C.U."

The 40-year-old C.U. president, who has been outspokenly against student cost increases from the time of his being named president five years ago, pointed out that the Commission's recommendations will raise student costs considerably.

The Commission recommended that tuition for North Carolina students be raised by $25 per year, for out-of-staters $100 per year.

In addition, the self-liquidating debt will be increased by $2.6 million, if the legislature approves the recommendations.

Students in the three C.U. schools already have a $13.5 million self-liquidating debt to pay off.

UNC's portion of the old self-liquidating debt is $4,875,000 borrowed for building dormitories and $2,000,000 for building apartments for married students.

All this money has been borrowed since 1956.

One million dollars of the prospective new self-liquidating debt must be paid off by Carolina students. This is the portion of the $2.6 million needed for a new student undergraduate library, which is not to be included in a bond issue.

If the student union recommendation is approved by the legislature, and (the bond issue portion) by the people in a general election, student fees will have to be increased by approximately $9 per year in order to start paying off the debt.

Fees will probably be increased somewhere from $14 to $19 per year to collect the money needed to run the student union.

There will probably be no increase in room rent or any other student costs.

The tuition increases, which President Friday thinks the legislature will approve, are supposed to net approximately two million dollars for the C.U. over the biennium.

Last November the State Board of Higher Education caused a flurry of controversy by radically cutting the C.U.'s budget requests.

A list follows, showing how much more the Advisory Budget Commission recommended in each area than did the Board.

HIGHER FACULTY SALARIES

$475,264

ADDITIONAL PERSONNEL

$69,984

(The Board recommended no money at all for new personnel.)

NEW EQUIPMENT

$4,000

ADDITIONAL SUPPLIES AND EXPENSES

$10,000

REGIONAL EDUCATION

$4,500

LONG-RANGE PLANNING

$20,000

TOTAL

Stevenson Wins Battle With UN Commission's Release

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI)—Malaya came to the aid of the faltering U.N. Congo troop operation Saturday with an offer of 800 more soldiers.

But Ghana demanded that the troubled African country be put under "all African" control with all white officials removed.

Malaya's offer to bolster the U.N. troop command, riddled by defections by nations supporting slain ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba, was gratefully accepted by Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

Ghana's President Kwame Nkrumah proposed a seven-phase plan calling for an African U.N. Command, disarming of all Congolese armed factions, by force if necessary, and removal of all foreign diplomatic missions until order was restored under African leadership.

Flexible Proposal

Such a proposal, Nkrumah said, would be flexible enough to keep Asian forces in the U.N. Command but all whites, such as the Swedes and Irish, would have to go.

Nkrumah offered to come to New York to help organize the plan.

Behind the scenes, U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson won a diplomatic tug of war when the 18-nation Congo advisory group decided to release a report proposing stronger U.N. action in the Congo.

The report was drawn up by an 11-nation conciliation commission to the Congo.

Sought Release

Stevenson sought release of the report against Russian insistence it be kept secret. Sources said at Saturday's two hour session Guinea strongly backed Russia's stand. But Stevenson had his way.

The advisory group agreed to make the conciliation commission report available to all U.N. delegations with a note stating that the 1,000-word document reflected the opinion of the conciliation commission delegates, not necessarily that of their home governments.

The conciliation delegates came from Ethiopia, Ghana, India, Liberia, Nigeria, Morocco, Pakistan, The Sudan, Tunisia,
