

Founded Feb. 23, 1893

CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 11, 1964

The Weather
JUST LOVELY

United Press International Service

ITEMS

Venezuela Invites Dr. Gil As Guest

A UNC professor of political science has been invited to be a special guest of the Venezuelan government at the inauguration ceremonies of their incumbent president, Raúl Leoni, Wednesday in Caracas, Venezuela.

Federico G. Gil, who is currently serving as director of the Institute of Latin American Studies at the University will be in Caracas for the inauguration week ceremonies, March 9-14.

President-elect Leoni, of the Venezuelan Action Democratica Party, will succeed Romulo Betancourt in Venezuela's highest elective office. The Action Democratica Party is one of Venezuela's three leading political parties.

Gil has been a close personal friend of President Betancourt for over 20 years. When President Betancourt visited Washington, D. C., last year for meetings with the late President Kennedy, Gil was invited to join his party.

President Of CWC Interviews Thursday

The Carolina Women's Council will hold interviews for presidencies this week.

Interviews will be held Thursday in the Grail Room of GM from 2:30-4 p.m.

Judy Freider, present chairman of the Council, announced yesterday that interested girls should pick up a short information form at the office of the Dean of Women. Both non-council and council members may apply.

Any girl unable to interview Thursday should contact Miss Freider in 138 W. Cobb by Wednesday.

Ex-Kentucky Gov. Speaks Here Soon

Bert T. Combs, former Kentucky governor, will speak here Monday afternoon.

Anyone interested is invited to attend the session from 2:45-15 in 203 Howell Hall.

The former governor and Mark T. Ethridge, now a journalism instructor here, planned the exchange lecture whereby Ethridge will lecture at the University of Massachusetts and Combs will come here.

Combs will discuss Public Affairs and Newspapers and Ethridge will speak on Newspapers and Public Affairs.

Governor Combs is presently teaching a seminar in Public Affairs at the University of Massachusetts.

Ethridge, the former executive of the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times in Louisville, Kentucky, is now editor of Newsday in addition to his teaching.

Drama Tryouts Set For Saturday

Tryouts for seven outdoor dramas will be held at the Forest Theater on Saturday from noon til 5 p.m.

Anyone 18 years of age or older may tryout for parts and positions and is expected to be available for the entire production season.

Auditions and interviews are being held for actors, singers, dancers and technicians for the 1964 season. Call-backs for actors whom directors may want to hear a second time will be held Sunday.

The companies auditioning are

(Continued on Page Three)

Gene Wilson of Gastonia, North Carolina Easter Seal Child, beams as Governor Terry Sanford presents a proclamation designating March as Easter Seal Month. Onlookers are left to right) Clarence E. Whitefield, President of the North Carolina Society for Crippled Children and Adults; Duke Basketball Coach Vic Bubas, North Carolina Easter Seal Chairman; and UNC Basketball Co-captain Mike Cooke of Mount Airy, State Youth Chairman of the Easter Seal Campaign.

SAE's Implicated In Bus Vandalism

By JOHN GREENBACKER

Members of the pledge class of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, returning from an outing at Sweetbrier College in Lynchburg, Virginia, allegedly did "extensive damage" to a chartered Trailways bus last Saturday.

Dean of Men William Long said the 22 pledges were "having a party on the bus," and they forced inner ceiling panels up to the roof, tore up 13 seat cushions, broke out windows and destroyed the panels and door assembly of the rest room.

Long said apparently three or four of the pledges "went off the deep end" and the others tried with little success to stop them.

Damage to the bus has been reported at $750, but Trailways officials declined to discuss the matter.

A Trailways information officer in Raleigh said, "Our contracts stipulate that any charter party defacing the bus will be billed for damages." The company loses $50 each day the bus is out of commission.

The bus has been inspected and photographed by Campus Police Chief Arthur Beaumont and members of the Attorney General's staff. Evidence of drinking on the bus was present officials said.

Long said the decision has not been made whether to prosecute the offenders as individuals or to take action against the house through the Interfraternity Council Court.

"I am quite disappointed that some members of the group could not restrain the others," Long said. "It is unfortunate that this had to happen during a year in which fraternity behavior has been good."

Long stressed, "This is not just a phenomenon of fraternity people," but said that the offenders were identified as a group.

Sam Applegate, president of SAE, told a DTH reporter, "I don't feel you all should be trying the case before it comes up in court."

Saying the incident "wasn't intended," Applegate remarked, "Of course we're sorry."

"This was not a house sponsored activity," Applegate said. "The money came from the pockets of those who went on the trip, and they plan to make full restitution for the damages."

"I wish it had been handled differently," he said. "The bus company could have contacted us rather than calling the University administration first."

When asked about the bus driver's reaction to the proceedings, the Raleigh official said, "Our drivers are all experienced men."

BULLETIN

CONCORD N.H. (UPI) — Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge appeared early Tuesday night to be the winner of New Hampshire's Republican presidential primary. He steadily amassed a lead over Sen. Barry Goldwater and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

On the basis of early returns, Lodge—10,000 miles away in Saigon and not a declared candidate—recorded margins in bellwether communities and made exceptionally good showings in territory considered favorable to the two declared candidates.

DTH Staffers On SP Panel

Here's your chance!

Two members of the Daily Tar Heel staff will sit on a panel discussion of "What's Wrong With The DTH" tonight at a Student Party meeting in Gerhard Hall at 7:30.

DTH Co-Editor Dave Ethridge and Managing Editor Fred Seely will participate along with one residence hall and one fraternity resident.

SP Chairman Paul Dickson also has asked that anyone interested in running for a student government office, NSA delegate or Student Legislature should contact himself, Lanny Shuff, Jeff Davis or Phil Baddour as soon as possible.

Katie S. Loucheim, deputy secretary of state for Public Affairs, will speak at the 14th Annual Conference on World Affairs in Memorial Hall.

She will deliver the keynote address tomorrow at the World Affairs program sponsored by the North Carolina Council on World Affairs.

In addition to her government role as deputy secretary, Mrs. Loucheim is a member of the Women's National Press Club, and the Women's National Democratic Club and has written several articles for journals and newspapers.

Speaking also at the meeting will be Zenon Rossides, United Nations ambassador from Cyprus and Dr. Eugene Pfaff, professor in the Department of History.

Officers of the North Carolina Council on World Affairs, representing 20 men and women's clubs in the state, will participate in the program.

Students are to be admitted free to the program as guests of the Speaker Ban Law was held, and all aspects of its influence were discussed.

LONDON (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth II gave birth Tuesday night to her fourth child, a boy. The infant prince will be third in the line of succession to the British throne.

Both the 37-year-old queen and her baby were reported doing well following the delivery in Buckingham Palace.

Crowds outside the palace broke into cheers at the news of the birth. The crowd, mostly women, had started gathering as word spread that the physicians had been summoned to the palace.

A team of five physicians and a midwife assisted in the royal delivery, which occurred at 8:20 p.m. (3:20 p.m., EST).

The group was headed by Sir John Peel, the queen's surgeon-gynecologist who had also assisted at the birth of Elizabeth's three other children—Prince Charles, 15-year-old heir to the throne; Princess Anne, 13, and Prince Andrew, 4.

The baby will be next in line of succession after Charles and Andrew. Princess Anne goes from third to fourth in line.

A medical bulletin signed by all five doctors who were summoned to the palace in the evening said:

"The queen was delivered of a son at 8:20 this evening. Her majesty and the infant prince are both well."

By MAT FRIEDMAN

This year, for the first time in its history, the UNC School of Medicine has not lost a single student. Everyone who started in September, according to Dr. John B. Graham, is still here.

"Not a single student in any class," says Dr. Graham, chairman of the Medical School's Student Advisory Board, "has flunked out or left. All freshmen are on hand despite the fact that four or five usually drop out. There is generally a seven to ten per cent mortality rate."

You would be surprised at how many petty things are brought to our attention. Now we can easily correct them and make things easier for everyone. I think we are probably in better contact with the students than we have ever been."

"Under the system," he says, "each class has its own faculty advisor, or 'shepherd,' who stays with the class until it graduates. The plan gives faculty members a chance to look at the student's point of view. It is a formal mechanism where suggestions are constantly going back and forth."

"We do everything we can to keep a student in," he says, "and try to give him all the help he needs. We would like to have every student graduate."

In connection with this problem, notes Dr. Graham, who has his own ideas on the subject, the School is reexamining its curriculum and will probably make some basic changes in the near future.

"I think," he says, "everyone would be better off if the lower fifth of the class could take the usual first two years in three. We should recognize that some students are different than others. Many would work much better if they weren't faced with such an overwhelming volume of work."

"Under the present system, we make or ask, certain students to repeat portions of the first two years. I think more should be told at an early stage that they have to do this. Many would be reluctant to take an extra year for financial reasons, but I think they would get a lot more out of it."

"Many medical students think they have to work 80 hours a week to justify themselves. I think it would be much more productive if the work were spread out, and would make for a much better living situation. Right now, a student has to work 60-70 hours a week just to stay even."

"Some people think such a system would just give the student a chance to take things easy, but if you had to pay the tuition yourself, I think you would take it seriously."

SPRING HAS SPRUNG—The first warm breezes of Spring swept over the campus this week bringing out the first flowers of the season, and giving way to thoughts of the beach, lawn parties, the beach, convertibles, the beach, baseball and of course—the beach.

—Photo by Jim Wallace

Case Mysteriously Put Off By Cole

By JEFF DICK

Chapel Hill Recorder's Court Solicitor Roy Cole mysteriously moved for nol pros in the case of Clyde R. Jones, charged with disorderly conduct stemming from a racial demonstration which took place here in early February.

The nol pros is, in effect, an indefinite continuance of the case.

The Solicitor made the motion shortly before the adjournment of court yesterday. Cole told Judge William S. Stewart he would like the court to "nol pros the case with leave."

"This man," Cole said, "was helping police load demonstrators into a van. They had to charge him with something."

The warrant charging Jones with disorderly conduct stated he had used "vile and profane language in public." Jones was arrested after police had warned him to leave demonstrators alone. A scuffle occurred when a policeman attempted to escort Jones from the area. The scuffle was not mentioned on the warrant.

Although the police officer who signed the warrant was in the building when the case was brought up, he was not summoned to the courtroom.

The officer, Captain C. E. Durham, did not know that the solicitor was going to request a nol pros.

Cole adamantly refused to state his reasons for the motion, both after court adjourned and later in a telephone conversation.

Judge William S. Stewart said he grants a motion of nol pros with leave "as a matter of course whenever the solicitor requests it."

Captain Durham said he intended to "ask the solicitor to put the case back on the docket." Durham said he would "like to see the case tried."

A secretary in the office of the Clerk of Court said that "when a case is decided 'nol pros with leave,' it doesn't usually come up again."

Durham said yesterday, however, that he intended to reopen the case within the next couple of weeks.

Need A Job? Get One Here

If you are a senior girl looking for a job, but don't know what kind of job you want, the Placement Bureau is for you.

Interviews are being held now, but the number of senior girls who have been interviewed is very low.

The Job Placement Bureau on campus is located on the second floor of Gardner.

The staff will give you questionnaires for their personnel record and then arrange to interview you personally. After this, they will try to suggest job opportunities and help you arrange an on-campus interview with some of the many visiting companies.

If you desire an unusual job or a specific location, they have the information or access to it. Another important source of information is the bulletin board outside the Placement Bureau offices. All job openings are posted there.

Boycotters Boycotted

"We reserve the right to refuse service to anyone" has taken a new twist here.

The Chapel Hill Florists, which has sold flowers on a non-discriminatory basis, now refuses to serve a number of townspeople and students.

Mostly white, the won't-be-served list group includes advocates of a boycott of segregated businesses in town and a few others for undisclosed reasons, owner Manning Simons said Saturday.

The list came to light Friday when Dave Ethridge, co-editor of the pro-boycott Daily Tar Heel, walked into the shop to buy some flowers. He was refused service and referred to another florist's shop. Ethridge's name is on the list, posted in the store, which instructs employees not to serve them or allow them on the premises.

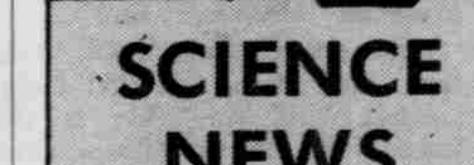

Simons, the Chapel Hillian whose suits delayed the fluoridation of Chapel Hill's water supply for several years, declined to give the names on the list, "until I see my lawyer."

A reliable report said the list included several faculty members, leaders of the Committee of Concerned Citizens and the Chapel Hill Freedom Committee, editors of the Tar Heel and the Lincoln High School newspaper, and officials of the campus YM-YWCA.

Of last year's female applicants, 33 per cent took jobs in North Carolina, 55 per cent left the state and 12 per cent went to graduate school.

Of the graduates who chose to work out-of-state, the majority went to Washington, Atlanta, New York and Richmond. Of those girls who chose to stay in North Carolina, the largest group chose to stay in the Chapel Hill-Durham area, and the second largest group took jobs in either Charlotte or Raleigh.

Medical School Bats A Thousand

is at least partly responsible for its losing no students.

"Under the system," he says, "each class has its own faculty advisor, or 'shepherd,' who stays with the class until it graduates. The plan gives faculty members a chance to look at the student's point of view. It is a formal mechanism where suggestions are constantly going back and forth."

"We do everything we can to keep a student in," he says, "and try to give him all the help he needs. We would like to have every student graduate."

In connection with this problem, notes Dr. Graham, who has his own ideas on the subject, the School is reexamining its curriculum and will probably make some basic changes in the near future.

"I think," he says, "everyone would be better off if the lower fifth of the class could take the usual first two years in three. We should recognize that some students are different than others. Many would work much better if they weren't faced with such an overwhelming volume of work."