DTH Editorship

Interviews Soon

Want to change the Tar Heel? Interviews for the editorship will be held Wednesday by the Selections Board of the Publications Board in Woodhouse Room at Graham Memorial.

Although the editor is chosen in the spring elections all candidates must be interviewed and approved by the Selections Board for their name to appear on the official ballot.

The editor and business manager of the Yackety Yack will also be chosen. Experience for both of these jobs is necessary. The salary for Yack editor is $750 per year and for business manager is $600.

The Board will also review the Joint Advertising plan with which the DTH has been experimenting for the past three months and will decide whether or not to abandon it.

Teachers For Africa

Wanted By AID

A representative of the U.S. Agency for International Development will be here today recruiting students for possible teaching positions in East African secondary schools.

Miss Kathleen Isker, representing the Teachers for East Africa Project (TEA) will conduct the recruiting program in cooperation with the Teacher's College of Columbia University.

The program is an effort by the United States, the United Kingdom, Kenya, Tanganyika and Uganda to meet urgent educational needs of East Africa.

Professionally trained college graduates with a background in biology, chemistry, English, geography, history, mathematics, or physics will be eligible for the program. No education.

Race Mediation Committee Decides To Keep On Trying

The Board of Aldermen Monday night took the first of possible steps to curtail the future use of suburban commercial zoning in the Town's planning area.

The Aldermen called a special public hearing April 13 to consider three zoning requests and to establish a policy on the future use of suburban commercial zoning. The Board also requested the Planning Board to make a recommendation at the hearing.

Mayor Sandy McClamroch told the Aldermen that the Mediation Committee, of which he is chairman, would not disband because of lack of progress, but would consider a new course of action at a meeting tonight.

The nine-member committee was established in January to negotiate the voluntary desegregation of the Town's holdout businesses.

In reply to a question from Board member Mrs. Adelaide Walters, Mayor McClamroch said, "The committee is not happy with the results it has gotten, but has decided to stay in existence. Committee members will work as individuals and be on call for negotiations if the need arises. He said the Committee had not received replies to some letters mailed to owners of segregated businesses.

Meet Starts Today On World Affairs

Zennon Rossides, ambassador from Cyprus to the United Nations and to the United States, and Katie S. Louchheim, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs, are the principal speakers for the 14th Annual Conference on World Affairs today at UNC.

Ambassador Rossides and Deputy Assistant Secretary Louchheim will speak in Memorial Hall at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. respectively. The theme of the conference is "World Peace."

Seven discussion groups will be devoted to these subjects: "Economic Equilibrium;" "Disarmament;" "World Law;" "Racial Justice;" "The Role of Youth;" "The East-West Dialogue;" "The Spiritual Forces." An address will be given by Dr. Eugene E. Pfaff, professor of history, The University of North Carolina at Greensboro, in the afternoon.

The institute will begin with

Preyer Selects UNC Student For Campaign

Phil Baddour, majority floor leader in Student Legislature, was one of three student leaders picked Tuesday as area organizers in gubernatorial candidate Richardson Preyer's student campaign.

The Goldsboro senior will travel to colleges and universities in central North Carolina to organize student support for Preyer.

Charles Shaffer Jr., Chapel Hill senior, was picked as a student aide for the same area last week.

The other two aides selected were Gene Horne of Charlotte, editor of the student newspaper at Charlotte College, and Mike Wilson of Tarboro, an East Carolina College student and former vice-chairman of the state Federation of Young Democrats.

WAA Interviews

The Women's Athletic Association (WAA) will hold interviews for president for next year Tuesday at 5 p.m. in the Women's Gym. All interested students are asked to apply.

nesses. "The Committee may be expanded to work in other areas," he said. "We have a meeting Wednesday night to consider some other courses of action."

Discussion of a formal limitation of future suburban commercial zoning followed the Aldermen's rejection of three requests for such zoning. The Board turned down requests by Bruce and C. L. Martindale, W. B. Upchurch, and C. M. Mayse for rezoning of their properties from residential to suburban commercial.

The Aldermen supported a Planning Board recommendation that the requests be turned down because suburban commercial zoning is too lax. The three later changed their requests to regional commercial. Town Manager Robert Peck said such zoning was more stringent, requiring a greater right-of-way from the street and it prevented people from building right up to their side property lines. It also restricts the kinds of businesses that can be built on it, he said.

The Board approved Alderman Roland Giduz's motion calling for a special meeting in April to consider these three requests for regional commercial and requested the Planners to make a recommendation. "We want to let people know that we will not grant any more suburban commercial zoning in the future," Mayor McClamroch said. "It's an unusable zone."

Alderman Gene Strowd proposed that suburban commercial be removed from the zoning ordinances and be put under the non-conforming section.

DR. HENRY T. CLARK

Clark Named To National Council Post

Dr. Henry T. Clark Jr., administrator of the University's Division of Health Affairs, has been selected as one of 15 members of the National Advisory Council on Education for the Health Professions. The appointment to Council membership was made by Anthony Celebrezze, Secretary of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The primary functions of the Council are to advise the U. S. Surgeon General on policy matters arising out of the Health Professions Educational Assistance Act of 1963, legislation which calls for spending $175 million in federal matching funds in the next three fiscal years to construct training facilities for physicians, pharmacists, optometrists, podiatrists, nurses and public health personnel.

The Surgeon General of the U. S. Public Health Service is chairman of the Council and the U. S. Commissioner of Education is an ex-officio member.

Dr. Clark's appointment is for a four-year term. Terms of other members vary from two to four years.

The Health Professions Educational Assistance Act of 1963 (commonly known as HR 12) is the outgrowth of years of studies to determine the need to train health professionals. It is viewed as the beginning of a major effort by the federal government to help balance programs of health education with its enormous research activities.

Dr. Clark has been administrator of the University's Division of Health Affairs since 1950, moving here after two years as director of Vanderbilt University Hospital in Nashville, Tenn.

In addition to his new national appointment, he has the following responsibilities on the national scene:

He is chairman of the American Hospital Association's Council on Research and Education; a member of the Advisory Committee to the Mountain States Medical Education Study sponsored by the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education; a member since 1961 of the General Clinical Research Center Committee of the U. S. Public Health Service; and for eight years a special consultant to the Government of Puerto Rico in planning and developing its Puerto Rico Medical Center in San Juan.

Jacoby Heads Bridge Meet In Durham

The American Contract Bridge League has voted to award an extra red point day for the Mid-Atlantic Spring Regional Bridge Tournament to be held at the Jack Tar Hotel in Durham, April 8-12, it has been announced.

The additional red point day will be Thursday, April 9, featuring 2 sessions each of the Men's pairs and the Women's pairs.

Oswald Jacoby, the top ranking bridge player of the world, will be an honor guest of the tournament which is expected to draw over 1,000 bridge players from all parts of the country.

Jacoby will be featured in television, lecture at Duke University and moderate a panel of experts including Mrs. Margaret Wager of Atlanta, Ivar Stakgold of Chicago, Billy Woodson of Charlotte, Dick Freeman of Atlanta, and other international bridge celebrities.

Mr. John Norwood, Jr. of Greenville, S. C., the Carolina's representative on the American Contract Bridge League's board of directors called Vic Huggins to report the decision of the board to extend the red point competition for the Durham Tournament. The ACBL board met in Portland, Oregon where the Spring National Tournament is now in play.

To become a life master in bridge a player must have earned 300 master points, including 50 red points which can only be won in Regional or National Competition.

With Mr. Jacoby in attendance at a full 4 day red point regional - Vic Huggins, anticipates 1,500 tables in play and is planning this prize studded, entertainment featured, bridge festival to be the best attended regional ever held in this area.

CORRECTION

The DTH mistakenly referred to Sam Applegate as president of the SAE house in yesterday's story about vandalism on a bus. Applegate is the former president. The remarks quoted in the story were made by newly elected President Richard Lewis.

Herzog Found Guilty; Sentence Set For Thursday

The jury in the case of Dr. Frederick Herzog returned a verdict of guilty on charges of trespass yesterday after deliberating for one hour and 40 minutes.

Judge Raymond B. Mallard of Orange County Superior Court delayed sentence until next Thursday. Herzog has posted bond for appearance at that time.

The trial of Dr. Peter Klopfer, a Duke faculty member, was started and went to the jury yesterday also. The jury retired shortly after 4 p.m., but had not reached a verdict by 5:40 p.m. Mallard then sent the jury home for the evening. They will resume deliberations again in the morning.

The trial of Dr. Robert Osborn also got under way today. Osborn pleaded not guilty to the charge of trespass on the property of Austin Watts on the night of Jan. 3.

The charges grew out of the same sit-in in which Dr. David Smith and Dr. Frederick Herzog have been found guilty of trespass. The charges were brought after the group staged an anti-segregation protest at the restaurant belonging to Watts.

The trial got no further than the seating of 12 prospective jurors to be interrogated by the prosecution and defense. No questions were asked of the jurors yesterday. Attorneys plan to start selecting the jury today.

Solicitor Dick Cooper speculated that Mallard had postponed sentencing Herzog to keep future jurors from being prejudiced in other cases concerning the same incident.

USAF Jet Crewmen Alive In Germany

WIESBADEN, Germany—(UPI) An East German official said Wednesday night that the three crewmen of a U. S. Air Force jet reconnaissance bomber shot down over Communist East Germany on Tuesday were alive.

The Soviet Union officially admitted one of their fighters shot down the American plane. The report that the Americans were alive came from the mayor of Stendal, the town where the U. S. RB66 bomber was downed after it strayed into East German skies.

U. S. Air Force spokesmen said the Communists may have used false radio signals to lure the American plane off course before shooting it down.

"They are alive," the mayor told UPI by telephone. "They have been taken away from here. I do not know their physical condition. I only know they are alive."

The mayor said the wreckage of the plane was north of Stendal and "they are guarding it." He did not say who he meant by "they." "We have nothing to do with it," he added.

In Moscow, the Soviet Union charged in a protest note to the United States that the plane was on a military intelligence mission when it was shot down.

The Soviet note, delivered to U. S. Charge d'Affairs Walter J. Stroessel, said the plane crashed near Gardelegen, East Germany, as the result of "action taken by a Soviet fighter plane."

Gardelegen is about 20 miles west-southwest of Stendal. The two towns are in an area north of the east German city of Magdeburg.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Moscow said the American charge d'affaires promised to relay the contents of the Soviet protest note to Washington but took the occasion to deny the Soviet charges.

Stroessel maintained the RB66 was on a training flight and inadvertently strayed over East German territory, the American spokesman said. The diplomat told Soviet Vladimir Semenov that this fact was regretted but he strongly protested "the precipitate action in shooting the plane down."

Word from the East German mayor that the three Americans were alive was the first word received on their fate, part from a State Department report Tuesday night that the men had parachuted from their disabled aircraft.

It was the second U. S. military aircraft to be shot down in Communist East Germany this year. The Russians downed a T39 jet trainer on Jan. 23, and the three men aboard the plane were killed.

Earlier U. S. Air Force spokesmen said the RB66 reconnaissance bomber may have been lured into East German skies. "We must assume the RB66 did not know it was lost—otherwise it would have streaked west and almost certainly made it," one spokesman told UPI at Air Force headquarters in Wiesbaden.

Another spokesman, Col. Mark Gilman, said: "It cannot be ruled out the plane was led off course by radio jamming and false signals."

No Decision Made On SAE Case

It has not yet been decided whether the case of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon pledges who vandalized a Trailways Chartered bus Saturday will be tried in an IFC or an Honor Council Court, said Bill Taylor of the Attorney General's Staff today.

Twenty-two SAE pledges have been charged with tearing up the bus's ceiling, ripping seat cushions, breaking windows and destroying the door assembly of a bus while returning from an outing at Sweetbriar College in Lynchburg, Virginia.

Richard Lewis, president of the SAE House said that none of the legal transactions have been handled through the fraternity.

"I presume the Trailways Company will deal with the people involved directly," said Lewis. A bill of $754.31 for damages and labor has been presented by the bus company. This includes a $50 a day charge for each day the bus was out of service.

Training Program Starts For Council

Jaene Yeager, Chairman of the Honor System Commission, has announced that the compulsory training program for all candidates for the Men's and Women's Honor Councils will begin next week.

The program consists of three meetings. The first meeting will be held on Tuesday, March 17, and will be a discussion on the philosophy of the Honor System and the functions of the Attorney General and his staff.

The second meeting will be held the next day and the proceedings and penalties of the councils will be discussed. On Tuesday, March 24, a test will be given on the information discussed during the previous meeting. All meetings will be held at 7:00 p.m. in Roland Parker I, GM

A candidate must attend the two meetings and receive a grade of 80 on the test in order to receive the Honor System Commission endorsement for election. Those candidates running for reelection need not attend the first two meetings but must take and pass the test.

It is imperative that all candidates who intend to run in the spring elections for council positions submit a card showing name, address, class and district in which they are running to Jaene Yeager by Monday at 4 p.m. The cards can be placed in the Honor System Commission mailbox in Student Government offices.

Cross Burned In Negro's Front Yard

A cross was burned Tuesday night in front of a home formerly occupied by Hilliard Caldwell, 27, a local Negro integration leader. Police said they felt the incident was a prank by children or teenagers due to the crude construction of the cross, but Caldwell disagreed.

Lt. Graham Creel said the cross was made "with a broom handle, Daily Tar Heel newspapers, wire, and a crude stick. "Because this is not the usual way to construct a cross," Creel said in his report of the incident, "it was assumed that it was the work of children or teenagers. However, it was near the house which Hilliard Caldwell lived in up until six months ago."

Chief William D. Blake said it was "the first time in a year there's been a cross-burning. It happens very rarely. Some kids probably did it just for kicks."

Cross-burning is an old Ku Klux Klan method of warning someone he is in disfavor, particularly over racial matters. The incident occurred shortly before 10 p.m. Tuesday.

BSU To Sponsor Nursing Student

A Nursing student is being sent to Korea this summer by the local Baptist Student Union to participate in a Korean Work Project. Donna Jean Limburg, a senior from Hagerstown, Md., who has her R.N. and is working toward her B.S. degree in Nursing will represent UNC in this unique project. The Rev. James O. Canler, chaplain to Baptist students at Carolina, will be the project director.

The Korean Work Project will involve eight North Carolina students and sixteen Korean students who will compose the work camp. They will concentrate on community development in the village of Soksam-ni which is located in the central part of South Korea on the Kum River near Taejon. The work campers will construct a multi-purpose meeting hall to be used for local government, a medical clinic, a school, and a church. Donna will serve as the chief medical worker and the entire work camp will serve as teachers in vocational skills as well as serving in other capacities. This is the most comprehensive project yet attempted by Baptist students in North Carolina who have sent material and personal aid to many countries since 1953.

The funds for Donna's transportation are being raised entirely by the students through the coordination of the LISTEN (Love Impels Sacrifice Towards Every Need) program. The students provide a work service whereby

The Dean Of Women: An Interview

By EVE HIGGINS

Katherine Kennedy Carmichael is an imposing woman, despite her five foot, two inch height. Her face is kind, yet not weak; understanding without patronage; and lined with experience, hard work and devotion to her job.

And she has an air about her which indicates that when she wants something done, she gets results.

"I have always felt that if something is necessary, right or better — whether it is a new program generally disapproved, a policy under attack by the Daily Tar Heel or a problem with an individual student — then it's worth getting your back up for."

Graduating from Birmingham-Southern College at 19, Dean Carmichael received her masters and Ph.D. degrees from Vanderbilt. She has done post-doctoral work at SMU, UNC and Michigan.

"It is difficult for those of us in administration to get back on French each morning from 8 to 9, but languages go by the board," she smiled sadly. "and I'm often too involved with early morning telephone calls. I've attempted to keep up with German, Spanish and Latin, also."

sat in her comfortable, cherry office and commented on the changes she has seen since her college days, and since her graduation from college.

"College women," she said, "vary little today from the college women of my time, although they seem more interested in jobs than in careers. But I'm not certain that girls today aren't more dynamic."
