

Trustee Meet Begins

College officials from 50 states arrived here Tuesday for the 42nd annual meeting of the Association of Governing Boards of Universities.

Roy Rowe of Burgaw, a UNC trustee and president of the association, will preside over the meeting of trustees and officials of higher education institutions which ends Saturday.

The delegates will register today and attend a luncheon meeting.

Meanwhile, wives of the delegates will go on a tour of UNC art exhibits and attend a tea at Ackland Art Center.

Victor S. Bryant, UNC trustee, will address a dinner meeting at 7:15 a.m. on "the role of the regent."

The association will analyze the public press as one of interpreting higher education and will explore the relations of the community as examples of communications. The theme of the meeting is "interpretation."

Orientation Attacked

Commission member Louise Menefee told Dixon she believed the women's Honor Code orientation was certainly adequate and the Men's Honor Council could make most of the improvements to its orientation.

In a special report to the committee, commission member Britt Gordon outlined several proposals which would eliminate Freshman Camp and combine its characteristics into orientation. Orientation should include more active participation by resident advisors Gordon claims.

He proposed a residence hall speaker program during orientation, and discussion groups with resident advisors.

Gordon rejected the views and proposals of Dixon and called for a revision of Honor System booklets which new students receive in the fall.

"Entering students should be informed emphatically that they will be required to pass a quiz on this manual during orientation," he said.

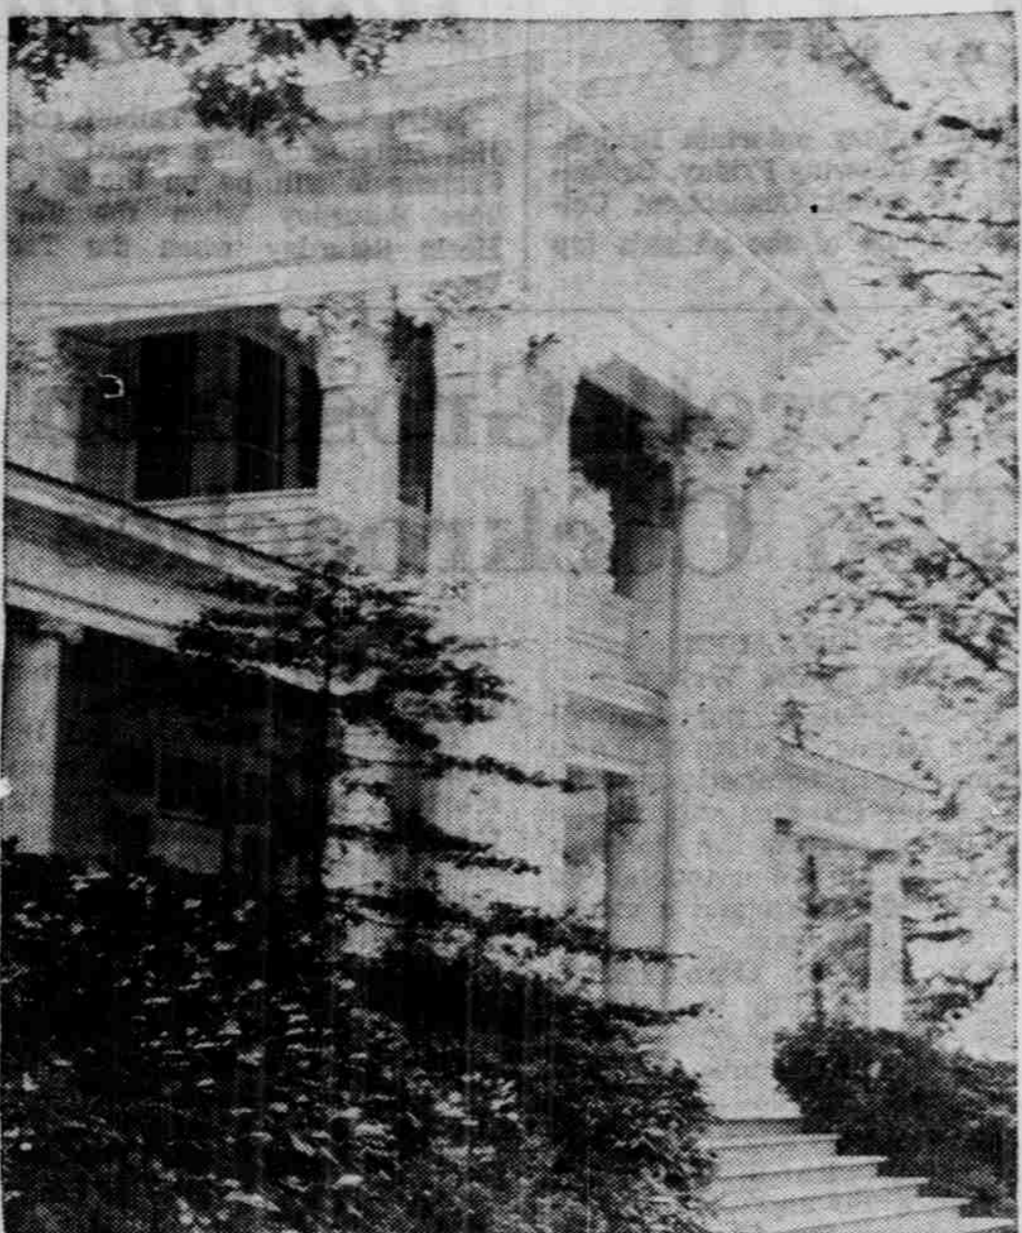

Commission member Ashley Hardison said a recent poll of students who had been through orientation showed lack of planning to be the most common criticism.

Commission member Susan Baruch said each entering student should be required to learn UNC's alma mater.

Another Commission member, Teddy O'Toole, pleaded again for coed orientation.

"Speaking as a farm boy," he said, "I ask you to please not separate the cows from the bulls."

Friday's Home

Local House Tour Saturday

Consolidated University President and Mrs. William Friday will open the doors of the University Mansion to the public Saturday for the Chapel Hill Art Guild's annual house tour.

This tour marks the first time the entire house has been open to the public.

The mansion, at 402 E. Franklin St., is a classic structure built in 1907 at a cost of $15,000. In the home are antiques and old reproductions, many of them gifts to the University.

The mansion has six Corinthian columns and deep porches that surround three sides of the house. A rock wall borders the grounds.

In conjunction with the house tour, the Art Guild will sponsor an antique collector's show at Chapel Hill Country Club from 1 to 7 p.m. the same day.

Tickets for the tour are $2 for adults and $1 for students and students' wives tickets may be purchased at the Carolina Inn, the Country Store, Intimate Bookshop, Pace's, Billy Arthur's, Ledbetter-Pickard's, Chapel Hill Country Club or from a home on the tour.

Proceeds will support art programs in Chapel Hill schools.
