

Tar Heels Face Greenies Tonight

Fresh from an impressive 82-67 win over Kentucky Monday night, the Tar Heels go after their fourth win of the season tonight against Southeastern Conference opponent Tulane.

Against Kentucky, the Tar Heels, now ranked 19th in the nation, looked like they were ready to achieve the greatness predicted for them.

Sophomore Tom Gauntlett stepped into the lineup Monday night and played like a senior and leaping Bobby Lewis finally showed signs of overcoming his sophomore jitters as he scored 23 points and pulled down 14 rebounds against the Wildcats. Lewis is now averaging 17.3 points a game.

But the leader of the Tar Heels tonight, as always, will be Captain Billy Cunningham. Although plagued with foul trouble throughout the last two games, the Kid is the steady influence on the Tar Heel sophs. As Syracuse scout Don

Danforth said Monday night "he's everybody's All-American."

Tulane won only one of 23 games last year, and one of the losses came at the hands of the Tar Heels 109-81. This will be the sixth meeting between the Greenies and the Tar Heels. Carolina has won four previous meetings while Tulane has won one.

New coach Ralph Pedersen has already won one game this year while dropping two. Pedersen is having to rely on sophomores this year and will probably start four sophs and senior guard Denny Shoup.

Joining Shoup, who averaged 12.2 ppg last year, in the backcourt will be 6-1 Al Andrews, a 21 ppg scorer for the frosh last year. Other sophs in the starting lineup will be 6-7 Nels Siegert at center and Jim Thiel (6-5) and John Schweers (6-3) at forwards. On the bench the Greenies will have 7-1 Craig Spitzer.

After finishing with a 5-5 record football season, Coach Jim Hickey doesn't have much to smile about, but he can be proud of some of the post-season accomplishments of four of his players.

Last year when the Tar Heels finished with a 9-2 record, Hickey had four players sign professional contracts. Bob Lacey signed with the Minnesota Vikings in the National League and Junior Edge, Cole Kortner, and Vic Esposito signed to play Canadian ball.

This year four Tar Heels have already signed pro contracts, and three of them have signed with the NFL. Halfback Ken Willard, fullback Eddie Kesler and center Chris Hanburger have all signed with the NFL, while end-tackle Frank Gallagher turned down a chance at the NFL to sign with a Canadian club.

Willard was the big plum among the Tar Heel signees. The 220-pound halfback, who rushed for 835 yards last year, was the second collegian to be picked in the NFL draft. The San Francisco 49ers made Ken their first choice, and last weekend, Ken flew to San Francisco and signed with the California club.

The 49ers, who have had trouble with their running game for several years, drafted Willard as a fullback although he played halfback his final two years as a Tar Heel.

This year, the 49ers picked up two free agents, Gary Lewis and Rudy Johnson, and have been alternating them at fullback, with little success.

49er Running Attack Is Weak

"Their running attack has been weak for four or five years," said Ken. "They've had good passing, but haven't had anyone who could get them the short yardage when they needed it. The defense has been keying on their passing attack, and they want someone to take the pressure off the passer."

"They think I can do it, and I sure hope I can."

At San Francisco, Ken will be playing with George Mira, a quarterback he remembers well from his college days. Mira had his troubles the first of the year, but was coming along when he injured his shoulder.

"The coaches are expecting great things from George," said Ken. "I talked to him while I was out there. George is the type of guy who can instill confidence in a team."

By signing the football contract, Willard became ineligible for baseball this spring. Last year, Ken led the ACC in home runs and RBI's as the Tar Heels swept through 14 consecutive games.

"My biggest regret is not being able to play baseball," Willard said yesterday. "It is really going to hurt when the season starts, and I have to watch from the stands."

"I had a long talk with Coach Walter Rabb and told him my plans. He was very understanding about it. I had to make the decision then, and I think I made the one which will be most beneficial."

"I don't think the baseball life would be for me. I really like the game, but I wouldn't want to live out of a suitcase for two or three years. Now, in football, I will either make it next year or not."

Kesler To Play Cornerback In Pros

Kesler was drafted as a "future" last year by Pittsburgh in the NFL and by Houston in the AFL. The Salisbury native, who set a one-game rushing record of 172 yards in the Duke finale, chose Pittsburgh.

The Steelers plan to use Eddie as a cornerback on their defensive unit.

Hanburger was drafted by the Washington Redskins and signed with the 'Skins in the Capitol city last Saturday. Hanburger, who was co-captain of the Tar Heels last year, will play corner linebacker for Washington.

Chris, who played college football at around 200 pounds, will probably have to put on some weight to play in the rugged NFL. "They want to me get up to about 217 or 218," said the Hampton, Va. linebacker.

Gallagher wasn't drafted by either of the American leagues, but the Dallas Cowboys were wanting Frank to sign with them.

Instead, Frank signed with Hamilton in the Canadian League, where he is expected to play defensive end or offensive guard.

"Hamilton offered me a better deal," said Frank. "And I think that I will have a better opportunity in the Canadian League."

Worthen Ties Mark, Dolphins Top Uva

Pete Worthen tied an ACC record in the 50-yard freestyle to lead the Blue Dolphins to a 75-20 win over Virginia Tuesday night.

Worthen, a sophomore from Andover, Mass., tied the mark of 21.7 in the 50-yard freestyle, and also won the 100-yard freestyle event. Last year, Worthen tied the world record of 21 seconds flat in the 50.

Skins' Taylor Named NFL's Top Rookie

NEW YORK (AP) — Charley Taylor, tagged as a "can't miss" prospect when he was drafted No. 1 by the Washington Redskins last year out of Arizona State, has been named Rookie of the Year in the National Football League by an Associated Press panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Taylor, 6-foot-3 and 210 pounds was voted the Most Valuable Player in the College All-Star game at Chicago in August and was outstanding in the All-America game earlier at Buffalo.

With the Redskins, the 23-year-old halfback has been equally successful as a runner and pass catcher. In fact, he will be the first rookie since Johnny Grigas of the Chicago Cardinals in 1943 to rank among the top 10 in both rushing and receiving.

Going into Sunday's final game with the Baltimore Colts, this fleet young man from Grand Prairie, Texas, has gained 744 yards in 191 carries and 720 yards on 49 passes.

"Taylor probably is the greatest natural football player I've ever seen," said Coach Bill McPeak of the Redskins over the telephone. "He combines power, speed and fine open field moves. He is extremely coachable and is a modest, dedicated kid."

A tendency to fumble hurt Taylor early in the season. One of his fumbles cost the Redskins a game with the New York Giants. But he has learned to hang onto the ball and has not fumbled recently.

Although Taylor won by a comfortable margin in the voting of the 42-man panel, three from each NFL city, there was spirited competition.

Paul Warfield, Cleveland's exciting split end from Ohio State, and Paul Krause, Washington's fine safety from Iowa, tied for second with five votes each.

Ind. Coach Says Team Much Better

BLOOMINGDALE, Ind. (AP) — "This is a different ball club," Coach Branch McCracken said Wednesday as he readied his 3-0, 24th Indiana University basketball team for a Saturday afternoon game with North Carolina. With 10 lettermen back, Indiana's pre-season squad looked about the same as the one that had a disappointing 9-15 record last year. That's probably why it was ignored in the summer ratings.

"The boys are a year older, their ball handling is better and they're playing like a team instead of a gang of individuals," McCracken said.

"Tom and Dick Vanarsdale should have their best year. They're handling the ball even better than last year and passing off when that's the thing to do."

The muscular 6-5 identical twins from Indianapolis, seniors this year, have been rated among the nation's top collegiate forwards for two seasons. Dick averaged 22.3 points a game and Tom 21.3 last season.
