

Holiday Review: A Quiet Christmas At UNC

By MIKE YOPP
DTH Managing Editor

A 33-year-old woman was murdered here New Year's Day, just over a year after UNC graduate student Frank Rinaldi killed his wife.

The violent deaths of the two women were the only similarities of note between the holidays of 1963 and 1964.

Otherwise, the small, windy town continued quietly on its day-to-day pace. The University, like a taut rubber band suddenly released, relaxed and was dormant for two weeks.

It was a sharp contrast from Christmas 1963 when civil rights demonstrations here flared into headlines across the nation.

On Franklin Street greetings of "Merry Christmas" and "Happy New Year" replaced last year's shouts of "What do you want?"—"FREEDOM"—when do you want it?"—"NOW."

The streets seemed deserted after the quick exodus which took 11,000 students from town. And the shoppers on Franklin looked old.

Two young clerks in a downtown men's store passed an afternoon playing catch with a small ball. There were few customers, not much else to do.

Most restaurants closed along with Lenoir and it was hard to find a hamburger.

But quiet as they were, the holidays provided some noteworthy events. Here's a summary of what you missed.

HEARING FOR MURDER CHARGE SET TODAY

A 31-year-old Chapel Hill man will face preliminary hearing today in Recorder's Court for the Friday murder of Mrs. Frances Bynum of Whitaker Street.

Clifton Cole is charged with slashing Mrs. Bynum's throat with a broken bottle after an argument New Year's night. Her body was found behind the Roberson Street Community Center by James Bynum of Cotton Street.

Chapel Hill Police Chief W. D. Blake said Cole admitted he was arguing with the woman when she picked up a bottle and tried to hit him with it. Blake said Cole admitted breaking the bottle, trying to choke Mrs. Bynum, then slashing her throat with a piece of broken glass.

ABC SITE SELECTED NEAR CAMPUS

The Orange County ABC Board approved a site only three blocks from campus for Chapel Hill's second liquor store. The Board voted 2-1 Dec. 21 to establish the store at 325

W. Rosemary St., adjacent to the rear of Fowler's Food Store. The store is expected to be in operation by next spring if the location is approved by the State Board which will meet Jan. 14 to consider the Chapel Hill application.

The dissenting vote came from Dr. Dudley D. Carroll who has opposed the establishment of a downtown store. Carroll said he will appear before the State Board to register disapproval of the site.

MAN BOUND OVER FOR LENOIR HALL THEFT

A former Lenoir Hall employee was bound over to Orange County Superior Court last week for a Dec. 28 break in and theft at Lenoir Hall.

James Byrd, 33, of Chapel Hill will face charges of breaking and entering and larceny and receiving during the February term of Superior Court. Byrd is accused of stealing three cases of chewing gum and an undetermined amount of cash from the storeroom in the Pine Room.

G. W. Prillaman, Lenoir Hall manager, said a night watchman saw someone at the cafeteria about 1:13 a.m. and called police. The man left by the time police arrived. Byrd and another man were picked up by Durham police later that day and held for questioning.

Police said four doors in the building were damaged and filing cabinets and a desk in the accountant's office on the second floor were entered.

CHANCELLOR APPOINTED TO NATIONAL GROUP

Chancellor Paul F. Sharp was named last week to the Commission on Liberal Learning of the Association of American Colleges.

The Commission will study programs designed for superior students in accelerated courses. It will consider graduate studies in liberal arts colleges, experimentation in new methods of teaching, mechanical aids to learning and intellectual life of college administrators.

The Commission is concerned with "encouragement and support of liberal learning in the colleges and universities that are members."

Also named to the Commission were Dr. Douglas M. Knight, president of Duke, and Dr. Willa B. Player, president of Bennett.

OLDEST SURVIVING ALUMNUS DIES

Henry Adolphus London, former oldest living UNC alumnus, died Dec. 20 at a Charlotte hospital. He was 97.

London entered the University in 1884 and was a businessman and insurance agent after leaving here.

He opened a store in Charlotte in 1893 after working with his father in Pittsboro in the firm of W. L. London and Son. He later became an insurance agent and at retirement was manager of the credit insurance department of the Carolinas of London Guarantee and Accident Co.

JUDGE MALLARD HONORED BY COMMISSIONERS

Superior Court Judge Raymond Mallard has been cited by the County Board of Commissioners for "outstanding contribution to the cause of justice and orderly court procedure."

The Tabor City judge is known on campus for presiding at two special criminal sessions of superior court—one to try Chapel Hill civil rights demonstrators and one for the murder trial of former graduate student-instructor Frank Rinaldi.

The commissioners adopted a formal resolution of appreciation for Mallard's services and had the statement read in court the week before Christmas. The resolution also commended Mallard for holding "sessions of court with dignity, dispatch and fairness, both to the State of North Carolina and to the parties who have appeared in his courts."

FRESHMAN GRIDDERS FINED FOR FIGHT

Two freshman football players were each fined $10 and costs in Recorder's Court before the holidays on assault charges.

James E. Sheehan, 18, and Peter Grauer, 19, pleaded not guilty to charges brought by two inmates of a youth rehabilitation prison unit near here. The inmates, Gene C. Harris, 20, and Clarence Housand, were given liberty in Chapel Hill the night of Nov. 14. Testimony showed that they got into an argument with Sheehan and Grauer.

Harris was charged with affray and given prayer for judgment continued 12 months, a $10 fine and costs. Housand was charged with assault and received prayer for judgment continued on payment of $10 and costs.

COED MISSES BEAUTY CONTEST BID

Coed Robin Link failed last week in her try for the 1965 Maid of Cotton queen.

Miss Link was one of 20 finalists selected for competition in the annual contest held last week in Memphis, Tenn.

Named winner was Texas Christian University sophomore Judy Hill of Fort Worth, Tex.

Spot The Spot Contest: I

For the next eight days you will be subjected to pictures of oddities such as this—though not all are so gross.

However, if you are smart enough to know what and where these campus landmarks are, you may win some fabulous prizes.

The DTH Spot The Spot Contest will end Jan. 14 when the last of the puzzlers will be printed. Entries will be accepted after 7:30 a.m. that day. The first one which correctly identifies the most objects will be the grand winner. A complete prize list will be published this Thursday.

The contest is open to students only. Daily Tar Heel staff members and their families are ineligible.

So forget about finals. Use your time wisely, wandering around campus hunting the Spots. It might be your first and last chance to get anything from the DTH.

IT'S ALL OVER with Santa Claus and egg nog. Chapel Hill freshman Lee Fambrough sums it all up with a glum expression as she relieves Santa of his wall position in Graham Memorial. She, like most students, is trying to shake off the holiday spirit and get in the mood for the two-week grind that leads to finals.

Bob Spearman Takes Rhodes Scholarship

By FRED SEELY
DTH Co-Editor

Bob Spearman's heavy laurel wreath of honors gained its biggest leaf Dec. 19 in Atlanta—the coveted Rhodes Scholarship.

In competition with 12 applicants from the six-state Southern Region, UNC's Student Body President was awarded one of the four scholarships for two years of study at England's Oxford University.

He will major in "PPE"—Philosophy, Politics and Economics.

It was the first Rhodes to come Chapel Hill's way since Norton Tennille, a 1961 graduate, brought one home in the 1962 competition.

Spearman was chosen as one of the state's two candidates in Greensboro on Dec. 11, along with James O'Flaherty of Winston-Salem, a senior at Williams College. O'Flaherty completed a sweep for the state by also gaining a Rhodes.

For the Chapel Hill senior, it was just another in a long list of honors.

As President of Phi Beta Kappa, he has compiled a perfect 4.0 academic record since entering UNC in 1961. He is a Morehead Scholar, and has held two additional financial awards from his fraternity.

A member of Chi Psi, Spearman is a member of the Order of the Golden Fleece, the Order of the Grail, the Order of the Old Well, the Society of Janus and Amphoteroben.

Prior to Chapel Hill, Spearman was valedictorian of his class at the Groton School, graduating Summa Cum Laude. He was co-captain of the basketball team, setting a school scoring record in his senior year. He also lettered in football and tennis.

At UNC, he was a member of the freshman tennis and soccer teams.

Politically, he served as President of the Freshman Class, University Party Floor Leader in Student Legislature and Vice-President of the Student Body before his election to the presidency last spring.

He is currently President of the State Student Legislature, and was vice-president of that body last year.

On the national level, Spearman was a member of the Student Body Presidents for Johnson-Humphrey in the recent campaign, and served on the executive committee of the local Young Democratic Club.

During the summer of 1963, he worked for Rep. Frank Thompson (D-N. C.) and Supreme Court Associate Justice Byron R. White. Last summer he was an intern in the state government.

Spearman initiated the Fine Arts Festival, to be held here this spring, and was instrumental in the re-founding of the Carolina Political Union.

He also served as co-rush chairman for Chi Psi.

Group Will Draft Formal Proposal For Campus Radio

A formal proposal for a campus carrier current radio system to be sent to Chancellor Sharp will be drafted by the Campus Radio Committee of Student Government today in special session at 3 p.m. in Graham Memorial's Grail Room.

Carrier current is a method of transmitting an AM radio signal by means of low power transmitters over a limited area.

Sharp must give the University's official approval of the system if the project is initiated.

The Radio Committee was formed early this year under the chairmanship of Student Body Vice President Don Carson to study the possibility of having a student radio network in all living units on campus.

"The station would broadcast music, campus news, regular news, and local and away sports events," Carson said. "It would provide us with instant communication to all parts of the campus."

Carson said the committee would stress the system's value in case of an emergency in its recommendations to the University administration.

"This is going to be one of the most costly and ambitious projects ever undertaken by Student Government," he said. "But the price will be considerably cheaper than the yearly costs of publishing the Daily Tar Heel."

A conference on campus radio systems was held here in November with the committee's aid, during which representatives of other campus stations explained the organization of their stations.

If the system is approved by Sharp, the University Trustees would have to apply for the station's license.

"If we are able to maintain our present schedule," Carson said, "campus radio will be on the air before the end of spring semester."

UNC Figures In State's Top Stories

UNC figured in two of the top 10 North Carolina news stories of 1964 selected recently by the Associated Press.

The civil rights demonstrations here and in Williamston were rated number 6 and the Frank Rinaldi murder case number 9.

The top-rated story was the election of Dan Moore as governor.

The stories were selected by votes of AP-member newspapers in the state including the Daily Tar Heel.

The demonstrations often flared into headlines throughout the nation while the Rinaldi case was normally confined to state newspapers.

After taking a quick 5-0 lead, the Heels went cold and fell behind 26-18 with 7:07 left in the half. With Lewis hitting from all over the court, Carolina cut the margin to 30-32, when Cunningham went out with his third foul with 5:30 left.

National Ballet Performs Tonight

The National Ballet—the resident company of the nation's capital—celebrates its second anniversary at 8 tonight in Memorial Hall.

Conducted by Henry Mazer, the company made its world premiere on Jan. 3, 1963. It is unique in its purpose of existing mainly as the resident troupe of Washington, D. C., since most major companies are formed to travel.

The repertoire of the ballet ranges from the classics to contemporary works.

Critics have generally praised the group's performances. The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin said: "This youthful company, with its distinguished director, has a good chance of evolving into a truly national ballet."

The Philadelphia Inquirer stated: "The National Ballet has everything—excellent leading dancers, a superb ballet corps, creative choreographers and decor artists."

Sophomore Dies In Crash

Funeral service was conducted in Raeford yesterday for sophomore Calvin Roger McMinis, who died from injuries sustained in an automobile accident Dec. 29.

McMinis' car collided head-on with a milk truck at 7:45 a.m. about five miles west of Sanford on Highway 15-501.

He was rushed to Memorial Hospital here with multiple head injuries. He died at 2:30 a.m. Sunday.

McMinis was coming to Chapel Hill at the time of the accident to bring a girl who had been visiting him over the weekend back to her home here.

Junior Injured

Robert McConnell, junior from Southern Pines, was injured in another holiday accident.

Six others were injured in the three-car collision Saturday night near Hollister on Highway 43.

Ten stitches were required to close cuts in McConnell's head, and he was hospitalized overnight. Sally Leech of Littleton, riding with McConnell, was the most seriously injured. She was hospitalized in Roanoke Rapids with a broken knee cap, broken nose and several cuts.

The accident occurred when a car which was stopped to make a left turn was struck from behind and knocked into the path of McConnell's car.

Hot Maryland Hands Heels First ACC Defeat: 76-68

COLLEGE PARK, Md.—The Tar Heels played Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde here last night and lost their third straight game, 76-68, to Maryland's Terrapins.

The loss was the first conference defeat for Coach Dean Smith's squad after two wins and brought their record to a disappointing 6-5. Maryland is now 2-2 in the ACC and 5-5 overall.

After hitting 69 per cent from the floor in the first half and taking a 44-38 lead at intermission, Carolina turned cold in the second half and could score only 24 points while the Terps matched their first half total of 38.

Sophomore Bobby Lewis played the Jekyll and Hyde role to perfection. After scoring 20 points on 9 of 13 field goals, Lewis could score only one point during the cold second period. Maryland's tenacious defense stopped Lewis without a field goal and Bobby could hit only 1 of 5 free throws after intermission.

All-American Billy Cunningham scored only 13 points before fouling out again with 5:54 left in the game.

The Tar Heels could manage only 12 points the last 13 minutes. Leading 56-49, the Heels didn't scratch for four minutes and fell behind 57-56 before Tom Gauntlett and Ian Morrison hit on long jumpers to give UNC their last lead at 60-57.

The Terps outscored the Heels 11-2 at this point to take a 68-62 lead with four minutes left. In the last minutes of play the Tar Heels had three one-and-one opportunities and missed on all three.

In the first half Lewis was the whole show for the Tar Heels for 17 minutes. Then sophomores Morrison and Gauntlett came in to lead a Tar Heel spurt that gave them their six point halftime lead.

Motorists: Tag Time's Here Again

What's black and yellow and different from yellow and black? Not really a riddle, just a description of North Carolina's 1965 license plates.

The new tags, which went on sale here Monday at the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Merchants Association, have yellow numerals on a black background. The colors are simply a reverse of the 1964 tags which wore black numerals on yellow.

The tags cost from $11 to $15 depending on the make of the car. Merchants Association Executive Director Joe Augustine said motorists must complete application forms and insurance verification before tags can be issued.

Registration of cars should be renewed through the Department of Motor Vehicles in Raleigh.

The Merchants Association office, 414 W. Franklin St., is selling the plates 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, until Feb. 15.

Sales are on a cash basis only; checks will not be accepted.

IFC Rush Meeting Set For Wednesday
